British Ships Pursue Italian Fleet; Hit Claimed in Long-Range Battle

Senate Votes Confirmation Of Stimson, 56 to 28

Republican, Assailed As Interventionist, Made War Secretary After 2-Day Debate

Woodring Speaks

Former Secretary of War Woodring declared at Topeka that he hoped his resignation "has sobered some of those provocative and meddling advisers of the Administration who would strip our own defenses." (Page 30.)

Stimson Wins

By a vote of 56 to 28, the Senate late yesterday confirmed President Roosevelt's nomination of Col. Henry L. Stimson as Secretary of War.

The action approving the appointment of a noted Republican to a Democratic Cabinet came at the end of an all-day barrage which developed from an attack on Col. Stimson's alleged "interventionism" into a broad discussion of American foreign policy.

Opposition spokesmen on both sides of the aisle denounced the Stimson nomination as a step toward creation of a "war Cabinet" and as a move toward American involvement in the war. But so confident of the final vote were Administration leaders that only twice in the two days of debate were full-fledged speeches made on Col. Stimson's behalf—and they were comparatively brief.

Division of Votes

Voting in favor of the Stimson appointment were 43 Democrats, 10 Republicans, 1 Independent, while the opposition counted 14 Democrats, 12 Republicans, 1 Farmer-Laborite and 1 Progressive.

The companion selection of Col. Frank Knox, 1936 Republican Vice Presidential nominee, for the post of Secretary of the Navy, will be acted on by the Senate this afternoon. Confirmation appears certain.

Before packed gallery crowds that at times became unruly, big guns of the Senate thundered all afternoon that the appointment of Col. Stimson was a dangerous step toward war.

Taft Attacks Choice

When Senator Taft, of Ohio, recent Republican Presidential candidate, attacked the nomination, there must have been few among his listeners who failed to recall that he is the son of a President under whom Col. Stimson served as Secretary of War 27 years ago.

A sense of history was not lacking, too, when Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, renewed his protest against "interventionists," for it was his father who was Speaker of the House when war was declared in 1917.

In an address that carried him to the point of tears, Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, raged against the appointment and Senator Wheeler, of Montana, candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, added his protest.

Tydings Opposed

But not all the opposition came from west of the Alleghenies: Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, attacked the selection, stressing the unpreparedness of the United States for war. And others voting against confirmation included Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, and three Republicans from the Eastern seaboard.

Aside from the opening defense of the Stimson appointment given Monday by Chairman Sheppard, of the Military Affairs Committee, the only address in Colonel Stimson's favor was offered just before the vote by Majority Leader Barkley, who emphasized the nonparti-

Duke of Windsor Appointed Governor of the Bahamas

Ex-King's Duties At Society Playspot Will Be Light

By the Associated Press

London, July 9.—The Duke of Windsor, royal wanderer on the road of romance, tonight was named governor and commander in chief of the Bahamas, British island playground off the coast of Florida.

The former King and his American wife, the former Wallis Warfield Simpson, fled from their exile home in France to Spain, then Portugal, in advance of the Nazi tide last month.

They now are in Lisbon, and it was presumed they would go directly to Nassau, capital of the sunny Bahamas. It was not immediately disclosed just when the duke would take up his new post.

The duke's appointment carries a salary of about $12,000 a year. Life in a capital of 20,000 depending mostly on tourist trade, places the former King and his duchess within 200 miles of the America they wished to visit in November, 1937, but decided otherwise because of unfavorable reaction from American labor groups.

Labor groups severely criticized the duke's friendship with Charles Bedaux, "speed-up efficiency expert," and also a previous visit by the duke and duchess to Nazi Germany.

Party Leaders Sure Roosevelt Will Run Again

President Passes Up Chance to Tell Plans; Willkie Flies West

By Robert C. Albright

President Roosevelt yesterday passed his next to last opportunity to tell White House reporters his third-term intentions before the Democratic Convention five days away.

But leaders of both major parties were convinced. As Wendell L. Willkie flew off to Colorado for vacation training for his bout with "the champ," Democratic and Republican Washington spokesmen were all out on a third-term limb.

Or practically all. Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, said he still thought the President wouldn't run, but admitted he was "alone." A search through the Capitol failed to produce another skeptic.

"There may be some rigamarole over being drafted, but he'll be the candidate," said House Minority Leader Joe Martin at his first press

SEC Reduces Waiting Period For Utilities

The SEC yesterday announced two important concessions to business the result of recent conferences with industry and banking representatives.

It approved a rule to cut "red tape" and eliminate about 70 per cent of bearings formerly required under the utility holding company act.

In another action it agreed to modification, in favor of established firms, of the 20-day waiting period now required between filing of a registration statement and permission to sell a security.

U.S. to Finance Airports in Latin America

'Discretionary' Funds Of President to Pay For Defense Step

Immediate and sweeping expansion of Pan American Airways' ground facilities and flying service in strategic parts of Latin America, as a means of implementing Western Hemisphere defense plans, has been approved by the Administration, it was learned last night from reliable sources. This will be financed from the $200,000,000 "discretionary" fund which Congress recently placed at President Roosevelt's disposal as part of the rearmament program.

How many of the President's discretionary millions have been allocated to the Pan-American project was not disclosed, but it was indicated that the total is substantial. The plan is to have the airline do what the Government itself cannot accomplish without endless red tape and time-consuming diplomatic negotiation, by establishing a series of ultra-modern airports equipped with service, maintenance and repair facilities.

The Administration is said to be interested in having Pan American Airways establish strategic commercial air bases around the Caribbean and down the coasts of South America to Buenos Aires and Santiago, which will accommodate a sizable fleet of the company's new four-motored Boeing stratoliners.

The stratoliner is fundamentally a commercial version of the Army's Boeing Flying Fortresses and that ground facilities for one are admirably adapted to the needs of the other.

A large fleet of Flying Fortresses is under construction at Boeing's plant in Seattle, and a small group of such ships made a one-stop flight from the United States to Buenos Aires two years ago, using Pan American-Grace Airways facilities both at the Argentine capital and on the west coast of South America.

Her Day:

Mrs. Willkie Dazed by Political 'Avalanche' as She Visits City

When Mrs. Wendell Willkie arrived at the Washington Airport yesterday to accompany her husband on their vacation to Colorado, she was "definitely sure" that her days as wife of a nominee for the Presidency bear little resemblance to her days as wife of a New York businessman.

"The telephone rings all day long. Telegrams arrive, and 'relatives' turn up by the score," she said at a press conference held in the plane while waiting for her husband to arrive.

Worst, of all, Mrs. Willkie declared, she no longer gets to see her husband any more.

"I don't know just where we are going and what we are going to do. I haven't had much chance to talk things over with my husband. Just now I feel like an avalanche had come down on me. I think when the air clears up a bit everything will be different," she smiled.

Although Mrs. Willkie looked much more rested than she did in Philadelphia the day after her husband's nomination, she said she had "a hunch" she had lost some weight in the last two weeks.

She was wearing a tricky new white hat and a simple blue and white print dress. Blue is her favorite color for summer and black for winter, she declared, while white is what she prefers for evening.

U.S. Moves To Tighten Pacific Grip

Fleet Stays There, President Says; Gen. Arnold Will Study Alaska Bases

Two steps were taken by the Administration in the smoldering Far Eastern situation yesterday that indicated a stiffening in the attitude of this Government toward Japan.

President Roosevelt announced there is no present plan to move the United States Fleet from Hawaii to the Atlantic, a course advocated in many circles since the collapse of France, while the Army acted to strengthen the defenses of Alaska, lying across the shortest route from this Nation to Japan.

Study New Fields

Meanwhile, the President put the finishing touches on his new $5,000,000,000 defense program and said he would send it to Congress today. It would about double the outlay thus far voted by Congress for the Army and Navy.

Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Army Air Corps chief, left here on an aerial trip to Alaska to inspect two air bases now under construction and study sites for additional air fields in the Territory.

The guarded War Department announcement said only that "certain other points" for "possible auxiliary landing fields" will be inspected, but the Army-Navy high command, it was learned, contemplates additional bases in the Aleutian Islands, the westernmost of which is only 750 miles from the Japanese naval base at Paramushira.

Other Developments

The President revealed the intention to keep the fleet in the mid-Pacific for the time being after a conference with Admiral J. O. Richardson, its commander, who flew here Monday unheralded. The announcement came as tension over American-Japanese relations heightened, and Tokyo put increased pressure on Great Britain, France and the Netherlands, to cut off further aid to China through their Far East possessions.

The day produced these other defense and foreign relations developments:

Willkie Buys 5 Books to Read On His Vacation

Wendell Willkie dropped into a bookshop yesterday and bought five books to read on his Colorado vacation. After consulting a clerk and asking "What do you recommend?" here is what he bought:

"Margaret Fuller," by Mason Wade, the biography of a feminist; "Capitalism, the Creator," by Carl Synder, economics; "Too Big," by Morris Ernst, a study of big business; "The Dissenting Opinions of Mr. Justice Holmes," edited by Alfred Lief, and "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter," a novel by Mrs. Carson McCullers, 22-year-old Fayetteville, N. C., author.

Mrs. McCuller's novel—her first—has received much acclaim from critics. She has said that it was conceived as an allegory about fascism. Everybody tends, Mrs. McCullers thinks, to search for a leader to carry his burden—a tendency which she calls one root of fascism.

Slaying Suspect Arrested for D. C.

William T. Hooper, 39, sought since June 18 for the slaying of Ernest W. Hartman, 48, a fellow inmate of the Soldiers Home, was arrested in Philadelphia yesterday and held for Washington police.

Hartman, found unconscious in the woods near the home, died in Gallinger Hospital of what was found in a routine "accidental death" investigation to be a fractured skull. Hooper described as a drinking partner, was named by a coroner's jury as the slayer.

Joint Parley Called Today In Sand Strike

Union and Company Officials Will Confer With U. S. Conciliators

Union and company officials will confer at 10 a. m. today with representatives of the Labor Department's conciliation service in an attempt to find a basis for settlement of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co. strike which threatens to halt $50,000,000 of local construction, including important national defense projects.

The decision to hold a joint conference in the Labor Department Building was reached last night in discussions of the officials and John L. Conner and Howard T. Colvin, conciliators.

Thomas A. Butt and A. M. Parker will represent the company at the conference. Butt is treasurer of the Smoot firm, and Parker is secretary. Attending for labor will be Joseph Gillis, Baltimore representative of the American Federation of Labor, and John O. Crawford, financial secretary of the Sand & Gravel Workers Union, Local 22075.

Only 250 sand and gravel workers are involved in the strike directly, but its effects have already reached about 5,500 workmen in affected industries and may eventually throw 15,000 more out of jobs.

When day-long discussions yesterday produced no tangible results, Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody expressed alarm over the threat to national defense projects and called for an investigation

Gunman at Willkie Banquet Gags, Robs Rep. Cluett

Representative Harold Cluett (Republican), of New York, was bound, gagged and robbed of more than $100 in cash and jewelry Monday night by a gunman who sat beside him earlier at a dinner for Wendell L. Willkie, it was learned yesterday.

The robbery took place in Cluett's room at the Willard Hotel, and the gun, which was found under his bed by police yesterday, turned out to be a "Lone Ranger" cap pistol.

The dinner, at the same hotel, was open only to Republican members of Congress, members of the Republican National Committee and Willkie's advisory council of 12.

The thief, police said, came in "for the speeches," introduced himself as "Mr. Adams, of Roanoke, Va.," and drew up a chair between Cluett and Representative Joseph O'Brien, of New York.

The stranger accompanied Cluett to his room under the pretext of living on the same floor, pushed him into the room, drew the gun and bound Cluett with sheet strips. It was 15 minutes before the Congressman could free himself of the gag and cry for help.

Reich, Italy Reported Backing Hungary In Claims on Land

By the Associated Press

Budapest, Hungary, July 9.—Germany and Italy were reported tonight to have decided to call on Rumania to give up a slice of Transylvania to Hungary.

A preliminary agreement was said to have been made with Hungary even before the beginning of scheduled consultations in Munich between Premier Count Teleky and Foreign Minister Istvan Csaky, of Hungary; Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, of Germany, and Foreign Minister Count Ciano, of Italy. Teleky and Csaky left for Munich today.

Petain Voted Power to Map Constitution

Only 4 Dissent As Parliament Passes Totalitarian Bill

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, July 9.—Stricken France's Parliament signed the death warrant of the democratic Third Republic today by giving Premier Marshal Petain unrestricted powers to write a new totalitarian constitution.

The Chamber and Senate, born of defeat and desperation, with only four negative voices, declared the new constitution "must guarantee the rights of labor, family and country."

The Chamber vote was 395 to 3, the Senate, 225 to 1.

Only formal joint approval by both houses tomorrow remains before Marsnal Petain is expected to emerge as a figurehead ruler in a government dominated by a triumvirate composed of Gen. Maxime Weygand, former Allied commander in chief; former Premier and Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, and former Labor Minister Adrien Marquet.

The Petain government, in an outline to Parliament of its plans as published by Havas, the official French news service, declared France "must understand and accept the necessity of a national revolution."

The three deputies who voted against the bill were the Radical Socialist Margaine and the Socialists Jean Biondi and Leon Roche.

The single dissenting Senator was

Nye Plans Blast at 'Higher-Ups' Who Had FBI Investigate Him

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, will have "plenty to say" today about Administration "higher-ups" who ordered a thorough FBI investigation of him on grounds that he has "pro-Nazi connections," a close friend of the Senator said last night.

The North Dakotan, a leading member of the Senate isolationist bloc, told reporters about the investigation but said he would make no further comment until he had an opportunity to examine the FBI dossier.

He intimated, however, that he suspected a plot against his character, and added:

"I do know that nothing was found that should not have been found. But I am not so much interested in the findings as I am in those who instigated this investigation. I know it wasn't done on the complaint of some John Jones."

The Post learned that Nye was told about the investigation by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, a close friend. In a telephone conversation Monday with Hoover, Nye commented that the FBI director must be pretty busy "these days." Hoover is reported to have replied:

"We certainly are. As a matter of fact, we've just completed a very thorough investigation of you. I've just put the docket away."

Action Still Going On, English Say

Rome Claims Foe Fled in Another Battle Off Crete; London Denies It

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), July 10.—British men-o'-war clashed early today with an Italian squadron of two battleships, cruisers and destroyers in a continuing sea engagement in the central Mediterranean and jubilantly reported that the enemy "almost immediately" fled behind a smoke screen.

Whether the Italians fired a single shell in the brief fight was not stated in the British admiralty's communique but it declared that before the smoke screen obscured the Italians "one hit at extreme range was obtained by one of our capital ships on an Italian battleship."

The admiralty said its ships were pursuing the Italians.

[Stefani, official Italian news agency, reported the Fascist forces were pursuing the British, who fled southward in the central Mediterranean after a battle that lasted from 2:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday.

Report Unofficial

[The Stefani report, as received in London, added that on Monday Italian planes had sunk a British cruiser and damaged a British battleship and aircraft carrier in a battle farther east, near the Island of Crete.

[A New York Times dispatch from Athens confirmed that large numbers of Italian planes attacked a British naval squadron near Crete Monday and at least one Italian plane was shot down. Its crew of five was interned in Crete.

[No word was received directly from the Italian government on either engagement, and the Stefani report did not mention damage to the British ships in the fight that began Tuesday. It said the Italian air force was bombing the British, however.]

The British admiralty, which made the first announcement of the Tuesday encounter, did not mention Italian resistance and did not tell of any fighting on Monday.

Churchill's Talk Recalled

The Italian information placed the scene of the clash off Cape Spartivento, at the extreme toe of the Italian "boot."

The admiralty announced that the British naval air arm was attacking the foe, and that sea forces based at Gibraltar swept into the central Mediterranean in search of Italian warcraft. The Gibraltar squadron found no surface craft, but shot down four enemy planes and damaged seven others, said the admiralty.

The only previous British-Italian sea fight occurred June 27 when a light British naval force sank the Italian destroyer Espero.

The fights came on the heels of the Berlin conference of Adolf Hitler and Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano which informed Italian sources said gave Italy the job of "mopping up" in the Mediterranean and North Africa.

Two Nazi Ships Fired

It followed, too, closely after Prime Minister Churchill announced the surprise seizure of the bulk of the French fleet and commented that the royal navy would take care of the Italians next—and

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

BUT THE COLONEL FORGETS HIS ALGEBRA

Like the 40,000 martial young men who try each year to enter Annapolis, the 40,000 martial young men who yearn annually toward West Point face some cruel and unusual exams, even if you omit the indecencies of algebra and geometry, which most of 'em will forget long before they're colonels.

Harlan Miller

Most of the West Point aspirants are 18, and they'll never know quite so much again as when they sit down for their three-day exams. They'll forget most of it the first time they're under fire. But here are some of the easier questions they're asked.

* * * *

1. A person receives $15 daily. He spends $1.40 the first day, $1.80 the second day, $2.20 the third day, and so on. When will he have the most money, and how much at that time? When will he have nothing? Will he ever have exactly $97.60? If so, when? (Yes, just before the girls see him coming.)

* * * *

2. Define each of the following grammatical terms and illustrate each in a sentence. Underline the part of the sentence that illustrates the term defined: Infinitive. Correlative conjunctions. Gerund. Relative adjective. Reflexive pronoun. (Aw, you use grammar every day.)

"—but which emperor did what?"

3. In a sentence each, cite one outstanding event in the reign of any six of the following Roman emperors: Claudius, Trajan, Caracalla, Constantine, Julian, Vespasian, Justinian, Theodosius, Titus. (Ah, Trajan, didn't he invent the Trajan horse?)

* * * *

4. Name and locate on the blank map: (a) The first permanent settlement in the U. S. (b) The last of the 13 original colonies to be founded. (c) The Western boundary of the U. S. in 1783. (d) The route of Sherman's march to the sea. (e) The route of John C. Frémont's expeditions. (f) The territory purchased by the U. S. in 1819. (g) The region governed by the Ordinance of 1787. (h) The first State to be admitted to the Union after 1783.

(Imagine yourself alone in a room with these!)

5. Give a synonym for each of the following words: Tortuous, declivity, ominous, audacious, abysmal, deceptive, flaunt, transitory, symptomatic, mediocre, glib, eliminate, nomad, jaunty, repudiate, incredulous, cogitate, rudiment, augment, intangible.

* * * *

6. In not over 200 words or by means of parallel outlines contrast the government and organization of the Roman Empire under Augustus and under Diocletian.

Why did small Roman farmers move to the city during the second century B. C.?

Name two reforms sponsored by Gaius Gracchus.

7. Define briefly in their historical setting: Wilmot proviso; "War Hawks;" Right of Deposit; Constitutional Union Party; Grandfather Clause.

What change was made in our tariff policy as a result of the War of 1812?

* * * *

8. An auto whose wheels are 8 feet in circumference is traveling at a constant speed. When this speed is increased by 15 m. p. h. the time of one revolution of the wheels is decreased by 2-33 seconds.

At what speed is the automobile traveling?

9. Arrange chronologically additions to our national domain from 1860 to the present. Give date and method of acquisition.

* * * *

10. What was the result of the first Punic War? What incident precipitated the Second Punic War? Name the final battle the commanders, and the victor.

* * * *

For some mysterious reason the Army seems to go stronger on grammar than the Navy . . . Maybe it's the waterfront influence . . . And now will you have some respect for a West Point second looey when you run into him? On top of all this, even if he passes the exams he can be disqualified for extreme ugliness or an oversize head.

Dies Probes Society Of German Veterans

Skilled Texas Oil Workers Belong To Kyffhauser Bund

BY International News Service

Austin, Tex., July 9.—Activities of the Kyffhauser bund, a secret organization of German World War veterans in Texas, were being investigated tonight by the Dies Congressional Committee.

Witnesses told the committee investigating un-American activities that the organization was formerly known as the Steel Helmets.

According to the committee officials, the bund is composed of German and American citizens who are German war veterans.

One witness told Representative Dies, chairman of the committee, that the Kyffhauser Bund has some 60 members in Houston. Most of the members are skilled workers in the oil industry. A national headquarters for the organization is maintained in Philadelphia, it was said.

Paid Way to Germany

Hans Ackermann, editor of the Texas Herold, official bund organ, and his wife Frieda, were called before the committee this afternoon. It was reported that Ackermann testified he and his wife were given transportation to Germany in July, 1939, by a Dr. Naumann. He was unable to give Naumann's first name.

Ackermann, it was learned, testified that Dr. Naumann had been an oil operator in Texas, later returning to Germany, whence he was transferred to Rumania. He said he could not find his file of correspondence with Dr. Naumann concerning the trip.

The committee investigators have in their possession a purported membership roster of the Kyffhauser Bund. One heading for cataloguing information was "member's ability to do confidential work." The bund's alleged program of activities included promotion of regular rifle and pistol practice among the members, according to investigators.

Ackermann was reported to have testified that the swastika was on display at meetings in Houston. When bund meetings were visited by crew members of German ships the swastika was saluted and the Nazi anthem, "Horst Wessel," was sung.

German Arrested at Balboa

Balboa, Canal Zone, July 9 (AP).—Emil Wolff, a German citizen, was charged today with failing to register as an agent of the German government and with acting as a courier for Germany without previously notifying the State Department.

District Attorney J. J. McGuigan said Wolff acted "as a courier between the German consulates in San Francisco and Valparaiso, Chile." He was held in $12,000 bail.

Nazi Agent Seized

Los Angeles, July 9 (AP).—William Fleet Palmer, acting United States attorney, said today he would confine presentation of evidence to a Federal grand jury to charges against Dr. Herbert Hoehne.

Hoehne was arrested last week as he was about to leave by air for Panama and Argentina and charged with being a German government agent without having registered as such.

Palmer reported, after telephone consultations with State Department officials in Washington, that he would not take up with the grand jury the asserted connection of Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, German consul general at San Francisco, and Herman Loeper, chancellor of the consulate general, with Hoehne's activities.

Arthur H. Howell, Naturalist, Stricken in National Museum

Noted Author, Member of U. S. Biological Survey, Suffers Cerebral Hemorrhage; Condition Critical, Says Hospital Report

Arthur H. Howell, noted naturalist, author and for 40 years a member of the United States Biological Survey, was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage shortly after 11 a. m. yesterday.

Mr. Howell collapsed while doing research work at the National Museum, Tenth street and Constitution avenue northwest. He became unconscious while preparing to go to his home at 2919 South Dakota avenue northeast.

At Emergency Hospital a diagnosis revealed that the 68-year-old scientist was paralyzed on his right side. He was unable to speak. He was immediately put in care of his physician, Dr. Gregg C. Birdsall. Hospital authorities said his condition was critical.

Mr. Howell for the past 40 years had divided his time between the offices of the survey and a first-floor office in the museum.

Especially noted at the survey as one of its foremost mammalogists, Mr. Howell was the leader of many expeditions. In 1903 he was in charge of an exploration into Texas and New Mexico to locate and type survey specimens.

U. S. May Supply Food to Greenland For Its Products

Copyright by New York Times

The United States and Greenland, Danish colony cut off from its Nazi-dominated homeland, will reach a commercial agreement with the United States buying Greenland's products and supplying that island with foodstuffs and needed supplies, officials indicated today.

The governor of North Greenland, Eske Brun, and a group of Danish officials connected with the administration of Greenland, arrived in Boston yesterday accompanied by James K. Penfield, American Consul to Greenland. They were met by a representative of the Secretary of State, and will come here.

Brun and his associates are visiting the United States to discuss economic matters "pertaining to the trade and commerce of Greenland, which, for the time being, has been diverted from Denmark by the interruption of direct communication with the mother country," the State Department said.

Naval Commander Urges U. S. to Take Off Kid Gloves

Denver, July 9 (AP).—"The bases from which we can threaten a foreign power effectively, or by controlling which we can prevent his threatening us, are overseas," Commander H. M. Mullinix, of the San Diego Naval Air Station, told the National Aeronautic Association tonight.

He added that the United States "must forego the luxury of being too magnanimous to take an 'unfair' advantage of a potential enemy" if any threat is made against "our commercial, industrial or political well-being."

Asserting this Nation should "take any measures necessary to protect and to advance, by force if necessary, the principles upon which this Nation was founded," Mullinix added "the most effective means . . . of defending rich foreign trade, overseas interests and outlying bases is a naval defense."

Utah Mine Workers Win Increase in Pay

Salt Lake City, July 9 (U.P.).—Intervention of John R. Steelman, director of the United States conciliation service, tonight brought an agreement between Utah mine operators and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers less than an hour after negotiations appeared hopelessly deadlocked.

A contract signed included a wage increase for 5,000 mine workers.

The Gallup Poll

Military Training Favored by Small Majority Of Young Men Despite Youth Congress Attack

By Dr. George Gallup,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., July 9.—Does the resolution adopted by the American Youth Congress condemning conscription represent the typical attitude of American young men?

DR. GALLUP

The Congress, besides opposing compulsory military training, unanimously adopted a report by its national chairman criticizing the defense program as designed to "Hitlerize" the country.

National surveys by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicate, however, that opposition to conscription does not represent the typical attitude of the young men of America. While there are divisions of opinion, nevertheless a small majority of those aged 21 through 25 are in favor of compulsory military training for one year for all able-bodied young men.

52 Per Cent Are in Favor

That issue was put to the country in a survey as follows:

"Do you think every able-bodied young man 20 years old should be made to serve in the Army or the Navy for one year?"

Those persons in the sample, aged 21 through 25, voted as follows:

Yes	52%
No	48

This compares with a vote of 64 per cent for conscription among all voters throughout the country.

In a companion survey, the Institute sought to find what branch of the fighting forces American men of military age—21 to 46—would prefer to serve in if they had to fight. Several recruiting offices report that the Navy and airforce seem to appeal to young volunteer recruits as more adventurous and glamorous than the Regular Army. But what would be the choice if all men of military age, and not merely young volunteers out to see the world, were questioned?

Most Prefer Army

The Institute asked a cross-section of men aged 21 to 46:

"If the United States were attacked by some foreign country, which branch of the armed forces would you prefer to serve in?"

Only about 1 in every 10 (11 per cent) expressed no choice. The rest divided as follows:

Would prefer Army	44%
Would prefer Airforce	29
Would prefer Navy	24
Others	3

The reason why the Army is preferred is clearly shown in the explanations given by voters for their choice. Most typical of the majority is the statement of a New York businessman who served in the Army in 1917-18.

"I'd join the Army. It's closer to normal conditions of living than any other branch. I don't want to be up in the air, or out at sea. I want to be on the ground."

Another voter, a farmer in Magnolia, Miss., expressed it this way:

"The Army's the place for me—you can't drown and you don't have to bail out in parachutes."

The Airforce Reasons

Those who pick the airforce give two reasons:

"There's always lots of action in the airforce."

"I've always wanted to fly and learn something about aviation."

It is interesting to note that the number of men in the poll who would prefer the airforce constitutes about one-third of the total. This is almost exactly the proportion of men used by the Nazis in the air wing of their armed forces, and, according to military experts, is about the correct ratio for a modern army to have.

Men who have a preference for the Navy point to the fact that it means a chance to travel, that it involves less physical hardship than the Army, and that it is more colorful and glamorous than packing a rifle and marching along dusty roads.

Definite Ideas

One especially interesting sidelight of the survey is that nearly all the men questioned had a definite idea as to what branch of the fighting forces they were best qualified by experience to join. Very few said they did not care, or that they would be willing to do anything which came along. There was a tendency for men familiar with mechanics to want to join mechanized divisions, professional men, such as lawyers and doctors, felt they could be more useful in the Army than in the other branches. Men who have had R. O. T. C. training in high school or college said they would prefer to join the Army.

One farmer, a man of 37, in Paris, Ill., has already made up his mind that he wants to join the tank corps. His reason: "I'd be good at that because I'm used to driving a tractor on my farm." Another young man who is a mortician in Hillsboro, Ohio, flatly declared he would join the "embalmer's corps," though he did not indicate whether he thought any such corps existed.

Variance by Age Groups

The interviewers engaged in the survey found interesting differences among young men and older men. Those over 30 years of age were much more anxious to join the Army than those under 30 years, and much less anxious to join the Navy or the airforce. The desire to "stay on the ground" seems to increase with age.

Men Under 30
Prefer Army	34%
Prefer airforce	34
Prefer Navy	29
Others	3
Men 30-45
Prefer Army	50%
Prefer airforce	26
Prefer Navy	22
Others	3

Those who wanted to serve in some capacity other than the Regular Army, Navy or airforce generally mentioned the secret service, or propaganda work or expressed a desire to serve as Army chaplains.

Martin Made National Chairman And Campaign Chief by Willkie

Candidate Names Hamilton to Be Executive Director

Before leaving Washington for his Colorado vacation, Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, named Representative Joseph W. Martin as national committee chairman and campaign manager; appointed former Chairman John D. M. Hamilton to the post of executive director, and assigned nearly 50 key Republicans, representing every element in the party, to positions in the new campaign set-up.

Managers of opposing Republican candidates, as well as his own pre-convention representatives, were well represented.

As his personal representative, Willkie retained Russell Davenport, former managing editor of Fortune magazine, while Oren Root, jr., young New York attorney, who organized the first Willkie clubs, was placed in charge of these organizations.

Pryor Is Vice Chairman

Four national committee vice chairmen appointed were Samuel F. Pryor, jr., of Connecticut; Walter S. Hallahan, of West Virginia; Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, of Indiana, and Mrs. Elsie Fitzsimmons, of Rhode Island.

The proposed "three men strategy board" was discarded, but the special advisory committee headed by Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, convention keynoter, was retained. Among additions to this group were Howard Lawrence, of Michigan, Senator Vandenberg's preconvention manager, and Kenneth Simpson, of New York, who broke with Dewey before the convention. Stassen, head of the advisory group, will arrive today to confer with Martin and has called a meeting of his committee for tomorrow.

To the executive committee of the national committee, headed by Sinclair Weeks, of Massachusetts, Willkie named Dewey's preconvention manager, J. Russell Sprague, and Taft's former manager, David S. Ingals. Creager, Taft's floor manager, was absent from Willkie's list.

Reappointed to the national committee were C. B. Goodspeed, treasurer; Harold W. Mason, secretary, and Henry P. Fletcher, general counsel.

Executive Committee

Appointed to the executive committee were:

Weeks, chairman; Robert Burroughs, New Hampshire; Sprague; Daniel E. Pomeroy, New Jersey; Daniel O. Hastings, Delaware; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Pennsylvania; Ingalls; Mrs. Bertha Baur, Illinois; Harrison Spangler, Iowa; Mrs. Horace Sayre, Oklahoma; William Knowland, California; Ezra Whitle, Idaho; Mrs. Chris Carlson, Minnesota; Mrs. Della Urquhart, Washington; B. Carroll Reece, Tennessee, and Harvey Jewett, South Dakota.

Added to Stassen's advisory committee were:

John E. Jackson, of New Orleans; William Stern, of North Dakota; E. J. Bennet, Utah; Lawrence, Simpson, Miss Sophia M. R. O'Hara, Pennsylvania, and Roger Straus, New York. Thomas G. Nutter, of Charleston, W. Va., and William King, of Chicago, were added to the committee to work for colored votes. Simms, one of Demey's preconvention managers, and Ingalls had been named previously to the advisory group.

Hallahan, heading the national committee group which ratified the appointments, said Willkie would meet the Nation's problems "on a similar basis" and "we will not have a one-man show in this country as we have had for the past eight years."

Aluminum Officials, Union to Meet Again

Officials of the Aluminum Co. of America announced last night they had agreed to another meeting with agents of the Aluminum Workers Union (C. I. O.) tomorrow at Pittsburgh to discuss the union's demand for a 10 cent an hour wage increase.

M. M. Anderson, personnel director of the company, however, reported no change in its position on the union's demand.

Anderson said he held conferences of an explanatory nature with officials of the National Defense Commission, adding that the company felt obligated to explain its position to its principal customer.

There was no indication of the cause of the crash.

Farley Still A Candidate, He Declares

Roosevelt Will Keep Plans Secret Until Convention, He Hints

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 9.—James A. Farley indicated today that President Roosevelt might withhold his answer to the third term question until the Democratic National Convention next week.

Farley, chairman of the party's National Committee, learned what the President had in mind at a talk last Sunday in Hyde Park, N. Y., but still declined to reveal it. But he did hint that Mr. Roosevelt might remain silent until the convention was under way when he said at a press conference:

"I wasn't asked to keep it secret, but both the President and I thought it best to keep confidential what we said to each other. It seems to me that everyone wants to read the last chapter of the book first. We're going to have a convention here and I hope it will be an interesting one."

Still in the Race

Developments only increased speculation among early arrivals for the quadrennial meeting, opening next Monday in the Chicago stadium. Figuring in the discussions was Farley's own role. Asked whether his name would be placed in nomination, he replied:

"My position remains unchanged."

It was recalled that he had asserted last March that his name would be presented to the delegates.

Asked if he would consider running for Vice President, he said:

"I think it would be very foolish of me to discuss the Vice Presidency before it was offered to me."

The national chairman expressed the opinion that nominating probably would begin on Thursday and that the deliberations would end by Saturday night. That would mean six days of sessions. Officials previously had counted on a five-day convention. The possible need of an extra day was not explained.

Bankhead, Barkley to Speak

While uncertainty prevailed among the Presidential handicappers, the major events on the early part of the program were arranged definitely. Farley announced that Speaker Bankhead would deliver the keynote address on Monday night and that Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the permanent chairman, would speak on Tuesday night. The arrangements committee was scheduled to meet tomorrow to complete its plans.

Supporters of two definite contenders for the Presidential nomination, Vice President Garner and Senator Wheeler, of Montana, pressed their on-the-scene campaigns at headquarters in Loop hotels.

Paul V. McNutt, Federal security administrator, was expected to arrive here Thursday. His managers have rented rooms in the Stevens Hotel.

Meanwhile, the Congress Hotel housed a minor mystery. A spokesman reported that "Democratic headquarters in Washington" had reserved the Presidential suite for next week. But he didn't know who would occupy it.

A. T. & T. Engineer Named to Staff Of Defense Board

W. H. Harrison, vice president and chief engineer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., yesterday was named to the staff of the National Defense Advisory Commission.

The appointment was announced by William S. Knudsen, who has charge of defense production problems. Harrison will be director of construction under Knudsen.

At the same time, Sidney Hillman, defense commission member in charge of labor problems, named Dr. Robert C. Weaver to assist him in integrating colored persons into the training and industrial phases of the defense program. Weaver is now a special assistant in the United States Housing Authority.

Leaders Convinced Roosevelt Will Run

conference as Republican national chairman.

"He's so available, that we haven't even thought of the Democrats running anybody else."

Friends of other Democratic possibilities, save only Postmaster General Farley, who wasn't saying, apparently felt the same way.

Among Democrats close to the White House still without word-of-mouth knowledge who have so concluded were reported to be Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, Federal Security Administrator McNutt, Brig. Gen. (Pa) Watson and even Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

But President Roosevelt, in high spirits, turned aside or parried a half-dozen well-directed press conference queries. One was an "iffey" question, another was too crude and another concerned a radio debate that would come after his bedtime. There would be no point, he laughed, in supplying third term information for a program he couldn't hear.

Capitol Democrats were talking only about Vice Presidential material to run with "the boss." The name on most lips for that post was Associate Justice William O. Douglas. The first murmurs of opposition to Douglas were heard in Democratic conservative ranks, and the President's ability to name him was questioned. At the SEC, Douglas' former headquarters, Democratic researchers were calling all day for biographical material.

From third-term-conscious Washington, Republican Nominee Willkie, joined at the airport with his wife, at 1:45 p. m., took a fast plane for Colorado Springs for "some sleep."

In less than two days he had perfected a Republican campaign organization dividing honors with major preconvention contenders, had met and struck a friendship with his running mate, McNary, had paid an informal visit to Republican headquarters and had pushed unheralded into a downtown bookstore to purchase vacation reading.

Some three hours later, House Minority Leader Martin, the 55-year-old bachelor whose hobby is "work" and whose goal is "a Republican President and House of Representatives," spoke officially for the first time in his new payless post as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Martin said Republicans will "organize everybody who wants to help in the campaign to put Willkie over—we won't neglect anyone or any group."

A reporter said Representative Allen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, was willing to organize anti-third-term Democrats for Willkie and Martin said "fine." He said Republicans shouldn't make an effort to organize anti-third term Democrats—"they will organize themselves."

Chairman Martin indicated Republican headquarters will be divided three ways between Washington, where he will head it, New York and Chicago.

Would he win any Southern States? In Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, Missouri and Tennessee Willkie would be a "dangerous candidate" but I don't say now he will carry any of them.

New England? If the election were held today he thought Willkie would sweep New England "overwhelmingly" against Roosevelt, and there would be no use in the Democrats campaigning there.

Would some Republicans desert Willkie because he had been a Democrat? Anyone who voted Republican in 1936 and 1938 would vote Republican this time—"we're on the uptrend."

Martin said he would consent to a one-week Congressional recess for the Democratic Convention until July 22, but would fight any effort to recess until July 29. He plans to stay in Washington.

The Republican campaign, he said, is "on now," but "the fireworks will start after Labor Day."

The White House press conference was baited for third term comment, as were questions asked all Roosevelt callers.

Federal Security Administrator McNutt had stopped in to talk over a social security plank. McNutt said he thought he had known what was in the President's mind for some time, and I "haven't changed that idea." McNutt has been urging that the President run.

House Rules Committee Chairman Sabath called to tell the President it would be "useless" for even him to try to stop his nomination. He said the President merely laughed and said he did not know whether he would go to Chicago. Sabath said Roosevelt is going to be nominated and elected—"I will stake my life on it."

The third-term cross-examination resumed as the press conference opened.

A reporter recalled a bet of $300 to $200 made by Gen. Watson with Ambassador John Cudahy to Belgium that the President would run. The President smiled that whoever won, the money would go into good hands.

Another newsman recalled Mr. Roosevelt's former assertion that whatever he had to say on that question would come at a time and place of his choosing, and asked whether "that time and place may come before the Democratic convention."

This, Mr. Roosevelt laughed, was a very, very "iffey" question.

Another asked him point blank who was his choice for Vice President, and he dismissed this as too crude.

Questioned about Monday's call of Massachusetts Democrats urging a third term, he said each had made nice little speeches but he had not said whether he was impressed.

Meantime in Houston, Tex., Col. R. B. Creager, Republican convention floor manager for Senator Taft, told the Associated Press the President made a definite statement that he would not be a third-term candidate. Creager said this information came to him from the man to whom the President made the statement that "under no circumstances will I be a candidate to succeed myself."

Flying westward, Willkie paused at Chicago to comment on the announcement by Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, that requests have been received for an investigation of "alleged high-pressure telegram campaign" in behalf of Willkie. Willkie said it indicated Democrats "are worried," adding "he can investigate forever."

Hull, Japanese Envoy Expect Settlement

Shanghai Incident Will Be Resolved Amicably, They Say

Settlement of the Shanghai incident, arising from the arrest of 16 Japanese gendarmes by American marines will be effected by the local authorities of both countries, Secretary of State Hull and Kensuke Horinouchi, the Japanese Ambassador, said yesterday.

Secretary Hull said at his press conference that he had received no communication from the Japanese government regarding the incident and that the information available from American officials in Shanghai was still incomplete.

There is usually enough prudence and reasonableness among the local officials to work out matters such as the Shanghai incident, he said, adding that he hoped that the local officials would in future maintain a similar attitude.

Envoy Not Informed

Ambassador Horinouchi, who called to see A. A. Berle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State, on a shipping matter, also expressed the opinion that the matter would be cleared up by the local authorities. He said that he had had no word from his Government on the Shanghai incident, nor had he been given any details officially.

The Japanese government is greatly concerned about the new licensing provisions for export of supplies and machine tools used in national defense, the ambassador said, but he declined to speculate on how the provisions would affect trade between the nations.

Meanwhile the American Government continued to keep a close watch on developments at the French island of Martinque, where British and French warships are stationed.

Both President Roosevelt and Hull said that there was no new information on the situation. Count Rene de Saint-Quentin conferred with the President for 20 minutes yesterday, but neither would say whether the Martinque question came up in the discussion.

Hull said that it had been ascertained that a number of British naval vessels were standing by in the vicinity of the French island, but that there was some question as to whether these vessels were maintaining a blockade of the island, as French sources here had reported, or merely observing. According to French sources there was no danger of an immediate conflict between the two former allies within the American neutrality zone.

Cartel a Failure, Say Nazis

Berlin, July 9 (AP).—Authorized Nazi economic sources expressed belief today that President Roosevelt's Saturday declaration on the Monroe Doctrine meant that the United States was withdrawing into its own shell in the economic sphere.

They said plans of the United States for a Pan-American cartel which were to have been launched at the Havana conference opening July 20 apparently had failed because South American countries considered Europe still their principal market.

These sources said they expected the Roosevelt Administration now to direct its chief energies to solution of domestic problms.

Axis Observers Expected

Havana, Cuba, July 9 (AP).—Reports circulated here today that Germany and Italy would designate eight unofficial observers to report to their governments the proceedings at the Pan-American conference of foreign ministers in Havana, July 20.

House May Vote On Measure Today Or Tomorrow

Bitter debate among House Democrats yesterday marked the long-delayed arrival on the floor of legislation to extend the Hatch Act to limit political activities of State and local employes on Federally financed projects.

Representative Dempsey (Democrat), of New Mexico, House sponsor of the bill, called the measure "a new bill of rights," freeing thousands of Government workers from the threat of political coercion. He predicted a 3-1 majority for the bill when it comes to a vote today or tomorrow.

Opponents of the bill, led by Representative Hobbs (Democrat), of Alabama, contended that the measure would frighten great numbers of voters from the polls and turn over election control to the "ring politicians."

The present bill, a companion to the original Hatch Act forbidding political activity by Federal employes, would ban State or local employes who are partly paid by Federal funds from active part in political campaigns. It also would limit individual contributions to political parties to $5,000 and forbid expenditures of more than $3,000,000 by a political party in any one year.

Offer No Objection

House opponents of the bill, which already has Senate approval, offered no objetcion to the Dempsey resolution limiting debate to four hours. Half the time was consumed yesterday.

"I don't know of one Federal employe who would give up the protetcion of the Hatch Act and go back to the old chaotic conditions," Demsey said.

Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, suggested an amendment to "keep hirelings of the public utilities, which are supposed to be regulated by the Federal Government, from influencing political campaigns."

A chorus of laughter greeted the proposal from Rankin, who has risen in the House almost daily since the Republican nomination of Wendell Willkie to denounce the "power trust." Dempsey replied that the bill's purpose "is to free Federal employes—it has nothing to do with a private individual."

Calls It Communistic

Representative Fitzpatrick (Democrat), of New York, charged that the bill takes from a large group of citizens "the right to make their opinion known." He called the measure "the first step to dictatorship" and "the nearest thing to communism I've ever heard of."

The minority report of the House Judiciary Committee, opposing the bill, was described by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Illinois, as a "saddening" and "intemperate" document. The measure represents nothing more than an effort to apply "the code of sportsmanship" to politics, he said.

"Talking about sportsmanship in connection with this infamous bill is the height of absurdity," Representative Hobbs declared. "This bill would turn over to the ring politicians not only control over who shall vote but over how they shall vote."

O'Conor Maps State Defense Plan Survey

Will Name Commission To Study All Phases, Governor Says

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., July 9.—Gov. O'Conor, asserting that Maryland has "a big role to play in the national defense program," today outlined a broad base of study for his projected State defense commission.

The Governor said the "small group of military and civil experts" whom he would appoint soon would "study every aspect of the State's part in the national defense program" and make every effort to coordinate its work with the Federal program.

O'Conor said it was "certain" that the commission would investigate the "fifth column menace." It also will survey the military needs and resources of the State and probably conduct "some sort of educational program," the Governor said.

O'Conor said he expected shortly to attend a conference of Governors with War Department and Justice Department officials and added that "Maryland's program will depend very largely on the results of that conference."

"I am not an alarmist," the Governor said, "but I believe in being safe rather than sorry. Maryland has, I believe, a big role to play in the national defense program. We must not allow anything to interfere with us in playing that role."

Tick Bite Kills First Victim Of Year in D. C.

2 Deaths at Same Time In 1939; Health Expert Gives Warning, Advice

The District yesterday reported its first death this year from Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Only case so far this year, the death occurred recently, according to Health Officer George C. Ruhland. The record of the disease so far, however, compares favorably with last year when seven cases and two deaths had been reported by July 8. One fatal case has also been reported in Montgomery County.

Dr. Ruhland gave two reasons for the decrease in cases, these being "a growing tick-consciousness" and fewer outings because of cool weather. The disease is acquired from the bite of an infected tick popularly known as the dog tick, he said.

Dr. James G. Cumming, chief of the bureau of preventable diseases, said the tick usually requires from six to eight hours of contact with the human body before it infects the person with the virus of spotted fever.

The health officer said the best preventive is to examine the body and clothing after exposure to ticks which may be encountered in and around Washington's wooded areas. If ticks are found they should be removed promptly but not with the bare hands. Dr. Ruhland said a clean piece of gauze should be used between the fingers while removing the pest. Pinchers may also be used to advantage. Use iodine for where bitten.

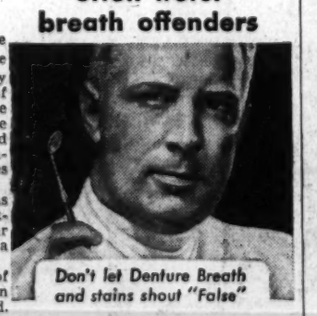
FALSE TEETH WEARERS often worst breath offenders



Don't let Denture Breath and stains shout "False"

Dentists say—use POLIDENT

A thin dark film collects on plates and bridges. This film soaks up odors and impurities like a sponge! It holds germs and decay bacteria... gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. And it's so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it.

Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, a powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor.

Grateful Users Praise It

Polident makes breath sweeter—plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene.

Long-lasting can only 30¢, any drug store. Money back if not delighted. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere. Hudson Products, Inc., N. Y.

POLIDENT

NO BRUSHING
Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse—and it's ready to use.

Trader, Nazi Refugee, Becomes U. S. Citizen

Ex-Soldier Starts Anew After Term In Reich Prison

By the Associated Press

New York, July 9.—The dream of a man who watched through Nazi prison bars the collapse of his great shipping empire came true today when Arnold Bernstein became a citizen of the country which gave him refuge and a new career.

The transatlantic ship operator who fought on the German side in the World War took the oath of American allegiance in United States District Court.

Then he said:

"I am too happy for words. All I can say is that for the first time in many years I feel that I am really a free man again."

Up from scratch in postwar Germany, Bernstein built a thriving ocean trade, guiding from Hamburg the Arnold Bernstein and Red Star lines plying the North Atlantic.

Nine vessels carried 80,000 tons of freight at the peak of the former soldier's career. It was snapped off in 1937 by the Nazi regime's strict exchange laws.

Bernstein, then Germany's only Jewish shipping man, was arrested, stripped of his holdings, sentenced to two and one-half years in prison and fined $400,000.

Released last summer, he came to the United States, where he had established residence in 1933.

Nine months ago he hired one employe, a secretary, and picked up the threads of his career.

Now 51, Bernstein operates ships under various flags but again has his own name on the office door as president of a new Bernstein Line, already well launched.

He lives quietly now in New York's East Sixties with his wife and their 19-year-old daughter, Stephanie. Their son, Reinhardt, 18, attends the University of Richmond.

Recently Bernstein summed up his feelings:

"You have to have been on the other side to know what a piece of luck it is just to be an American in America."

After All, Corot Used Red, Too

New York, July 9 (INS).—The three allegedly communistic 30-foot WPA murals that had adorned the walls of the administration building at Floyd Bennett Airport, were finally removed tonight by a combination of elbow grease soap, water and paint remover.

August Henkel, ousted WPA worker who created the censured murals, declared that the picture which WPA Administrator Brehon P. Somervell, termed a picture of Joseph Stalin, was in reality a painting of Franz Reichfelt, Austrian tailor and pioneer aviator, killed in a leap from the Eiffel Tower in 1912 during an experimental parachute leap.

2 Mints Step Up Coin Production

What with new taxes, better business and increased use of coin slot machines, it takes a lot more money to keep this Nation going.

Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint, knows this well for yesterday she ordered the Philadelphia and Denver mints to go on a 24-hour basis and the San Francisco mint on a 16-hour-a-day basis.

Exhaustion of practically all stocks of coins due to unusually heavy demand in recent months was the reason, Mrs. Ross said.

Rep. Burdick's Manual Lists the Hobbies of 243 Congressmen

The tendency of one Congressman to look like another is responsible for a unique directory circulated yesterday among members of the House.

Representative Burdick, of North Dakota, author of a mimeographed manual listing the hobbies of 243 of his colleagues, explained last night that his early days in the House were clouded by the difficulty in telling Congressmen apart.

One legislator who gave him trouble was Representative Lesinski, of Michigan, Burdick recalled. "But one day I asked him about his hobbies. He told me he collected dogs and I never had any trouble placing him after that."

Sent Out Questionnaire

Applying this principle to the entire House membership, or as many as would answer his questionnaire, Burdick compiled a list of Congressional pastimes ranging from bottle collecting to "general sports fan."

Representative Romjue, of Missouri, volunteered the information that he "raises the best mules in America and names them after my colleagues." Fritz Lanham, of Texas, is listed as an author of poetry and "expert juggler."

Athletic activities of the House include wrestling, tennis and running a dude ranch. William Lambertson, of Kansas, likes "playing golf barefooted."

Texan Visits Colleges

Lindley Beckworth, of Texas, "visits colleges;" J. Parnell Thomas, of New Jersey, collects Currier & Ives prints, and Albert Gore, of Tennessee is an "old-time fiddler."

Modestly classified as "singers" are Representatives Woodrum, of Virginia; Rabout, of Michigan, and Tibbott, of Pennsylvania. Representative Bender, of Ohio, "sings old hymns."

The Burdick directory shows 40 Representatives as lovers of "hunting and fishing." Thirty-two are listed as book collectors, including Sol Bloom, of New York, who is tersely described as a "Washingtonia collector."

There are three airplane pilots in the House, four artists, seven authors, four cane collectors, two prospectors, two pigeon fanciers, three violin collectors, two mountain climbers and two students of child welfare.

Representative Murdock, of Arizona, is listed under "cooking," with the further explanation, "specialist on steaks."

2 Stratoliners Span Continent In Record Time

New York, July 9 (A.P.).—Two giant new airliners raced through the stratosphere today and spanned the Nation—from east to west and west to east—in record time.

Inaugurating upper level coast-to-coast passenger flights for Transcontinental and Western Air Express, the west-east stratoliner, four-motored, 23-ton, $450,000 Boeing craft, landed at LaGuardia Airport from Los Angeles in 12 hours and 14 minutes. Previous best time on a scheduled passenger flight was 12 hours, 44 minutes.

A sister ship reached Los Angeles from New York at 10:42 a. m. (E. S. T.), in 14 hours and 9 minutes. The former transport record in scheduled flight, made in 1934, was 15 hours, 30 minutes.

Antitrust Probe Of Drug Industry Gets Under Way

An investigation of the drug industry was opened at Judiciary Square yesterday by the Department of Justice antitrust division.

About 20 firms selling medicines and surgical supplies were ordered to produce their records for scrutiny in connection with suspected violations of the antitrust laws. The inquiry covers wholesale and retail firms. Price fixing, special discounts and divisions of sales areas were among the practices being studied.

Special assistants to the Attorney General, John Henry Lewin, Parker W. Duncan and Kenneth L. Kimble, are conducting the inquiry. They have headquarters in the Police Court Building.

They Fight On

The refusal of King Haakon of Norway to abdicate, at the behest of the German-dominated parliament in Oslo, calls attention to the fact that other nations besides the members of the British Commonwealth of Nations are still at war with the Third Reich.

Since the present conflict began the German armies have overrun Poland, Denmark, Norway, the Netherlands and France. Leaving out Denmark, which never declared war against Germany, the only nation which has actually withdrawn from the conflict is France. The governments of the other belligerents mentioned have all found it necessary to abandon military resistance within their territories, and to surrender those fighting forces which could not be withdrawn. But their nations are still at war.

At first glance the difference between a wholly occupied nation and a completely conquered nation might seem to be a technicality. That, however, is far from being the truth. For in the former case, as long as Great Britain continues to fight, the loss of territory must be regarded as wholly temporary.

A similar situation obtained during the World War in the case of Belgium. That country was almost entirely overrun but continued to fight on from the outside until the Germans were forced to evacuate all the territory they had held for over four years.

With their governments outside the control of the conqueror, Poland, Norway, Belgium and the Netherlands continue as belligerents in this war much as Belgium did in the struggle of 1914-1918.

G. H. Q. Of The G. O. P.

In naming Representative Martin as his campaign manager, Wendell Willkie has made a choice that will commend itself to all of the diverse elements which it is now the task of the G. O. P. to harmonize in the interest of its candidate.

A straightforward, unassuming but extremely able individual, Joe Martin is wise in the ways of politics. He has been an unusually effective minority leader in the House. As chairman of the Republican Congressional campaign committee in 1938 he is given credit for much of his party's success in greatly increasing its membership in Congress that year. And his chairmanship of the Philadelphia convention last month was a model of tactful and efficient direction.

Mr. Martin will be chairman of the Republican National Committee as well as campaign manager. In the former post he replaces John D. M. Hamilton, whose services, however, the party will continue to retain as executive director of the national committee. This new office indicates that the responsibility for strategy and organization is to be divided, a rational functional division.

The appointment of Mr. Martin and the retention of Mr. Hamilton are balanced by the continued utilization of the services of Russell Davenport and Oren Root, jr., symbolic of those who were "for Willkie before Philadelphia." This nice synthesis of tested politicians and enthusiastic amateurs provides a G. H. Q. which is novel, interesting and appropriate for the dramatic campaign now getting under way.

A Rescue

It is a consolation to know that in these grim times some 30,000 men and women have been able to interest themselves seriously in the fate of the old Hammond-Harwood House at Annapolis. It is even more comforting to learn that they have now suceeded in rescuing that matchless edifice from the destruction that threatened it.

Since 1924 the title to this gem of colonial architecture has been held by St. John's College, under whose aegis the house was carefully restored and appropriately furnished. During the long period of depression, however, the maintenance of the house became an increasingly difficult burden for the college. A few months ago it seemed almost certain that this finest example of an eighteenth century domestic building would have to be sold—and demolished to make a site for another filling station!

But in a relatively brief campaign, the committee headed by Mrs. Miles White, of Baltimore, and vigorously supported by the garden clubs and other Maryland groups, was able to raise enough money to acquire the property in fee for the Hammond-Harwood House Association, which will doubtless have less difficulty than the college in finding means to preserve it.

It is possible, indeed, that the association has rendered an even greater service for posterity than some of the donors realize. Most of the finest surviving early Georgian residences are to be found in a few endangered cities of England and Ireland. But as long as the Hammond-Harwood house remains our children may have a true concept of the serene and classic spirit of that century which many now consider to have marked the high tide of Western civilization.

Shanghai Reminder

On Sunday, United States Marines in Shanghai arrested sixteen Japanese gendarmes, armed but dressed in civilian clothes, who had entered the American defense sector of the International Settlement in that great Chinese port without securing permission to do so.

The Japanese, it appears, resisted arrest, with the result that very minor injuries were inflicted on three of their number by the Marines, acting in the police capacity assigned to them under the treaties which regulate the government of the International Settlement. The Japanese army authorities acknowledge fault in not giving notification of their desire to send the gendarmes into the defense area. But they are bitterly critical of this country for the results which unfortunately followed from this mistake on their own part.

Justification for the arrest of the gendarmes is tacitly admitted by the Japanese. And as the arrested men were all released after a few hours detention there would be no reason for paying attention to the episode if it were not for the apparent desire of the Japanese military to magnify it into an international incident. The Marines at Shanghai, whose record is one of excellent discipline and admirable restraint under provocation, are roundly accused of using unnecessary violence toward the gendarmes "and even in some cases pulled their ears."

No reflection on Japanese veracity is intended by saying that this alleged action has the ring of improbability. In their time the United States Marines have pulled a good many legs, but pulling ears seems strongly out of character. If it were a matter of biting an ear, that would be something else again. Mayhem, however, is not charged.

Except for the inflamed condition of international relations everywhere, the charges brought by Japanese military spokesmen would seem slightly ridiculous. But as matters stand in the Far East almost any episode might be made to serve as an excuse for initiating policies of the most far-reaching significance.

Whether or not our Marines pulled Japanese ears in Shanghai, they have certainly turned toward Asia some American eyes which have of late been almost wholly concentrated on the European scene.

Debt Contrasts

A recent compilation shows that new State and municipal bond issues were but slightly in excess of retirements in 1939. Moreover, it seems likely that the total volume of State and local indebtedness has been declining for quite a number of years.

This improvement in the financial position of State and local governments at a time when the Federal Government continues to pile up huge deficits is due to a number of causes. An analysis of State financial trends, published by the New York Trust Co., attributes the stronger budgetary position first, to increased revenues, and secondly, to a reduction in local although not in State expenditures. Some of the increase in revenues is the result of higher tax yields accompanying rising business activity. But during the past few years many States have adopted new taxes, notably income and sales taxes. Furthermore, they have made more determined efforts to collect existing taxes.

Of course, the experience of individual States does not always follow the general trend. Net State and local indebtedness has risen in some cases, although the burden of State and local indebtedness has been declining as taxable income has risen. On the whole, the evidence reveals an encouraging trend toward budgetary balance in sharp contrast with the policy followed by the Federal Government.

While the States and their subdivisions deserve to be congratulated for the improved fiscal showing, praise should be tempered by the knowledge that the Federal Government is now paying for certain public services once regarded as State and local responsibilities. Federal grants-in-aid have supplemented State outlays for education, highways and other purposes, while Federal funds have been lavishly poured out for relief of the unemployed.

We can be thankful that the assistance thus rendered has helped to strengthen the financial position of the State and local governments. But it is well to remember that the problem of unbalanced budgets remains unsolved; it simply presents itself in the form of mounting Federal deficits.

An Intolerable Strike

As a result of the second strike within a year at the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co. the Federal Works Administrator has asked the Department of Justice to probe the underlying situation.

Mr. Carmody asks that this action be taken by the Attorney General in connection with his department's current investigation of monopoly control in building industries. It is a wholly reasonable request and it is to be hoped that Robert Jackson will flash the green light to Thurman Arnold without delay.

Last August some 5,000 men were thrown out of work and many important local building operations were involuntarily halted because of a strike involving 200 employes of the Smoot company. The failure of the parties involved to reach a prompt settlement of their dispute was then a community disgrace.

Repetition of the struggle at this time is more than a local disgrace. It is an intolerable affront to the Nation as a whole. For many of the building operations now threatened with stoppage are essential to the national defense program. And the public temper at present is not likely to tolerate sabotage of this program as a trifling matter.

If the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co. and its employes cannot operate without recurrent breakdowns of this sort some permanent substitution for their services will have to be found. The intricacies of this dispute are not a matter of public concern. But the necessity of eliminating it altogether is precisely that.

The official inquiry asked by Mr. Carmody is the first step. It should be made immediately. And the findings should include recommendations as to how the present strangle hold on the building industry in the National Capital can be permanently eliminated.

Strikes of this sort, undermining the French defense program, paved the way for the situation in which that country finds itself today. If the moral of that is not apparent to the parties to the present dispute they should at least realize that the lesson is clear for the public as a whole.

Starshine In St. Louis

Probably all the current gloating of Herr Hitler and his generals amounts to no more, either by weight or specific gravity, than the exultation of the National League ball players, club owners and their partisans after yesterday's great victory in St. Louis. A great deal of the humiliation under which the National League has been smarting for the past seven or eight years has now been thoroughly wiped out.

Although there was some grumbling about the method by which these particular stars were chosen, and more than a little grumbling about some conspicuous omissions from the line-ups of both sides, there is no doubt that the American Leaguers brought to the plate a most formidable galaxy of batters. It is equally beyond doubt that these mighty ones were as impotent as babes before the masterful Messrs. Derringer, Walters, Wyatt and Hubbell.

For the rest it seems to have been a very pretty ball game with, as might have been expected, beautiful defensive play on both sides. There are some, no doubt, who will argue that if Mr. Ruffing had been a little less absent minded in the first inning, when he threw the home-run ball to Mr. Max West, the game might have gone on and on. But all the virtue that resides in an "if" has been remarked before this.

Anyhow, it will be at least two and a half months before supercilious sports writers will dare again to refer to the National League as "our most prominent minor league."

"You have only one chance in 40,000,000,000 of drawing a perfect bridge hand," asserts a mathematician. The chance of drawing a perfect bridge partner is only slightly greater.

A Georgia farmer claims the boll weevil ate up his mail box. They probably got desperately hungry while waiting for a check from the Government in payment for crop reduction.

Roads Of Adventure

From the Christian Science Monitor

Traveling in Great Britain is rapidly taking on aspects of an adventure. With the removal of signposts, it is no longer easy for the motorist to find his way. No longer is the traveler tempted to murmur "impossible" when he is confronted at a Yorkshire crossroads with the injunction, "Jump, 2 miles." Nor does he wince at the sign pointing the way to the Ugley Men and Women's Institute. Even shop signs that indicate the names of places are being removed.

Thus the motorist, pampered too long perhaps by automobile-association route maps, road patrols, and signposts, takes a leap back into the conditions of an exciting past, and often enough does not know where he is going, nor when he has got there. More and more, writes a Londoner to the Monitor, the British motorist is realizing the deep comfort to be got from Stevenson's remark that "To travel hopefully is better than to arrive." For the one is now much easier to do than the other.

Opposes Conscription

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One consideration seemingly is being completely overlooked by the advocates of universal compulsory military service.

Any such measure as the proposed Burke-Wadsworth bill would put free weapons into the hands of every Nazi, Communist and Fifth Columnist in the country, and of their sympathizers, whether open or unavowed, and train them in the expert use of arms, thus greatly helping that "bloody revolution within five years" which Gene Tunney predicts.

The Russian revolution, which destroyed the ruling classes and their capitalist government, bringing the Communists into power, was made possible only by the fact that the populace were given military training when their rulers forced them into the first World War.

Before similar measures here are so recklessly urged it might be well to consider the possibility that the well-meaning advocates of enforced military service may be being influenced by one of the most subtle and insidious forms of fifth columnist propaganda.

Such devices as oaths of allegiance and flag saluting would be no protection against the dangers of indiscriminate arming, for naturally the enemies inside any land are the first to wrap themselves in its flag and give lip service to patriotism. T. H. RUSSELL.

Real Preparedness

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We are all seeking a way out of our dilemma. "Preparedness" is the word of the hour. We hear it on every tongue. But may it not be that we are putting too much confidence in navies, tanks, bombing planes, etc? This "preparedness" is for force to meet force. Are we not forgetting the real "preparedness?" Would it not be well to remember that our real strength does not lie in these things?

Why not try God's way? Have we not forgotten that "our help cometh from the Lord?" Too many Americans have forgotten God. We seem not to remember that the foundations of this Republic were laid deep in prayer and faith in the God of the Bible. Have we not broken faith by our careless, prayerless ways?

Fellow Americans, let us return to God and the ways that please Him. This will assure our peace.

Civic Pride

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I, as an ardent admirer of Washington, point out that the harvest season for the Capital parks' multi-millioned weed crop would seem to be at hand. I do not know whether this perennial crop represents a money value or not, but I am convinced that its eradication would mean a marked increase in value from the standpoint of city beautification.

Also from the municipal housekeeping point of view, I wonder if a more strict policy of street and sidewalk litter-prevention, instead of a too laissez-faire one of correction might not be worth attempting. The rather pig-sty custom of strewing newspapers and peanut shells on otherwise lovely lawns is far from desirable. W. D.

Willkie's Opportunity

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If Wendell Willkie is really what he talks like and looks like he may have the opportunity to change the whole trend of civilization and decide the fate of nations. Wendell Willkie has the personal magnetism of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, the eloquence of William Jennings Bryan and the shrewdness and knowledge of human nature of Abraham Lincoln. Who knows what is behind that smile and that shaggy brow? EDMOND FONTAINE.

Why Poland Lies Prostrate

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having always believed in the fairness of The Post, I was amazed at the references to Poland in the editorial of July 3, "Rumania Chooses Hitler."

The following: "Poland, the larger of these two artificially inflated countries, collapsed like a pricked bubble when the German armies marched last September," strangely reminds me of Molotoff's speech last fall which—if I remember correctly—was criticized by your paper, and it is greatly at variance with The Post's editorials during last September when my tragic country was defending her freedom against ruthless invaders.

I have before me "A Political and Cultural History of Modern Europe," by Carlton J. H. Hayes (Volume 2) published by the Macmillan Co., in 1939, which has, on pages 648-649, two maps of Poland. The one of 1771 shows Poland before the partitions; the other of 1921, gives the greatly shrunken boundaries of that formerly mighty state. Hence, far from being "inflated," it was on the contrary considerably deflated, nearly to half its former size.

Poland, "the feeble nation," held out in this "blitzkrieg" almost as long as France did, though smaller in area and population. They had less time and means for defense preparations; she had no Maginot Line, nor Belgium and Holland, to shield her at least temporarily; and—with the exception of a Czech Division which gave her assistance—Poland fought alone. You may recall that Warsaw was bombarded 27 days, and surrendered only after her ammunition was exhausted.

Poor Poland adhered to the code of honor, rather than self-interest, hence her tragedy in a world which derides that outworn conception of conduct; and that is why she lies prostrate today, trampled by her neighbors, with whom she had non-aggression treaties.

Those who sneer at the misfortune of an individual or a nation should remember Seneca's noble saying: "Res sacra miser." A. POLE.

Traffic Hazards

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heartily indorse your commendation of Congressman D'Alesandro's just criticism of Washington's variegated and illogical "system" of traffic lights. I also sympathize with your plea for safe traffic control at Wisconsin and Western, but permit me to add a plea for my own corner, or corners. Not so familiar with Wisconsin and Western, except for an occasional hazardous excursion into that territory, it cannot be any worse than the two intersections daily traversed, one at Van Ness and Reno road and the other at Van Ness and Connecticut avenue.

A steady stream of rushing cars makes it almost impossible for a pedestrian to cross Reno road at Van Ness in the "rush hours," and for a pedestrian to cross Connecticut at Van Ness at any time is an adventure to be dared only by the most intrepid and most agile. The shuttle bus which runs from Connecticut and Van Ness gives every 15 minutes a thrilling and absorbing exhibition of daring as it attempts to push its way across Connecticut avenue at Van Ness through traffic that never stops. A terrible tragedy will some day call the attention of traffic officials to these spots.

Lights at each of these corners are manifestly demanded by all the rules of traffic control and by common sense.

As for the Union Station Plaza! Before the installation of the weird "system" of lights now installed, it was terrifying enough but now it is a dreaded ordeal to drive a car to the depot. JAMES A. HOYT.

On Changing Horses

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am concerned as to how our Government, in dire world stress, would be saved if our leader is changed in the middle of the most turbulent stream of events the world has known.

It has always seemed to me fine and generous, as also a matter of duty, when persons who have held public office and have learned the methods that promote general good have, on leaving high positions to the next in command, continued to give their ability to help in any position available. This spirit I have admired in the French and British who, after occupying leading posts in their goverments, take office of lower rank where they can still be useful. How many men have been Presidents and Premiers of France and, on losing leadership, have returned to government service on a lower grade but giving helpful influence! And in Britain how often has a Prime Minister, his government dissolved, entered the cabinet of a successor to help as he could! This happened with but one of our public men—John Quincy Adams after being President went into Congress, where he served the rest of his life.

But why should an action of our first President, who, ill and worn after 36 years' service in war, in helping to establish a Nation and then in governing that Nation, and feeling unable to fill a third term in office, declined to run—why, I say, should that action be taken as intended to establish a rule against third-term office? Walter Lippmann has called it a rule. It was not made one, nor yet a tradition, though it has been so called to prevent a third term being considered. There was always another reason why continuation in office was not desired.

Students of history know that Andrew Jackson was implored to serve a third term and his sense of patriotic duty might have made him do so had he not been too ill to carry on. Since then no other President has left the country in such need of experience in leading it; thus no other has been more competent than his successor might be.

But now we need the leader who not only knows the world but is known by the other governments of the world—the world which is no longer just our United States of North America but is every land on the globe, and many of them trying to absorb us. Only experience can deal with them. We are in the middle of a wide, wide stream. Inexperience might turn about before we can cross and there might not be oxen at hand to pull us out.

The Post Impressionist

Incompleat Angler

I SEE by the papers that "weaks," hardheads and whatnots are biting fast and furiously on the lower Potomac and that Washington disciples of Walton, going down there in schools and droves, are returning home with abundant finny fruits of victory.

Now, man and boy in fresh water and salt, I have fished for everything from minnows and kivvers to blue sharks. I spent one entire summer sailing out of Gloucester on every sort of commercial fisherman from a gill-netter to a mackerel seiner, dragger, beam trawler and swordfishing schooner. I have fished from the Grand Banks of Newfoundland to the offshore canyons of Catalina; from Moosehead in Maine to Arrowhead in California.

But there will be no more fishing for me, and it's all on account of Waldo.

Waldo is—or was—my friend. Waldo had more negative thoughts about fishing than an alewife has bones. In the face of evidence and proof to the contrary, he could remain skeptical longer than a dozen Scotchmen being cajoled into buying a wildcat oil stock.

I took Waldo fishing. And that is why I no longer fish. I took Waldo to a little stream in the Blue Ridge Mountains where the trout, while no whopping monsters as brook trout go, are as game and scrappy as anything their size in the Appalachian range. I placed at Waldo's disposal my extensive collection of fishing paraphernalia—countless dry flies, rods, reels, lines, leaders. Nothing was left undone to make the trip a success.

But Waldo's piscatorial pursuits, it seems, had ended when he was 12 years old and his family had moved from their New England farm to some Massachusetts semimetropolis. Waldo had caught numberless pickerel and hornpout inhabiting the brackish creek "up the road apiece" from his farm home—generally with a 14-foot bamboo pole, at the tip of which was tied a length of linen line to which, in turn, was attached a cork float and a blued steel hook of the two-for-a-cent variety. Waldo's fishing finesse, therefore, was crude in the full meaning of the term. He had made no bones about this point.

"Fish," he remarked, as I donned wading boots, "are just as dumb as they look. There's no such thing as fishy intelligence."

"How's that again?"

"What I say," said Waldo. "Now, you take this business of creeping up to the bank, trying to make as little noise as possible."

"Why not?" I demanded. "Why scare 'em away?"

"They don't scare easily," Waldo averred with the air of one who knew. "Did you know that out West they fish on horseback?"

"Says which?" I really was surprised.

"Fish on horseback. Ride their horses right into the stream. Horses aren't feather-footed and they make a lot of noise. But that doesn't seem to bother the fish. And what's more," Waldo went on, emphatically, "some of those ranch ponies know as much as the fisherman about handling a hooked fish."

"How's that?"

"Well, they've been trained to keep a tight lariat when handling a thrown calf, and they figure a steer and a fish aren't much different."

When you are using dry flies, you aim to cast lightly and keep the fly on the surface. In theory, the more naturally your feathered lure lands on the water, the more apt you are to get a rise from a hungry trout.

It didn't take Waldo long to disprove this theory—and that was only the beginning of a number of disconcerting demonstrations. Waldo made a cast, got a snarl in his line and eventually entangled it in his legs. The dry fly sank from sight, whereupon a voracious one-pounder gobbled it up. Waldo hauled in the line, hand over hand, and made his catch.

"You see," he announced triumphantly, flushed and panting, "anglers are dumb, but fishes are dumber."

"Scientists," he averred, a little later when, with creel still empty, I decided to change to a brown tackle, "have proved that all fish are color-blind."

"Waldo," I said, patiently, "that may be true, but it's my experience based on years of practice that if one sort of dry fly doesn't get results, another is apt to do it."

"All right," said Waldo, resignedly. Then a thought occurred to him. "Aren't there any big ones up here?"

"There are," I said. "The trick is to catch 'em."

"If you are going to use small flies," he pronounced with the air of an oracle, "you will never catch 'em."

"Why not?"

"It's like this," Waldo said. "Suppose you were starving. Every day, three times a day, you were sent to market a mile away to buy a thimbleful of hamburger. Would you do it?"

"I don't know," I said, glumly. "Would you?"

"No!" said Waldo. "I would not walk a total of 6 miles a day for three thimblefuls of hamburger. The energy expended to procure an insufficient supply of food would cause death by starvation much sooner than if you just sat down and awaited the end."

"The trouble with most fishermen," he said, as we drove homeward, "is that they spend too much time and money on ways and means to outsmart fish, which, basically, are dumber than the dumbest homo sapiens. And that's saying a lot."

Waldo had some grounds for the assertion, at that. He'd caught nine trout to my one.

And that, my friends, is why I gave up fishing.

Some Dictatorial Disagreements

THE ATTEMPT of the French to come to terms with their conquerors by setting up a Fascist government in France may give them for a short time the illusion that they are not really conquered, but have become one of the victorious gang. But sooner or later it is to be expected that ideology will prove to be less important than conflicting national interests, unless the Fascist ideology goes a lot further to the left than it has done already and merges into something indistinguishable from international socialism. This, too, is possible. But it has not happened yet.

THE BUILDING of Pan-Fascist Europe is being accomplished by the Hitler regime, but it is being done by a partnership, not by an individual, and with Russia as a not altogether silent partner. As long as there is anything left on the globe for the Fascist powers to conquer, the Axis will probably stick together. But it is a mistake, I believe, to think that eventually the various tendencies now latent and submerged will not manifest themselves openly.

HEINRICH HIMMLER
Has he sold the Red Revolution to Hitler?

The interests of Germany and Italy, of Italy and Russia, and of Russia and Germany are not identical. Mussolini certainly still cherishes his dream of a Roman Empire. In practical terms that means a Latin Union: Italy, France, Spain, Portugal, with control of the Mediterranean, Adriatic and Aegean Seas and the whole of Northern Africa and the Near East. In this Latin Union Italy considers herself the leader by reason of her Fascist "regeneration" and by reason of her "demographic dynamism."

Italian vital statisticians have been ready to present to every foreign correspondent figures to prove that Italy is rapidly becoming a more numerous nation than France, by reasons of her larger birth rate. I believe that it is true that there are some two million more Italians today between the ages of 20 and 45 than there are Frenchmen, even though the populations of the two countries at the outbreak of the war were approximately the same. Italy is "younger" than France, from a demographic viewpoint. And the French losses in the war, which are between one and two million men, will increase the discrepancy.

The Latin Union idea has existed for a long time. In 1935 it looked as if it might be possible to wean France away from England into close cooperation with Italy. Pierre Laval, in France, was the chief proponent of this idea. Laval was anti-English and thought highly of the "natural" racial" ties between France and Italy.

THE SUCCESS of the Eden policy at Geneva or, rather, the half success, which resulted in sanctions against Italy with the collaboration of France, but sanctions so half-heartedly applied that they were valueless in stopping the Ethiopian war, actually drove Mussolini into alliance with Hitler—an alliance that neither he nor the Italian people really welcomed. Mussolini at that time became convinced that his Latin Union could be achieved only by the conquest of France and her forcible detachment from the British alliance. The Italian-French union, which in 1935 might have been effected on some basis of equality—so runs the argument—now is effected forcibly under the leadership of Rome.

For this idea of the Roman Empire of Latin race, the collaboration of Franco and of a Portuguese government that can be sundered from Britain is also essential.

Undoubtedly Mussolini at present is, to an extent, supporting France. He does not want a greatly weakened France. He wants France as a partner against a Germany which is becoming far too powerful for Italy's interests. Laval, one of the new triumvirate ruling France, and Mussolini see eye to eye. They have seen eye to eye for a long time.

FOR HITLER also dreams of a Roman Empire—only his Roman Empire is the empire of Charlemagne, the "Roman Empire of the German nation" that inherited Rome after its collapse.

Already, in Spain, we can see a conflict between the two conceptions. In that unhappy country the German Gestapo is working for a German-controlled Spain, while Franco's brother-in-law, Serano Suner, though he is outwardly cooperative with the Germans, is secretly hostile to the domination exercised there by the Nazis.

THE EVENTUAL interests of Germany, Italy and Russia clash on the Adriatic, in the Balkans, in the Near East, on the Black Sea. Hitler will certainly get through to the Adriatic. In a speech which he made before the outbreak of the war Hitler laid claim to the whole former empire of Charlemagne, by innuendo at least, and he certainly and openly lays claim to the whole of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire except for the lands south of the Brenner on the actual Italian Peninsula. These he relinquished formally and from these he has been repatriating the German population.

The underground conflict of interests is felt all through the southeastern countries. Hungary, for instance, is vigorously pro-Italian and veiledly anti-German. Rumania, desperately afraid of Hungary and Russia, looks to Germany. Yugoslavia and Bulgaria may rapidly recover their old pan-Slav leanings. Neither country is in the least afraid of the "Reds," whatever their leaders, kings or regents, may think. And Turkey is resolved to stay on good terms with the Soviet Union, whatever her other interests may be.

IT IS in view of this that a section of the Nazi party—the one headed by Goering—has been asking itself for a long time, "Is it worth while to destroy Great Britain? Would it not be better to come to terms with Britain, put Russia out of the picture by turning on her, and thus have an overwhelming advantage against Italy and her Balkan and southwestern European satellites?"

Certainly this group in Germany is watching with some uneasiness the movements of Russia. The German-Russian agreement of 1939 allotted the Baltic and Bessarabia to Russia as spheres of influence. But the Russians have occupied considerably more than was agreed upon, and circles in Germany as well as the Italian government are worried for fear Russia may cut them off from Rumanian oil supplies and that Russia may take, one way or another—directly or through Bulgaria—the whole western Black Sea coast, as well as Chanak—the entrance to the Dardanelles.

In this situation Italy wants the defeat of Britain in order to get a free hand for the Latin Union in Asia Minor and the Mediterranean, and undoubtedly the present government of France thinks that, by collaboration with Italy, France herself may share eventually some of the spoils. The Italian hope is that the collapse of the British Empire will throw rich booty into the hands of the Italian-led Latin bloc.

But Hitler, of course, has not fought this war for any such reason.

ITALIAN FASCISM is, ideologically, anti-Communist, and the idea of a Roman Empire, Fascist and Catholic, is a Vatican dream. But the radical Nazis—Goebbels, Himmler, Ribbentrop, and now apparently Hitler himself—have found that the most effective war propaganda has been that copied from the Communists. And this group is for going with Russia and for the world revolution as the best means of establishing German leadership over the whole continent of Europe and eventually of the world.

WHAT MUSSOLINI himself may do is a matter of speculation. If the German-Russian combination should get too strong—if he should fail to drive Germany against Russia, while he is mopping up for pan-Latinism and the Catholic corporate state, Christian but anti-clerical—then he might go Red himself.

At any rate, the struggle is not likely to be over in the next few weeks. It is much more profound than that, and it is world-wide in eventual scope.

Fair Enough

The Annenberg Case

IT WILL BE HARD to find anywhere in the underworld of the United States a more vicious and dangerous example of ingratitude to the generous Nation which opened her arms to the oppressed peoples of the Old World than Moses L. Annenberg, who has just been sentenced to three years in a Federal prison for failure to pay the income tax on the greatest individual easy income in the country.

Annenberg came to America from East Prussia as a little boy, the son of an immigrant refugee from the persecution and limitation of opportunity which drove millions to the United States. His father became a peddler and junk dealer, and Moe himself, as a boy, sold papers on the corners of the turbulent, uncouth prairie capital, Chicago. He had a talent, carelessly described as genuis, for organizing business and became rich in more or less legitimate activities in the circulation and publishing departments of the newspaper industry.

But his character was low, cunning and criminal, and, not satisfied with the wealth that poured in from his newspaper activities, he organized a monopoly over the dissemination of horse race results in league with the underworld of crime and politics. This monopoly fed race results to a vast, illegal system of gambling joints in more than 200 cities of the United States and Canada, and these joints corrupted government and the courts, worst of all in that Chicago where he had first sampled freedom of opportunity which he never would have enjoyed in Germany.

MOE ANNENBERG'S greed for money and his cynical ingratitude to the United States were such that he was willing to corrupt the form of government which gave him his chance to become a rich and powerful man. He was so greedy and ungrateful that, having participated in that corruption of the system which endowed him with unaccustomed rights and human dignity, having undermined the stability of that system, he even stole, by withholding them, the taxes which he knew he should have paid into the National Treasury for the support of that system and its defense against foreign enemies, including the very nation which now has reduced his people to subhuman status. It has been argued in his defense that he did not know he was withholding his taxes. His affairs were so large and the interrelations of his companies were so entangled that his business outgrew his bookkeeping.

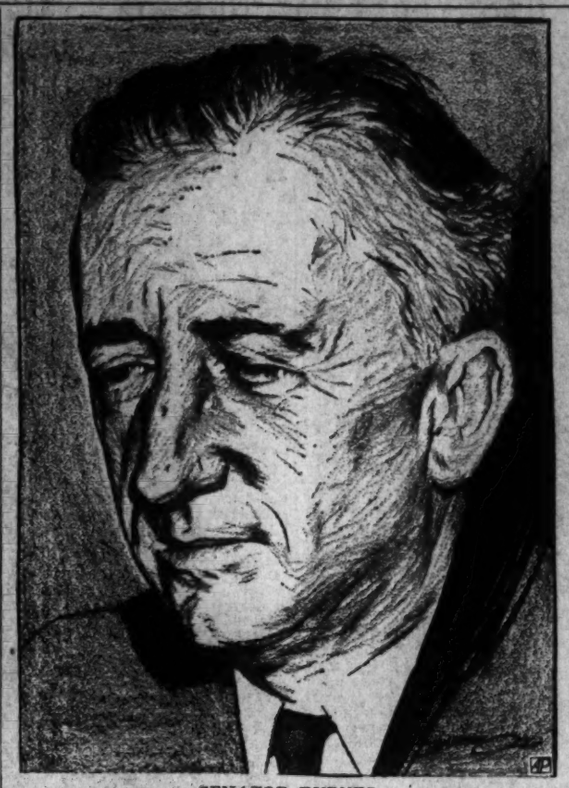
That, however, is only his squeal. He was shrewd enough to form those corporations and to outwit the underworld in building his monopoly, and the very character of this dirty business of his was such as to prove that he had no feeling of respect or gratitude for the form of government which had suffered day by day and year after year from his activities. Not merely from the added burden of taxes which was placed on other Americans but from the very real and perceptible impairment of the democratic system, all Americans suffered from the greedy rascality of this ruthless master-ingrate.

HIS WORST offense was one that cannot be charged in an indictment under the American laws. It is a moral offense. His worst offense was the damage to public confidence in the city government and faith in the courts and in the efficiency of democratic government which was wrought by the operation of his evil business.

Of the thousands of clients who subscribed to the race news purveyed by his racket only a negligible few legitimate news publications were legal. Generally speaking, his news service existed for and by corruption. Most of his clients were bookmakers or poolrooms operating in violation of the law and by the connivance of corrupt mayors, judges, prosecutors, city councilors and State legislators.

In Chicago, where he first practiced the freedom of opportunity which America gave an oppressed immigrant, Moe's influence was most destructive, for in Chicago the outlaw gamblers came to have an influential if not dominant voice in the city government. And in proportion to the rise of their influence so the faith of the people in popular government declined.

No bigot ranting from pulpit or soapbox—not Fritz Kuhn himself, of the anti-American bund—has been a worse enemy to the dignity and well-being of the Jews in the United States than Moe Annenberg. He could have been a conspicuous example of decency and gratitude to America, but it just wasn't in him.



SENATOR BYRNES
Mr. Lindley rates him as Possibility No. 3 for the nomination as Mr. Roosevelt's running mate

Roosevelt And Who?

By Ernest K. Lindley

The Vice Presidential Field

UNLESS THE SIGNALS relayed to Washington were garbled or misunderstood, the President told Jim Farley that he would accept renomination. The talk of men around the President accordingly has turned entirely to the choice of the Vice Presidential nominee. This was left open in the Hyde Park conversations.

Possibility No. 1 is Cordell Hull. He was the President's first choice for the Presidential nomination during the spring months. Hull has written at least one letter forcefully setting forth his unwillingness to go on the national ticket. But the belief persists, even among his friends, that, like the President, he will not fail to respond to a draft.

The main points in Hull's favor are: Prestige, his popularity among the old-line Democrats, the favorable attitude of many businessmen toward him, and the unfavorable attitude of many of the New Dealers. Willkie has spoken highly of him, and he wears too saintly a halo to make a good target for Willkie's wisecracks.

The main arguments against him are that he comes from the South, is single-tracked in his thinking, old and lacking in driving power and administrative ability, and is an indifferent public speaker, especially over the radio.

IF ROOSEVELT runs again, presumably he will not wish to wage an active campaign. He will be too much wrapped up in vital affairs of state to be able to give much thought to "politics." He will rely on the Vice Presidential candidate to do most of the speaking. This is, at least, the campaign strategy which some men close to the President expect.

Hull does not fit well into that strategy. The arguments in his favor remain impressive, however—so impressive that if he were nominated for first instead of second place on the ticket, both Democrats and New Dealers might quickly overcome the panic which they now assert they will be plunged into if the President doesn't run.

Possibility No. 2 in Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. He is the New Dealers' first choice and he also has some friends among the practical politicians. He is young and tough, reasonably good on the platform, with a personality and personal history of earned successes which are a fair match for Willkie's. The main argument against Douglas is that his strongest appeal probably would be to the liberal elements, especially those in the West, which would vote for Roosevelt anyway. A secondary argument is that the nomination of a Supreme Court justice, on top of a third nomination for the President, would violate too many people's conceptions of the proprieties and the traditions of the American democratic system.

POSSIBILITY No. 3 is Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina. He is less well known than Hull, but he is younger and quicker on his feet and with his tongue. He is smart and popular alike with the Southern Democrats and the New Dealers. The Democratic Party has few men as well equipped to trade blows with Willkie on the stump. And if elected, he would assure close liaison between the White House and the Senate.

Possibility No. 4 is Senator Scott Lucas, of Illinois, an able speaker who has differed from the President enough on both domestic and foreign policy to provide "balance" for the ticket. Also, for the specific purpose of carrying Illinois, his nomination would be helpful. And without Illinois it is extremely doubtful whether the Democratic national ticket can win. Illinois, California and New York are the three big States the Democrats must have in addition to the South and most of the border States. Other winning combinations of electoral votes may emerge, but at present other large States in the North and Middle West and West seem less Democratically inclined than New York, Illinois and California.

Possibility No. 5 is Gov. Stark of Missouri, a successful businessman with a pleasing personality and a gleaming clean-government record.

Possibility No. 6 is Sam Rayburn, majority leader of the House, one of the stoutest links between the New Dealers and the regular Democrats. Reports that Willkie will "go big" in Texas and the influence of the supporters of Vice President Garner are helpful to Rayburn. Rayburn is a kind of protege of Garner's—and wealthy Texas Democrats may be extremely valuable to the Democratic ticket in a year when it looks as if the Republicans would have unlimited call on the funds of businessmen in the East and North.

OTHER POSSIBILITIES, introduced into the picture earlier as Presidential aspirants, include Paul V. McNutt and Senator Burton K. Wheeler. McNutt will have many friends at the convention. The nomination of Willkie, his fellow-Hoosier and Indiana University classmate and fraternity brother, is advanced as a strong reason for putting McNutt on the Democratic ticket.

Wheeler might bring into line John L. Lewis and others who have become critical of Roosevelt for going too far "to the right" in domestic policy and too far overseas in his foreign policy. But Wheeler has said he is not interested in second place—and it is doubtful whether he could be put there without embarrassing the President in the conduct and defense of his foreign policy.

There are other possibilities: Speaker Bankhead, Secretary Wallace and Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, of West Virginia.

Even with Roosevelt at the head of the ticket, the Vice Presidential nomination will be more than ordinarily important this time—partly because the second man may have to do most of the active campaigning and partly because Roosevelt, even if elected, might resign if the present world crisis passes before the end of the third term.

Uruguay Blames U. S.

Failed Her In Crisis

Copyright by New York Times

Montevideo, July 9.—Diplomatic sources said today fear the United States would not give Uruguay effective economic and financial support in an emergency was one of the decisive factors leading to the government's release of twelve ring-leaders held in the Nazi plot to seize Uruguay as a German colony.

These sources admit, however, the United States rushed a warship to Montevideo as evidence of willingness to help Uruguay in face of a crisis.

They also admit the significance of the address made by United States Minister Edwin C. Wilson on June 23, when he announced he had been authorized to state that the Government of the United States was determined to cooperate to the fullest with all the other American governments against any un-American activity threatening their economic or political liberty.

BUT IT IS SAID that the effectiveness of these two demonstrations on the part of the United States were largely nullified by the refusal of the United States to lend the Uruguayan government $7,000,000 for the purchase of armaments. It is stated in well-informed circles that Uruguay requested a $7,000,000 loan early in June and that around then Brazil shipped arms and ammunition into Uruguay to enable the latter government to face the threat of a fifth column revolt.

Official circles are maintaining the closest secrecy as to the details of loan negotiations but usually reliable sources insist a request for a loan was made and rejected. It is pointed out that Uruguayan needs at present are financial and economic as well as political. The government was under unusually strong diplomatic pressure during the two weeks the Nazi leaders were under arrest.

The unwillingness or inability of the United States to make the loan of $7,000,000 for much needed armaments, is said to have caused the government to accede to this outside pressure rather than to try to resist it.

IN JUDICIAL CIRCLES it is stated by authorities who have reviewed the records that the evidence against the Nazis was conclusive and sufficient to justify treason trials before the supreme court. It is also said that the supreme court wants the case brought to trial but that proceedings have been halted in the prosecuting attorney's office by outside pressure.

Montevideo newspapers are demanding that the government permit a trial of the Nazi leaders. The newspaper El Pais today published a long editorial reviewing the finding of the army's chief of staff after a technical study of a document which outlined details of a plan for a military uprising which was to seize Uruguay and turn it over to the Third Reich.

The newspaper says that in view of the seriousness of evidence already brought to light it is inconceivable that the men who have been accused of drawing up and directing this plot should be given their liberty.

The chairman and secretary of the congressional investigating committee which uncovered the evidence on which the Nazi leaders were arrested have announced the publication of a book within the next few days entitled "High Treason in Uruguay" in which they will place, it is reported, further sensational details before the public.

Fascist France

By Barnet Nover

The Gravediggers Of Vichy

WHEN THE FRENCH armies collapsed, there was nothing to prevent Germany from occupying all of France as, previously, all of Norway, Belgium and the Netherlands had been occupied.

Actually, under the terms of the armistice of June 22, the conquerors permitted about a third of France to remain outside the zone of military control. But in making this concession to the Petain government Hitler was by no means exhibiting a hitherto undisclosed streak of generosity. He was, on the contrary, being coldly calculating. He was creating a situation in which Germany stood to gain all the advantages of direct occupation without its disadvantages.

After all, the part of France left "free" was no menace to the Third Reich. The armistice terms made certain that it would be disarmed and dependent. And in that territory the dirty work which Hitler would have to entrust to the German military and to Himmler's Gestapo could be left to Frenchmen. From the Nazi point of view that is all to the good. It means that in France seeds of discord and disunity will now be planted, whose ultimate fruit, whatever the outcome of the war, will certainly be disastrous.

THE FULL STORY of France's collapse and what lay behind it may not be told for a long time to come.

At the moment the air is thick with charges and counter-charges. Some blame the appeasers—Bonnet, Daladier, Laval and the others who sold Ethiopia, the League, Czecho-Slovakia and Spain down the river. Others blame the Popular Front which reduced France's working hours and productivity at a time when the working hours of the Germans were being stepped up sharply in preparation for the day of reckoning.

Still others attribute the debacle to the stupidity of the army chiefs who insisted on preparing for the last war instead of for the war that actually broke out. France's fifth column was to blame, say some, Great Britain say others. A theory current at Vichy at the present time is that it was, at bottom, France's democratic system that was to blame for what happened.

But the reasons behind the French debacle are, at the moment, much less important than the immediate consequences of recrimination.

AT VICHY the men who have inherited that portion of France over which the tricolor still flies are preparing to dig the grave of the Third Republic. In that grave they also plan to bury the heritage of the French Revolution, rights of man, liberty, equality and fraternity, representative government and all. The government which unoccupied France is henceforth to have is to be a totalitarian government modeled on those of Spain, Italy, Germany. Marshal Petain and his colleagues are going to pay the conquerors the flattery of imitation.

The humiliation of this gesture of obeisance has never been equaled in modern times. It literally staggers the imagination. And what makes it particularly pitiable is that it is being done with what the Vichy regime would have the world believe is the voluntary consent of the chosen representatives of the French people.

IT IS DIFFICULT to believe that when the first stunning impact of recent events has worn off the French people will rejoice in the chains which their new rulers have placed around their necks. A nation does not change its habits overnight. Liberty, equality and fraternity will continue to have meaning to Frenchmen even if the slogan is erased from every public building, torn out of every history book, banned from every platform. Nor will they forget those who are responsible for this unneeded humiliation.

They will soon begin to ask themselves: What was gained by the refusal of the Petain government to leave the country and continue the war, as the governments of Norway, the Netherlands and Belgium are continuing the war? Suppose Hitler had overrun all France, what then? Would Frenchmen be less free than they are today, would they have any fewer rights?

Obviously not. The only apparent difference at the moment between occupied and unoccupied France is that in the latter region the rule of the Nazis is indirect rather than direct. Hitler's word is law in both.

PERHAPS it is idle to speculate what might have been. It is now difficult to avoid the conclusion that however honorable their motives, the men who turned out the Reynaud government made a ghastly blunder in not following the lead of the governments of Norway, Belgium and the Netherlands.

The Frenchmen living in the region now nominally ruled from Vichy would certainly have been no better off under a Nazi military occupation than they are now. But probably they would not have been any worse off, particularly those who continue to believe in freedom and hate what Hitler and Mussolini stand for.

It is said, of course, that the Fuehrer would have held over any French government-in-exile the threat of reprisals on the civilian population. This seems far-fetched. With a French government functioning outside of France and in command of the fleet, the resources of the French empire, the funds sent for safekeeping to England and America, Hitler's need of continental France as a base of continued military and air operations would be even greater than it is today. At least for the duration of the war he would thus have had to treat the inhabitants of France no more harshly than he finds it necessary to treat those now directly subject to German military control. And Great Britain, upon whose staying powers and fighting capacity France and all other occupied nations in Europe depend for their salvation, would not today be faced by so desperate a task as is now her lot.

But the decision of the Petain government was otherwise. The inevitable sequel has been this move to transform France in the image of her conqueror. It is a grim aftermath, made no whit less grim by the fact that the triumvirate who, it is reported, are to be entrusted with supreme power will consist of Messrs. Laval, Marquet and Weygand, with the sly face of Georges Bonnet visible not too far from the improvised throne. Those who helped bankrupt France have named themselves the receivers.

The Once Over

Hope Springs Eternal, Etc.

Each night before I go to bed
I bleach my freckled nose.
I cream my face and rub my hands
With glycerin and rose.

I oil my elbows, scrub my teeth.
I lave my eyes with care.
I brush with up and outward strokes
My orange mop of hair.

For ever since I was a tot
And so into adulthood
I've sternly kept this ritual
Of beauty culture's culthood!

Hope springs eternal—a w f u l truth!
(Such witlessness, a pity!)
I always pray by miracle
And morning I'll be "pretty!"

But comes the dawn—my mirror's voice
(Ice was never colder!)
"Not yet a glamour gal—and, too,
You look a morning older!"

Greenbelt to Form Children's Band Of 50 Pieces

Residents of Greenbelt, Md., will organize a children's band of about 50 pieces at a meeting in the elementary school auditorium at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

Plans for the project were announced last night by Mrs. Mary J. Kinzer, Greenbelt's director of education, at a meeting of the Town Council. She said 47 instruments formerly used by the Army and Navy bands had been obtained through the Farm Security Administration, and Paul Garrett, of the National Symphony Orchestra, had been retained as director.

The organization meeting, at which a board of parents will be named to direct the band's activities, will be followed by the first rehearsal. Subsequent rehearsals will be held Friday nights at the auditorium.

'Four Sons' Takes Another Hefty Punch at Hitlerism

Eugenie Leontovich Stars in Refilmed Story; New Bill Opens Monday at RKO-Keith's; This, That and the Other About the Theater

SO YESTERDAY AFTERNOON the guys and gals of the drayma desks took a preview squint at "Four Sons," in its new version, coming to the screen at Loew's Capitol on Friday. There will be those among its prospective audiences who will recall that the picture was first made under the same title 'way back yonder in 1928. While the groundwork of the story, adapted to the screen by John Howard Lawson, at the suggestion of a novel by I. A. R. Wylie, remains the same, its time, locale and implications are wholly different.

BELL

The original release concerned a Bavarian family caught up in the maelstrom of the First World War. In its present form, the grim tale deals with a Czecho-Slovakian mother and her four sons, involved in the rape of their country and the subsequent Nazi invasion of Poland. Thus "Four Sons," in essence, becomes Twentieth Century-Fox's counterpart of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's recent picturization of Phyllis Bottome's "The Mortal Storm"—with slight modifications of action and psychology. It is by far the more physically violent of the two.

"Four Sons," nevertheless, aims all of its vituperative power at the "Trojan horse" and "fifth column" activities of the Hitler regime, which split the Bernle household in two, although it evades those designations and is content to label the subversive influences merely "German Social Clubs."

It is a pretty ghastly business that overtakes the Bernle family. The towering figure of strength in the face of all the sanguinary developments that envelop her household is Frau Bernle, the Spartan mother, whose husband was a victim of the earlier European holocaust—to think up and use a new name for it. This is the role that is played by Eugenie Leontovich with such sensitiveness, courage and heroism as to pale into insignificance virtually every other performance in the picture. The two who approach her most nearly are Don Ameche and Mary Beth Hughes, who reveals heretofore unsuspected talents as a young emotional actress of some fiber.

"Four Sons" is no dish for the escapists, but if your aversion to Hitlerism needs bolstering, it is another one not to be lightly brushed off.

Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, now thinks he definitely has made up his mind. "My Favorite Wife," now in its fifth week on Fifteenth street, is coming off with close of business Sunday night—but positively. It will be followed Monday morning by "Private Affairs," a frivolous comedy, with Robert Cummings, Nancy Kelly, Roland Young and Hugh Herbert heading the cast. "Tom Brown's Schooldays," originally announced as the next attraction, will come along later in the summer.

If you are of a vintage that harks back to the days of the late Senator Chauncey M. Depew, the second screen appearance of Walter Hampden, as Pasquier, the president of the House of Peers, in "All This and Heaven Too," at the Earle Friday, should be of interest. Mr. Hampden has donned a makeup that makes him look like a twin of the former distinguished solon, bon vivant and wit. Not that it particularly matters.

That official preview of "All This and Heaven Too," costarring Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, in the Departmental Auditorium—at approximately Thirteenth street and Constitution avenue—tomorrow night at 8:30, will be attended by a genuinely distinguished audience. The invitation list reads like a "Who's Who" of the Federal and District establishments and includes members of the President's Cabinet, the Supreme Court, Senate, House of Representatives, heads of Government departments and the press of this and other nations. They will see a profoundly moving picture.

And that's not all. On Friday morning at 11, Universal is unveiling "The Boys from Syracuse" on the screen at the Circle Theater, 2105 Pennsylvania avenue. This is the version of the George Abbott stage musical, in which the principal roles are taken by Allan Jones, Rosemary Lane, Martha Raye, Joe Penner, Charles Butterworth, Eric Blore, Alan Mowbray and Irene Hervey, Mrs. Allan Jones in private life. The escapists will have their innings at this one—unless it is laughter they are trying to dodge.

If it is the Norma Shearer-George Raft heart attack that has been keeping you awake, Miss Shearer has arranged it so you can roll over and go to sleep right. "I will not marry George or anyone else," says she with some emphasis from Hollywood. "I take marriage very seriously and, as you know, I was ideally happy with Irving Thalberg. I never expect to have such happiness again and so it would be wrong for me to marry anyone. It so happens that I am not interested in marrying and George knows it. I would also like to say that there never has been a rift in our friendship." Feel better now?

Flip-of-a-Coin Note

It was George who proved, in "Scarface," that you can build a Raft with a fifty-cent piece!

In Hollywood

Hollywood, July 9.

When I wrote some time ago that it was all right for male talent scouts to sign up discoveries, but I thought the ladies should have a chance to pick out what they considered movie molding clay, I didn't think those Rabelaisian writers, Town and Baker, would take up my suggestion—but they have. They want a perfect man (and who doesn't?) for their picture, "How to Meet a Man," and will select a jury of ten outstanding women to put their O. K. on him. I've been asked, for no good reason, to be on the jury, and that's one time I'll serve.

HOPPER

Patric Knowles, lead in "Goodbye to Love," had all his friends bring their pets to his ranch in the valley near Tarzana over the Fourth of July, and he and his wife took care of them so they wouldn't be frightened by the fire crackers and what have you. The Knowleses had a day they won't forget!

I watched Doris Nolan being fitted for "Moon Over Burma." What a chassis she's got for clothes—that girl's a walking fashion plate! Her face isn't bad, either.

Director Mitch Leisen, who trained with De Mille, always manages to have a bathtub scene in one of his pictures, and sure enough—there's a flosey floating tub in "Arise, My Love." No, Claudette Colbert doesn't dunk her body, but Ray Milland does. Seems 1940 is the year the males are going to show the girls a thing or two about sex appeal.

Bob Montgomery won't do a picture until September, maybe not then. But he's at his office every morning at nine, and spends the day there working for the Red Cross. He said, "You don't know what a luxury it is to pick up a telephone and have somebody on the other end answer it, or to send a telegram and receive an answer, thus knowing yours had been received." I don't believe there's a community in the whole world that is giving daily the cooperation that Hollywood is giving the Red Cross. I'm so proud of it I could get up on a soap box and shout.

Louis B. Mayer loved his surprise birthday party given him by 500 Metro employes, and when he blew out the candles, the huge cake started revolving and a music box underneath played "Happy Birthday to You." He's just an old sentimentalist at heart.

Madeleine Carroll fitted 32 dresses for "Virginia" before she went to France. Now most of them have to be made over in a different color and fabric, because they're doing the picture in color

Mother and Her Rebellious Son

EUGENIE LEONTOVICH AND DON AMECHE as Frau Bernle and Chris, the eldest of her sons, as they will be seen in Twentieth Century-Fox's production of "Four Sons," opening Friday on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. Alan Curtis, Robert Lowery and George Ernest are the other three boys involved in the grim story of the betrayal of Czecho-Slovakia

New York, July 9.

HERBERT HOOVER: When Harry Hopkins submitted the report, released Sunday, concerning the business improvement in June because of the defense program, President Roosevelt asked the Secretary of Commerce: "Tell me, Harry—how does it feel to hold a job once held by Hoover?" . . . "Mr. President," replied Hopkins, "how does it feel?" . . . "Dr. ANNA SWIFT: Two of the women arrested when your establishment was raided are making confessions to the District Attorney's office. The police, however, as yet have not been able to decipher that code book in which you listed your eminent customers . . . SENATOR McNARY: The new issue of the "Information Please" movie short, in which Wendell Willkie is a guest artist, has no references to the Presidential campaign. The program regulars had been asked not to make any cracks about it.

TONY GALENTO: Max Baer, who once starred in a hit movie, said that he's been signed by Warner Brothers to make another picture. . . . HARVEY D. GIBSON: Michael Todd, who has three shows at the New York World's Fair, submitted to an emergency hospital at Polyclinic Hospital Sunday night. . . . JIMMY HINES: Tom Dewey will try only one more case—the first big one that comes along—and then wait until his term is over, to retire from the District Attorney's job. . . . MAYOR LaGUARDIA: Prescott Van Wyck, descendant of the city's first mayor, still finds a way to make his wife remember him, although he's in an institution. Whenever an inmate is discharged, Van Wyck instructs the freed man to visit his wife and convey regards.

JOHN PERONA: Count Enzo Lucci, who fought with Italy against Ethiopia, and who has been stationed at Addis Ababa, is applying for American citizenship. Lucci was very much affected by the mystery of Balbo's death . . . DOROTHY THOMPSON: Sinclair Lewis said, a few days ago: "When a certain columnist first wrote that Hitler is a joke, I disagreed heartily. That columnist now says Hitler will conquer the world, unless we stop him. I disagree heartily" . . . EQUITY: The daughter of one of America's best known actresses now is living at the Rehearsal Club, while she's seeking a theatrical career. The youngster is using her father's name . . . BILL STERN: Ted Husing, who has a lifetime contract at C. B. S., is making another arrangement. He's signing a new contract instead—a pact for 5 years, at an increased salary.

REALTY ASSN.: August Heckscher has written a poem called "Success," in which he recites the various enterprises which brought him his fortune. His last stanza details his final comedown, in which he attributes his misfortunes to the N. Y. realty taxes . . . BEN HECHT: Walter Howey, the editor after whom you patterned the editor in "The Front Page," now is a patient at Mount Sinai Hospital in N. Y. C. . . . WILLIAM SAROYAN: Time has become of the essence, in Hollywood. Howard Estabrook, who is adapting "Legacy" for the new Sherwood-Ratoff production, has an unusual contract. If he completes the script in 5 weeks, he'll be paid; otherwise, he receives nothing. This, because he worked two years on "David Copperfield."

VINCENT SHEEAN: You'll never recognize "Foreign Correspondent," the new movie adapted from your book, "Personal History." The story is so different that the director refused even to read the book—and still hasn't read it. . . . REPRESENTATIVE JOE MARTIN: Speaker Bankhead, who will open the Democratic Convention, will give full vent to his orating abilities. He can recite 16 classical roles, including "Hamlet" and "Romeo," and even can do "Jeeter Lester." . . . LORD LOTHIAN: Noel Coward was offered $90,000 for a series of Sunday night broadcasts, while he was here. "I'll take it," he agreed, "but on condition that I be permitted to choose the Sundays on which I'd work." But then Coward warned: "When it's a nice Sunday, and I don't feel like it, I don't work."

BETTY HUTTON: That World's Fair stunt to find the oldest and the youngest jitterbugs was a fizzle. While bandleader Johnny McGee furnished the music, the contestants danced. The "oldest jitterbug" proved to be 19; the youngest, 14 . . . HOWARD LINDSAY: After all these years, Sir Cedric Hardwicke now has red hair. But he won't do "Life With Father."

Season's First Festival Drama At the Sylvan

'Robin of Sherwood' Features Third Bill In Monument Glade

By Nelson B. Bell

"Robin of Sherwood," the first drama in this year's season of Summer Festival programs, was presented in the Sylvan Theater last night by the FBI Recreation Association Theater Group. It was preceded by an hour's concert by the District WPA Symphonic Orchestra, under the direction of Franklin Lanning, beginning at 7:30, before an appreciative audience that comfortably filled the Monument slopes on the first perfect evening for al fresco entertainment the season has afforded.

"Robin of Sherwood" is a new arrangement of incidents from the Robin Hood legend, written in four brief acts by Prof. J. R. Crawford, of Yale University, and adapted to its present uses by Paul A. Neuland, who also directed the FBI production. With scenes laid in Sherwood Forest, the courtyard of Nottingham Castle, Robin Hood's bower in Sherwood Forest and at the gates of the Fair Grounds outside the town of Nottingham, the tale of romance and adventure deals with the interrupted courtship of Robin and Maid Marian, the treachery to their king of Prince John, the Sheriff of Nottingham and Sir Hugh and the return to his realm of Richard the Lion-Hearted to set everything straight by rewarding both heroism and villainy with their just desserts. Frequently songs and chorals from Reginald DeKoven's operetta of "Robin Hood" are introduced for added fillip.

Performance Needed Movement

While the familiar narrative was intelligently and intelligibly projected last evening, the FBI performance almost completely lacked the colorful movement and spirited action it should have possessed. It took the form, rather, of a series of stage pictures that framed the dialogue in still life. There were individual exceptions, of course, but in the large view the performance was static. Nor were the players always too successful in their musical numbers, although the fault was less theirs than due to the remoteness of the piano accompaniment and a consequent difficulty in keeping on key.

In some of its aspects "Robin of Sherwood" realized the peculiar facility with which this classic of beneficent banditry lends itself to enactment in an outdoor setting that rather more than suggests the original. It was costumed in gay colors and breathed something of the spirit of the open. It also boasted some excellent individual character portrayals.

Stanley Nygren, for instance, was a vigorous and articulate Robin Hood and Joseph Ryan's Sheriff of Nottingham was authoritative in speech, if only moderately so in appearance. Hermann Spilker's Little John was appropriately robust and effective comedy performances were given by Edward McCarthy, as the Fool, and William Roach, as the bibbling Friar Tuck. In the role of Maid Marian, Helen Wright progressed from a hesitant start to an assured finish and did the best singing of the evening in "Oh, Promise Me." John Preston's reading of the King Richard role was the most professional of any member of the cast.

The introductory orchestral program covered a wide field of standard and popular compositions, ranging from "The Hall of the Mountain King," from Grieg's Peer Gynt suite, and Santi-Saens' 'Pastorale," from the Henry VIII suite, to DeKoven's "Robin Hood" and Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, July 9 (INS).—Merle Oberon, who has had such a really difficult time getting back her strength, is so much better that within a few weeks she will be completely well. Merle has just been coasting along, refusing all offers until she was sure she was all right. Her next picture will be "Kiss Me Again," for Ernst Lubitsch, an original story which he made some years ago and which was one of his best.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

The title, of course, will be changed, but it has all the typical Lubitsch comedy and the scenes that he knows so well how to make—subtle, amusing and brilliant. Melvyn Douglas will be signed tomorrow to costar with Merle and the starting date is September 15, giving Melvyn a chance to finish his Claudette Colbert picture and Merle an opportunity to recover. Ernst's first for United Artists will be "Summer Vacation," by Ladislas Fedor.

David Selznick offered Warners $75,000 for "King's Row," Henry Bellaman's novel, which wouldn't have been a bad profit since they only paid $35,000. It was refused because, in my opinion, it's one of the best books of the year. I do hope no mistake will be made in casting. I heard over the weekend that James Cagney had been cast for the lead. Surely it cannot be Parris, the idealistic young doctor. It would be a misfit. He could play the other male lead, Drake, the dynamic lad, who lost his legs through the Machiavellian revenge of the town doctor who hated him because he loved the M. D.'s daughter.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The Peggy Kent-Ern Westmore marriage has gone on the rocks; the Franklin D. Roosevelt, jrs., are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, jr. They were with Mary and Doug, jr., at Elsa Maxwell's party the other eve. Elsa entertained in honor of Cole Porter and she certainly deserved the title of "First Party Lady," for it was a grand affair. Barbara Hutton was there with Cary Grant. Was glad to see Myrna Loy and Arthur Hornblow, Frances and Sam Goldwyn, the Richard Barthelmesses, Mrs. Jack Warner, Countess di Frasso, Virginia Zanuck, Constance Bennett and her heart, Richard Ainley; Edmund Goulding, Louis Bromfield and many people I haven't seen since I came home from Honolulu.

According to Sid Rogell, his son, born Sunday, is the most beautiful baby in the world; somebody page Adrian, who gave out more cigars than were ever seen on the M-G-M lot after the birth of his baby. He is another proud father. Janet is doing beautifully and so happy because her baby is a boy; the Benny Bakers have reached a parting of the ways. Mrs. Baker is suffering from a nervous breakdown caused, she says, by worry over her spouse.

Charlie Chaplin, Paulette Goddard and the two boys celebrated Charlie, jr.'s birthday at Cocoanut Grove listening to Eddie Duchin. He is 15, as tall as his father, and a very personable youth; Elsie Butler received a regulation ovation at Rita and Eddie Lowe's party Saturday night; Andrea Leeds, who has a date with the stork, and her good-looking husband, Bob Howard, and Judith Barrett, now Mrs. Lin Howard, who also is cradle shopping, and Lin, were guests of honor; Al Hall and Lucille Ball, who said farewell forever last week, have kissed and made up.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

U. S. Reported Sending British Arms Secretly

42 Carloads Shipped On Pacific Coast, Newspaper Says

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, July 9.—The Call-Bulletin, in a copyrighted article, said today vast amounts of United States war equipment from the San Francisco Bay area and Nevada "have been and are still being shipped to the British under circumstances of utmost secrecy."

In all, 42 carloads of vital war materials, including light firearms and ammunition from the Benicia, Calif., arsenal, have been shipped, the article said, adding:

"High explosives, including big shells, have been shipped from the military dump at Hawthorne, near Winnemucca, Nev. . . .

"The first shipment was about 20 days ago, and shipments continued for ten days. Some of the latter are still en route. . . .

"These war munitions have been shipped by American rail to a point about 75 miles below Winnipeg, Canada, from which point they are being transshipped across the border, with New Brunswick as the receiving point."

Lieut. Col. Oscar Krupp, commandant of the Benicia arsenal, said no such shipments had been made from there which "would fall into that category." Local offices of the Army Ordnance Department also denied knowledge of the shipments and headquarters of the Ninth Corps Area declared "No comment."

STRIKE LINE—Striking employes of the Smoot Sand and Gravel Co. idle along the waterfront while not in the picket line. The strike of 250 men threatens to halt $50,000,000 worth of local construction and throw 20,000 other men out of work by the Department of Justice.

"This is so serious that we have asked for an investigation of the entire sand and gravel situation in the District in connection with the Department of Justice's investigation of monopoly control in the building industries," said Carmody.

The Smoot company controls the District's sole supply of washed sand and gravel. A prolonged strike, Carmody pointed out, would be "disastrous."

Col. Philip B. Fleming, wage and hour administrator, in a statement yesterday denied union and company charges the division "arbitrarily" ruled that the work week for dredge workers must be reduced to 42 hours.

After pointing out that the division in April, 1939, held that sand and gravel workmen are not employed as seamen, Fleming declared Buit and Parker had been advised in conferences that "dredge operators could be paid what they are presently receiving if their hours are reduced from a 67-hour week to 58 2-3 hours a week.

Claims Guarantee Asked

"Company officials had indicated to the division in negotiations that the company contemplated a wage increase to employes of the company of approximately 10 per cent, and we advised . . . that if they granted a 10 per cent increase in total wages . . . they could work (employes) the same number of hours as had been the custom, in strict compliance with the act."

Fleming contended the company had been in violation of the law since it became effective in October, 1938, and added that representatives of the firm had asked for a guarantee against employe suits for past violations under a provision of the law that authorizes workers to institute proceedings independently of the enforcement policy of the division.

The company was advised, Col. Fleming declared, that the division was "powerless" to safeguard it against such suits.

"On July 5, 1940, Mr. Smoot, president of the company, telephoned Gerard Reilly, solicitor of the Labor Department, that it would be impossible to carry out the suggestions of the division and that he (Mr. Smoot) would have to 'let nature take its course'," Fleming said.

"It would appear that the only point at which we were in dispute was as to the ability of the division to protect the company from employe suits for past violations of the act," Fleming declared.

"The erroneous impression has gotten abroad that there is something unique about the Smoot company's operation," the statement continued. "This is not the case. Other companies engaged in similar operations are complying with the law; and where they have been in violation they have come into compliance when our inspectors have called their attention to this fact."

Issues Statement

Butt also issued a statement. In it he pointed out that since the "beginning of our business in 1900," dredge workers have been classified as "seamen" by Government departments and the courts.

"The Wage and Hour Division, a new bureau created in 1938, now tells these men and this company that the men are not 'seamen' and therefore are subject to new regulations," Butt said.

Butt charged the division with an "arbitrary attitude" which "in a period of national emergency is not helpful to the employes, the company or the public." He contended that the division is interpreting an act of Congress "contrary to the other established departments of the Government."

W. Somerset Maugham Tells Plight as Refugee

London, July 9 (AP).—W. Somerset Maugham, the novelist, disclosed tonight that he had spent three weeks huddled with 500 other refugees in a small coal boat before being able to cross from France to England. He escaped Paris shortly before the German occupation.

"We had practically nothing to eat," he said. "Sleep was out of the question. . . . I am too tired and exhausted to tell you much."

Auditor Lays Irregularities To Albemarle Chief Engineer

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., July 9.—State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs, reporting to Governor Price today on a special investigation of the water resources and power division of the Virginia Conservation Commission, said that he had been unable to account for $2,824.63.

The division is under the direction of Chief Engineer J. J. Dirzulaitis, of Charlottesville, and it operates under a cooperative agreement with the United States Geological Survey. The salary of Mr. Dirzulaitis is paid by the Federal Government but the work of the division is jointly financed by State and Federal funds.

Mr. Downs said that of the total unaccounted for, $1,404.89 was due to the State and $1,419.74 was owing the Federal Government.

Invoice Changes Cited

The State auditor also asserted in his report that Mr. Dirzulaitis paid for improvements to personally owned real estate in Albemarle County out of public funds, that he had altered certain invoices which he certified to the State comptroller, and that some records in connection with the division office had been destroyed.

Mr. Downs said that when Mr. Dirzulaitis was asked why he did not remit the sums which the auditor said were due the State and Federal Governments that Mr. Dirzulaitis' reasons "to us, were vague and unsatisfactory in that he simply stated that he had used the proceeds of these deposits for the good of the water resources work in Virginia."

Vouchers were presented by Mr. Dirzulaitis totaling $1,725.79, Mr. Downs said, but the auditor recommended that "in view of the questionable nature of the claims presented, none of the aforesaid sum of $1,725.79 will be paid unless these items are approved by both the Virginia conservation commission and the attorney general of Virginia."

False Billing Charged

The auditor reported that according to the records of Albemarle County Mr. Dirzulaitis owned approximately 27 acres of land on Route 29 near Charlottesville, and said further:

"Our investigation revealed that certain lumber and materials had been purchased and billed to the Commonwealth by Mr. Dirzulaitis—which materials were not of the type suitable for the construction with which he generally dealt—and that there was being erected on the aforesaid property a two-story dwelling house, a garage, and a one-story building which was referred to as the 'office and shop.'"

The auditor's report said further that "our investigation disclosed that certain invoices certified to the State comptroller for payment by Mr. Dirzulaitis which have been altered so as to indicate that items purchased were for commodities other than those actually purchased by Mr. Dirzulaitis. . . ."

The division directors said that these purchases were for an office and quarters in the Shenandoah National Park.

Fire Ruined Records

According to Downs, "He (Dr. Dirzulaitis) stated that the reason that he had changed the invoices was that he did not believe they would be passed by the comptroller without a great deal of justification for the expenditure; and that none of the items had beenn purchased for his own personal use."

The auditor added, "However, we have been unable to substantiate the fact that the articles purchased have gone in the park office because of the fact that this office was destroyed by fire and we could not take a physical inventory of the contents."

Hitler Decides to Set Up 'Germanic Union' For Scandinavia to Cooperate in Blockade

Fuehrer Plans Permanent Rule Over Nations

By the United Press

Berlin, July 9.—Adolf Hitler has decided to set up a "Germanic Union" of the North Sea and the Baltic, bringing Sweden, Norway and Denmark under Nazi domination and protection, it was announced tonight by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Germany's No. 1 ideologist.

Although he made no mention of Russia's interests in the Baltic states, Rosenberg referred once to Finland.

Germany's domination over the Scandinavian states will be permanent, Rosenberg said, but he did not reveal whether Hitler intends to allow those states to exist as separate nations.

Germany already occupies Norway and Denmark and last week obtained rights of military transit through Sweden.

He made no reference to Latvia, Estonia or Lithunia. (The Baltic states will vote in general elections next Sunday whether they are to be incorporated into the Soviet Union as additional republics.)

Germany, said Rosenberg in a statement to foreign newspaper correspondents, regards Scandinavia as "part of the Germanic union of the North Sea and Baltic Sea" under Nazi protection.

Step Held Imperative

Incorporation of the Scandinavian nations into the German-dominated area of Europe is imperative, Rosenberg said, because of the "necessity of closer economic, political and cultural cooperation" against the British blockade.

"Nor can Germany ever cease to protect herself against a drive such as was attempted by Britain last March," he added, referring again to German charges that Britain plotted to invade Norway to strike at Germany on the northern flank.

Rosenberg did not designate the parts the individual Scandinavian nations would play in the "German union" but he made it clear that they will be required to lean toward and upon Germany as "the largest Germanic nation."

"A small nation does not violate its honor when it places itself under the protection of a larger nation—it simply recognizes existing life-rules," he said.

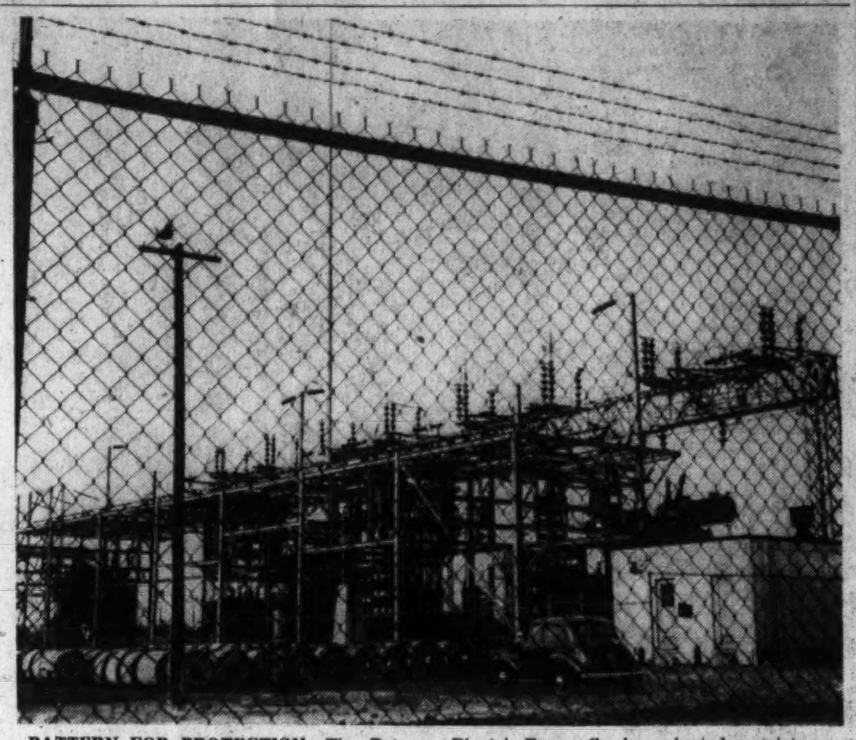
"Fate has willed that Germany must now take the entire Germanic area under her protection."

Defines 'Germanic Areas'

Rosenberg said all areas from which German peoples once emigrated are regarded as "Germanic areas," instead of limiting the classification to parts of Europe having German populations.

The British blockade, Rosenberg continued, forced closer cooperation in the European areas as well as a closer integration of all economic possibilities in order to enable Europe to exist on its own commodities insofar as was possible and avoid the necessity of imports from abroad.

Under the new setup, Rosenberg said, Germany envisages the building of a gigantic network of canals and roads linking the Danube basin with the new "German union" in the north.



PATTERN FOR PROTECTION—The Potomac Electric Power Co. has adopted a strict system of pass control to its generating stations. It is protecting the stations with barbed wire and flood lights, and is planning to double its armed guard as part of a program to prevent sabotage. the Marquis de Chambrun, an honorary citizen of the United States, as a descendant of Lafayette.

The Chamber vote showed that less than two-thirds of the Chamber's normal membership of 618 took part. However, these ministers or former ministers were present: Camille Chautemps, Charles Pomaret, Andre Fevrier and Albert Chichery.

Former Premier Paul Reynaud, whose leadership was discarded when France decided to sue for peace, also attended. His head was swathed in bandages. It was his first appearance in public since an automobile accident in which he was injured June 28 near Montpelier.

The government's outline to Parliament of its plans for the new France said in part:

"We must take all lessons from lost battles. We must look back on the errors made, determine the responsibility, seek the causes of our weaknesses. This will be done.

"Having measured the extent of our defeat, a nation like ours, whatever may be its sorrows and its sufferings, must not lose itself in useless regrets.

"It is from military defeat and internal disorder that other nations have drawn the strength to revive and transform themselves. At the cruelest moment of its history France must understand and accept the necessity of a national revolution."

The government must have all power, the declaration continued, to "decide, undertake, negotiate, and to be able to save what must be saved, destroy what must be destroyed, build what must be built."

Then came the short but powerful text of the government's resolution:

"The government, therefore, asks that Parliament be united in a National Assembly and vote confidence in Marshal Petain, president of the council (premier) to promulgate under his signature and his responsibility the fundamental laws of the French state."

Help Britain Halt Aggressors Now, Morrison Tells U.S.

London, July 9 (AP).—Herbert Morrison, British supply minister, appealed to the United States tonight for a dovetailing of British and American resources and production to defeat "the strength of the European Continent organized for aggression."

"You know that there is no limit to Nazi ambitions," he said in a broadcast relayed to the United States.

"We in this country are inspired by the sight of America, awake and preparing.

"Against the tremendous material strength of the European Continent organized for aggression there is only one sure industrial counterpoint in all the world, and that is to be found in the capacity of Great Britain and the United States."

D. C. Utilities Sharpen Eyes For Saboteurs

Pepco Threatened; Transit Company To Check Aliens

Washington's public utilities are rapidly pushing forward or have now under consideration programs to make airtight their defenses against sabotage.

Leadership in the move, a survey disclosed last night, is being taken by the Potomac Electric Power Co., where protective measures were accelerated in the last few weeks by reports that an employe of a contracting firm working on its property had boasted he could "wreck the plant."

The Capital Transit Co. has under consideration, it was learned, compilation of a list of aliens among its 3,500 employes. Edward D. Merrill, company president, said that if officials decided to catalogue employes according to the status of their citizenship the purpose would be simply "to have the information." The step would have no effect on employment, he added.

Proper Precautions Taken

Officials of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. declared "all proper precautions are being taken to protect our property," but declined to give details.

Approximately 20 civilians employed as guards by the Washington Gas Light Co., soon may be sworn in as special policemen and provided with guns, E. J. Boothby, general manager of the company, declared.

The reported threat to the power company's generating plant at Buzzard Point was investigated by James H. Ferry, vice president and chief engineer. The employe involved, a man about 30 and pronouncedly pro-Hitler in his views, quit his job 15 minutes after a telephone discussion of the report by his superior and Ferry.

Ferry said the telephone call was made about three weeks ago with especial care that it should not be overheard. The contractor's superintendent, he said, was unable to confirm the reported threat, but disclosed that the employe had antagonized fellow workmen with "careless statements."

Alfred G. Neal, president of the company, said in the last three months officials of another utility have advised him that an attempt was made to enter company property on the pretext of official business.

To guard against unofficial visits to Pepco plants, identification cards good for only one year are being issued to employes who have business on the properties. The cards replace badges formerly used.

Double Company Guards

At the same time, the company intends to increase its 24-man armed force of special policemen and will double the guard at its Buzzard Point and Benning power plants. Eight or ten men will be added to the force, Ferry stated. The warehouse at Tenth street and Florida avenue northwest and the office building downtown also are under guard.

As another precaution, the company is circling with fence the now only partially fenced-in Buzzard Point plant and is making repairs to its Benning fences. Special permission will be sought of the District Commissioners for exemption from regulations to permit barbed wire installation on the fences.

The added protection of fences is being supplemented with flood lights.

"There is absolutely no danger of a wholesale shutdown of power here," Ferry said. "We are certain the courses taken will be effective."

history, opening bids for 629 vehicles for its Armored Corps, patterned after the German "panzer" troops. With the completion of the order, the Nation will have 1,700 light and medium tanks.

The United States Housing Authority warned the defense program was in danger of "bogging down" because of a shortage of housing accommodations near arms industrial centers.

Edward R. Stettinius and William S. Knudsen, members of the defense commission, urged Congress to apropriate $25,000,000 to the Tennessee Valley Authority to speed up production of aluminum for airplane construction. Appearing before a secret House Appropriations subcommittee session, they asked that a dam and additional electrical generating units be constructed in Tennessee and Alabama.

Training Hearing Deferred

The scheduled appearance of War and Navy Department representatives before the Senate Military Affairs Committee to testify on the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill was postponed until after action on confirmation of the new chiefs of the two services. President Roosevelt, asked about the bill at his press conference, said the whole question was being mulled over.

Representatives of the State Governors' conference committee will meet with Justice Department officials today to discuss a proposal to call the 48 Governors to Washington for conference on defense. Gov. O'Conor of Maryland and others have been invited to attend today's session.

Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, writing as Acting Secretary of the Navy, said in a letter read before the House that no naval vessels have been sold to any belligerent power. It was written in response to a resolution introduced in the House.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, declared in a radio address that the United States cannot afford to waste "one moment" in its preparedness plans, lest it be "too late." The Nation, he declared, must be stronger than all potential aggressors.

The Army recalled Col. Horace H. Fuller, military attache to Paris, and his chief assistant, Lieut. Col. Sumner Waite, to report on the debacle of the French army. They will then go to Fort Bragg, N. C., and Camp Jackson, Ala., respectively, for troop duty.

Acting Secretary of War Louis Johnson said defense needs would force the Army to deny in the future the assignment of planes for participation in public events, such as State fairs and opening of commercial airports.

The warning of the lack of housing for defense workers was sounded in a report to the USHA by the national executive committee of Housing Authorities.

"We are already in a situation as desperate as we were during the World War when disastrous delays occurred because war industries couldn't get and hold workers for whom no housing was available," the report stated.

"Migration has already set in on a large scale, and workers brought in for jobs in defense industries are being forced to leave because they cannot find places to live in.

"Some families are paying as much as 50 per cent of their income for rent. Workers are occupying beds in two and three shifts. Buildings unfit for use are being opened to the rush of thousands of families being employed in defense industries. Arsenal employes already are refusing to come to work in cities where they cannot find homes."

France Must 'Pay Penalty,' Italy Insists

Fascists Await Results Of Parley to Create New Order in Europe

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, July 9.—Italians today await with confidence the results of the Berlin conference in which the first steps of the "new order" in Europe are being taken. The fate of southeastern Europe will be settled as much as it can be, considering Russia may have other ideas.

France, Italians insist, will not be allowed to escape the consequences of having opposed the Axis and lost. Scandinavia may now form one nation again with one king. Spain will doubtless get Gibraltar, but that is apparently going to have to be fought for with aid from the Axis.

To be sure, Great Britain has to be defeated before the new order can be safely installed, and, therefore, the forthcoming attack against the British again takes the forefront in all comments. The threefold task of the Axis powers, according to Virginio Gayda, in the Giornale d'Italia is this:

"To establish a counter-blockade around the British Isles; to cut their contacts with the Empire and the rest of the world; to attack them and smash them in their national territory, their imperial positions and on the seas."

Won't Be Axis Ally

France will not be allowed to become an ally of the Axis, nor will she be relieved of any just penalties, says Gayda. Her collapse "does not alter the positions and conditions which she herself created by her past policies and her warlike actions against the Axis. The vanquished remains vanquished.

The equally authoritative Giovanni Ansaldo, writing from Germany in this morning's Telegrafo, the Ciano family newspaper, adds that even the episode of Oran "has not substantially modified the situation." He admits, however, that the new authoritarian government being formed at Vichy "justifies optimism that the French will make a contribution, however passive, toward European reconstruction."

Telegrafo admits the British action has destroyed one-third of the French fleet and seized another third. It also states that "it is not excluded that the French naval bases of North Africa will be used against the British with the consent of the French."

Senate Confirms Stimson, 56-28

san aspect of the Nation's rearmament program.

Apparently sympathizing with the minority, the galleries burst into loud applause when Senator Tydings shouted—in answer to a question of Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida: "I'm not worrying about Great Britain; what I'm worrying about is the United States of America."

Flushed with anger at the demonstration, Senator Barkley jumped to his feet to "insist that the Chair enforce the rule" forbidding applause.

Senator Barkley told the Senate that he disagreed with Col. Stimson's stand for convoying American munitions ships to England if necessary, but pointed out that "no matter how strongly the Secretary felt about the matter, he couldn't enforce his view without the consent of Congress.

Confirmation of Stimson and Knox "will inevitably be taken as constitution of a war Cabinet," charged Senator Clark. He said the testimony of the two nominees "abundantly justifies the claim that they're both interventionists."

"You can't fight wars with guns you haven't ordered or with men you haven't trained," Senator Tydings warned. The Marylander declared his sympathy for the British and agreed with Senator Pepper that a German victory would be serious for this country; but he insisted that if the United States should be drawn into war at the present time, it could be of "no real help."

Taft's Views on War

"If the argument is sound that the best way to defend America is to aid England, then we should go the whole way and declare war at once on Germany and Italy," said Senator Taft. He declared that "we probably could assist the British materially by declaring war" through giving them naval aid and releasing British ships for the defense of the British Isles.

"The course advocated by Mr. Stimson, and certainly receiving sympathetic approval from the President, logically demands immediate declaration of war against Germany and Italy," he said.

But, Senator Taft declared, "the idea that we can help democracy by going to war seems to me fantastic" and American entrance into war "would be more likely to destroy American democracy than to destroy dictatorships in the totalitarian countries."

Barkley Queries Taft

Asserting that "I do not minimize the seriousness of the situation produced by a German victory," Senator Taft predicted that in such an event large sums would have to be spent on armaments—but American involvement in war would mean an even larger expenditure "of money and lives," he said.

Senator Barkley inquired why Senator Taft was reported to have said when he was at the Republican Convention in Philadelphia that he would vote for Col. Stimson.

"The Senator will understand," replied Senator Taft with a grin, "that I don't remember everything that happened in Philadelphia."

He explained that at that time he hadn't read Col. Stimson's latest speech because "I was busy."

Nicaragua Recalled

"But not busy enough," observed the majority leader.

Senator Wheeler charged that Col. Stimson "has constantly advocated taking steps that will get us into war" and alleged that both he and Col. Knox had constantly denounced the social reforms of the New Deal.

The Montana isolationists attacked Col. Stimson's connection with the sending of marines to Nicaragua and alleged that "the real reason" for sending them was that "financial interests in New York wanted to protect their particular dictator who was in power."

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, who, like Senator Tydings, was one of the "purgees" in the 1938 campaign, asserted that the nominations "must be contrued as a step toward our war involvement."

Japan Seizes British Ship Carrying Arms

By the Associated Press

Shanghai, July 9.—Handbills carrying the slogan "Down With America" were posted in Shanghai's streets today and a Japanese warship emphasized Tokyo's attitude toward England by seizing a British ship in Shanghai's harbor.

These manifestations of Japanese discontent with United States and British policies in the Far East coincided with a Japanese protest against "mistreatment" of Japanese gendarmes arrested by U. S. Marines July 7 and Tokyo's rejection of the British refusal to close the Burma supply route to China.

The anti-American handbills were posted by "indignant Japanese patriots," said the newspaper Tairiku Shimpo, which announced that a mass meeting of Japanese residents tomorrow would discuss the Marines' "insult" to Japanese authority.

[All available police in the British-American area of the International Settlement will be mobilized to prevent anti-American demonstrations, the United Press said.]

The gendarmes were arrested after they appeared armed, in plain clothes, in the marine-guarded zone of the International Settlement. Maj. Gen. Miura, the Japanese commander of gendarmes, demanded an apology for asserted mistreatmen of his men. Tairiku Shimpo suggested that the Marines were "gentlemen with human faces, but with the skins of animals."

The British ship seized here was the 3,000-ton steamer Shengking. Domei (the Japanese news agency) charged she was carrying munitions belonging to "a certain belligerent country" into Japanese-occupied territory.

British sources said the Shengking was carrying rifle ammunition from the French Concession at Tientsin to the French concession here and that Japanese had approved her manifest.

Meanwhile, reports from Tokyo said Japan is prepared for military action against the British Crown Colony of Hongkong if Britain persists in her refusal to close the Burma road to supplies for the armies of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Chungking Raided

Chungking, China, July 9 (AP).—Japanese planes raided this Chinese capital today for the twentieth time this summer, flying high above the American Embassy section and dropping more than 200 bombs into the already heavily punished center of the city.

Many incendiary and detonation bombs exploded harmlessly on the river edge. Others further smashed the area in which nearly half of all structures already had been ruined. All electric and telephone wires are down and many thoroughfares are blocked by debris.

There had been no hint that the maneuvering toward a Mediterranean sea test would come to a head so quickly except that contained in an Italian radio announcement yesterday. It said that units of the British fleet had headed westward from Alexandria, but no details were given.

A few hours before the Mediterranean clash, British ships and planes all but wiped the French navy from the seas and enveloped two German warships in a sheet of flame in their own heavily protected naval harbors.

Virtually complete immobilization of the once-powerful French fleet came when the squadron of a battleship and four cruisers at Alexandria peacefully accepted internment under British guns. This with the earlier disabling of the battleship Richelieu at Dakar left all but one of France's battleship in British hands or incapacitated for months. Only the incompleted Jean Bart remains available to the Germans.

Wave after wave of German raids over Britain yesterday took ten civilian lives, but cost the Germans for the third successive day eight of their attacking planes.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons July 4 the Italian navy had "prudently" remained out of the way while the British began their world-wide campaign to sink, disable or intern the French navy to keep it from becoming an arm of the Axis naval power.

Previously he had told the House that the British were waiting for the Italians to offer battle anywhere.

The tieing up of the French naval squadron at Alexandria harbor in a bloodless action freed the British for an attack on the Italians.

The admiralty announced that the commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean naval forces said contact was made with an Italian force consisting of two of Italy's six battleships, and a number of 8-inch and 6-inch gun cruisers and destroyers.

The admiralty's official but graphic account continued:

"Almost immediately after contact was gained the enemy retired behind a smoke-screen laid by their destroyers but before the enemy was obscured one hit at extreme range was obtained by one or our capital ships on an Italian battleship.

"At the time of receipt of this information the enemy were being pursued. The enemy ships were also attacked by our fleet air arm aircraft."

Then the admiralty said it was waiting for more details on this first clash of the British with a power which is threatening its empire life-line through the Mediterranean.

British bombers in a dawn flight pounded four German cruisers or destroyers near Wilhelmshaven. Two were set ablaze with incendiary bombs.

Other bursts of bombs straddled the docks and struck the sheds, slipways and a crane jetty at Kiel, starting other fires. Still other bombers dropped their loads on a German supply ship near German-occupied Denmark's air base, Aalborg, and hit wharves in the nearby harbor.

Raiding from Holland to Norway, the R. A. F. lost seven planes in a bitter fight over the airdrome at Stavanger, Norway.

[DNB, official Nazi news service, said all 12 of the British planes raiding Stavanger were shot down. The Germans claimed 11 other British planes, against 5 of their own, in yesterday's operations.

[Nazi bombers, Berlin said, scored hits on five British merchantmen, a cruiser, a destroyer and on English oil tanks, shipyards and munitions plants.]

At home, German planes which roared over England, Scotland and Wales all day and night wound up their performance about midnight with a spectacular demonstration off the southeast coast.

At least ten persons were killed during the day and eight German planes downed. Six were killed in the southwest, 2 in the southeast, 2 in Wales.

Last night German planes skimmed low over the sea just off the southeast coast while others, flying high, dived to 1,000 feet to drop "whistling" bombs on one town. Several buildings were damaged. Defending planes shot down a German seaplane.

The nation was warned by radio by Gen. Sir Hugh Elles, chief of the civil defense operations staff, that "something much more serious" is coming.

But Britons drew hope and courage from the bold strokes of their own navy and airforce.

The powerful French squadron of the eastern Mediterranean, a battleship, four cruisers and other ships, spiked its own guns at Alexandria for the rest of the war.

At the Senegalese port of Dakar in the South Atlantic the brand new 35,000-ton battleship Richelieu, pride of the French navy, lay disabled and partly submerged, prey of depth bombs from a daring British motorboat crew and the torpedoes of Royal Navy planes.

First Lord Alexander told a dramatic story of the assault on the Richelieu after the French had rejected British conditions which would keep her out of enemy hands.

A motorboat under Lieut. Comdr. R. H. Bristowe—a former London stockbroker—was sent into the harbor.

At the risk of blowing themselves out of the water, the seamen dropped depth charges close under the stern of the Richelieu. These damaged her propellers and steering gear, and aircraft dropped torpedoes when the motorboat sped away.

It was established after the attack, Alexander said, that the Richelieu was listing to port, down by the stern and wallowing in a pool of oil.

Seizure of Antonescu Reported as Decree Forbids Stock Sales

By the Associated Press

Bucharest (Wednesday), July 10.—King Carol, taking strenuous measures to keep his own totalitarian party in the Rumanian saddle, was reported today to have caused the arrest of Gen. Ion Antonescu, veteran Iron Guard leader.

Officials declined to confirm or deny the report, saying that a statement would be issued later in the day.

Antonescu's arrest was reported to have resulted from his attempts to unite various Iron Guard groups. King Carol has forbidden revival of old political parties.

Stock Sales Forbidden

Antonescu, war minister in the former cabinet of Octavian Goga, was mentioned only Monday by political observers as a probable successor to Premier Ion Gigurtu if the Iron Guard should reorganize the government to its own tastes.

Reports of his arrest followed by a few hours a government decree forbidding the sale outside this country of stock in any foreign-owned Rumanian company.

This action was taken when reports spread that the $100,000,000 British oil interests here might be transferred to Russia.

Speculation that such a transfer was in prospect had arisen simultaneously with disclosures that for weeks British-produced oil actually has been going to Germany.

War Prevents Exports

British and other foreign interests had been "forced by circumstance," the general manager of one oil company said, to send all their oil to the Nazis, save for small quantities to Yugoslavia, Hungary and Bulgaria.

The war in the Mediterranean, he explained, had prevented British exportation, and at the same time under Rumanian law the British were compelled to pay royalties in oil to the Rumanian government, which has been exporting it in turn to Germany.

During the day, armed soldiers appeared at offices of all foreign oil companies, including American concerns, to prevent the removal of records concerning the oil supplies which are so vital to German's army.

lations as a means of settling Hungary's 20-year claim on Transylvania, which was a Magyar province before the World War.)

Just how much of Transylvania was demanded is not known, but the area in question was understood to comprise the border regions where the Hungarian minority is centered. It was pointed out, too, that that area also is the site of Rumania's powerful "Carol line," considered the only obstacle to an invading army.

That part of Transylvania which is inhabited chiefly by those of German blood—there are 500,000 such according to the last census—is expected under the plan to be left to Rumania, but with almost complete autonomy within the Rumanian state.

Agreement Preliminary

It was understood the Transylvanian German "fuehrer," Hans Otto Roth, was holding back from taking the ministry of minorities in the Rumanian cabinet pending assurances that such autonomy would be discussed at Munich tomorrow.

It was stressed that the reported German-Italian-Hungarian agreement was only preliminary, and was subject to change.

Nevertheless, diplomats saw this as the first step in a campaign by Germany and Italy to change the pattern of Southeastern Europe quickly to their own notions in preparation for the big attack on the British Isles.

Even as they left, Hungary's mobilization reached its peak; more than 500,000 men stood ready near the Rumanian frontier.

(In Sofia, the controlled Bulgarian press called upon the Balkan entente of Rumania, Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey to bring about a peaceful settlement of Bulgaria's territorial claims "before it is too late."

(The press unanimously declared that otherwise Bulgaria "might accept the help of Russia or Germany and Italy, which might bring repercussions unfavorable to the rest of the Balkans.")

Since the war started, Hitler and Mussolini have stressed their wish to settle troublesome southeastern European questions at a peace conference.

Writ Asked to Halt Sale Of Largest Uncut Diamond

726.6-Carat Treasure, Valued at $750,000, Center of Court Fight

By the Associated Press

New York, July 9.—A civil court action filed in London today brought the $750,000 President Vargas diamond—fourth largest ever found—out of the obscurity of the vault of a Fifth avenue diamond merchant for a brief public appearance.

Reporters gingerly palmed the 726.6-carat treasure while Harry Winston, the owner, explained his side of the injunction action of Triefus Bros., London diamond brokers.

The latter sought to restrain Winston from selling the diamond—largest uncut stone in the world—claiming they were to have had an interest in the purchase. Winston said his London attorneys had entered a denial.

The President Vargas nudged the famous Jonker diamond out of fourth place among record stones by a mere six-tenths of a carat. Winston also owned and cut the Jonker, and still owns the largest finished gem from the Jonker, a $1,000,000 bauble weighing 126 carats.

The Brazilian stone was found August 13, 1938, in the state of Minas Geraes, by Joaquim Evancio, a small farmer and diamond digger. Evancio received about $400,000.

Winston hurried to South America to bid for the diamond, but reached Rio de Janeiro only to find the diamond had been shipped to Amsterdam by a Netherlands syndicate.

"When you're after a prize like this," said Winston today, "you forget money and obstacles. I went to Amsterdam."

After months of negotiating, he bought the diamond in April, 1939, and shipped it to New York by mail—postage, 60 cents. Since then the stone has laid in the vault waiting until the trade, unsettled by war, returns to normal.

The President Vargas—named for the President of Brazil—was exceeded in size only by the Cullinan and Excelsior, from South Africa, and the Grand Mogul, from India.

French Missions Held in Britain

London, July 9 (AP).—Members of the French military and naval missions to London are being "held for repatriation," it was learned in informed quarters today.

Official sources said the missions definitely had not been interned, but observers regarded the phrase "held for repatriation" as elastic enough to cover virtual internment of the members, who worked with the British up to the French capitulation.

It was said they are in possession of much information about military and naval forces here, which Great Britain would not want to reach the Axis powers.

Italy's Fleet Well-Designed For Task in Mediterranean

By International News Service

The Italian navy is a modern array of warcraft especially designed for fighting in the limited confines of the Mediterranean.

The battleships Littorio and Vittorio Veneto, recently commissioned, are fast, well-armed craft of 35,000 tons, equipped with nine 15-inch guns in their main batteries. These guns are said to be capable of unusually long range.

Two other battleships of the same type are under construction in Italian yards but are not yet commissioned. For the rest of her capital ships, Italy relies on four World War craft rebuilt within the last few years. They are of 23,622 tons each and are armed with twelve 12.8-inch guns.

Carry Four Planes

The older battleships carry four airplanes while the two new ones carry three each.

Italy's chief naval strength lies in its cruisers. The Bolanzo, a 10,000-ton craft capable of a speed of 39 knots and armed with eight 8-inch guns, is rated as one of the best of its type afloat. There are five other heavy cruisers, all armed with the same highly efficient 8-inch guns.

Two other heavy cruisers, 8,000-ton craft, are now being built. Laid down in 1939, they could not be ready for action this year.

About 13 light cruisers of a type known as the "Condottieri Class" and an undetermined number of the "Regolo Class" recently commissioned or now under construction complete Italy's cruiser strength. Designed to combat French cruisers, these vessels would be overwhelmed by British battleships or heavy cruisers. They rely on their speed, about 35 knots, and carry ten 6-inch guns.

Has 50 Destroyers

About 50 modern destroyers and a fleet of approximately 115 submarines completes Italy's naval strength, except for the motor torpedo boats which Italy pioneered.

These motor torpedo boats are the extremely fast prototype of the "Splinter Fleets" Britain and Germany have thrown into action in the English Channel and North Sea.

Italy has nearly 100 of these tiny warcraft, well suited to defense of the Italian coast.

Grosvenors to Take Long Western Trip

They Will Meet David Fairchilds on Coast In August; War Cuts Short Voyage To South Seas on Junk, Jung Ho

By Hope Ridings Miller.

TRAVEL NOTES: Along about this season you can usually count on Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor to take off for their summer home, Bien Breagh, on Cape Breton Island off the coast of Novia Scotia. But this time they've decided on a different type of vacation. On Friday, they will leave by motor for the West Coast on a trip that will keep them away from Washington for several months.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

Exactly where they will go, they do not yet know; but chances are, they will be somewhere around Los Angeles on August 16 when Mrs. Grosvenor's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. David Fairchild, arrive by boat from Manila, where they now are. You will recall that several months ago Dr. and Mrs. Fairchild, formerly of Washington but more recently residents of Miami, Fla., accompanied by Mrs. Annie Archbold, of Washington, set off for the South Seas in search of new plants for the Fairchild Tropical Garden in Coconut Grove, Fla. Most of their journey was made in the Jung Ho, the luxury junk, which Mrs. Archbold had built especially for the trip.

Well, the war seems to have cut short the sailing trip. Mrs. Archbold has sent her junk on to Tahiti and she is scheduled to return to the United States by clipper on July 20. Meanwhile, the Fairchilds will sail home leisurely, arriving in California almost a month later.

JUST WHAT the Grosvenors' itinerary will be after they meet the Fairchilds is not yet decided. But they expect to continue their Western motor trip until late autumn. Meanwhile, there will be a gathering of their clan at the Nova Scotia estate, once owned by the late Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, father of Mrs. Grosvenor. Mr. and Mrs. Cabot Coville (she is the former Lilian Grosvenor) are there already. Dr. Mabel H. Grosvenor plans to go there early next week, while the youngest daughter in the household, Miss Gloria Grosvenor, will start out by motor for New England the end of this week and arrive at the island home the latter part of the month. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Alexander Gayley, whose marriage took place here recently, are now honeymooning in Pennsylvania, but they will go to Nova Scotia later for several weeks, joining Dr. and Mrs. Walter Kendall Myers (she was Carol Grosvenor), who already are established there for the season.

WHILE I'M STILL ON the subject of summer travel, I might as well tell you that Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver La Gorce also plan to leave the latter part of the month for a Western vacation. They will fly with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kudner to Carrizozo, N. Mexi., where the Kudner's ranch, Oh-Bar-Oh, is located. En route, the party will stop over in Akron, Ohio, to pick up Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, who will accompany them on to New Mexico.

After a couple of weeks, Dr. La Gorce will return to Washington and his wife will go on to Hollywood, Calif., to spend the remainder of the summer with her mother, Mrs. Beulah Davis, in Hollywood. Mrs. Vandenberg's plans for the remainder of the summer are not yet complete.

POTPOURRI: Now that the famous Cosmos Club is scheduled to go the way of far too many Washington landmarks, members who have enjoyed its garden for several summers are entertaining there right and left. For example, Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard had a small luncheon in the garden yesterday and she and Dr. Stoddard will be hosts at a dinner there this evening . . . Mrs. E. W. Pavenstedt (Maude Parker) is in New York for a few days and is staying at the New Weston . . . Spending the summer in Bristol, R. I., are Mr. and Mrs. Metcalfe Walling . . . Miss Cecil Lester Jones, who is vacationing at East Stoneham, Me., has turned over her house at 2906 P street to Miss Sarah Jenkins-Smith, Miss Eleanor Powell and Miss Elizabeth L'Anglais . . . Mrs. Charles Cooper, who has been ill for several months, is now recuperating in her summer place near Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. H. F. Grady Leaves Today For Convention

Has Attended Democrat Conclaves for Years At Delegate or Visitor

Mrs. Henry F. Grady, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Patricia Grady, and Mrs. Frank Waring, will leave Washington today for Chicago where they will be at the Stevens Hotel during the Democratic Convention.

Attending such a get-together has become a habit with Mrs. Grady. Ever since the Democratic Party has been organized, either she or her father, the late Sen. Reginaldo del Valle, of California, have had a front seat at the convention. Back in 1920 both were voting delegates. Shortly before, she had organized and headed the Western unit of the Woman's Suffrage group, and her father had also been an active worker in the movement that culminated in votes for women.

Again in 1924 Mrs. Grady appeared at the National Convention as a delegate. In fact, she has functioned in that capacity at each National Convention since, with the exception of one year, 1928, when she and her husband were in Europe. In 1936, she seconded the nomination of Roosevelt. This year, she is one of the four women on the committee of arrangements for the convention.

Christensens Entertain Archduke Felix

Archduke Felix, brother to the pretender of the throne of Austria-Hungary, was the guest yesterday at the Shoreham in the apartment of the Financial Counselor of the Norwegian Legation and Mme. Lars Christensen.

After his visit here the Archduke returned to New York, where he has been staying. His brother, Archduke Otto, has returned to Europe after his recent visit here and is now reported to be in Portugal.

Also returning to New York yesterday after a visit at the Shoreham was Mrs. August Belmont, who came to Washington on behalf of the Red Cross.

Bert Fish Sails For Lisbon Today

The United States Minister to Egypt, Judge Bert Fish, left Washington yesterday afternoon after spending several days at the Mayflower. He is sailing today for Lisbon and will travel by train through Portugal, Spain, France, Switzerland, through the Balkan countries and to Istanbul, then to Syria and Palestine and on to Cairo.

At the time of his arrival in the Capital it was thought that he would have to make the trip to his post by way of the Pacific and the Orient. Since returning to this country late in March, Judge Fish spent the greater part of the time at his home in DeLand, Fla.

Elnathan Nelsons Hosts at Party In Their Garden

Mr. and Mrs. Elnathan Kemper Nelson entertained at a garden party last evening at their home in Sligo Park Hills. The garden was illuminated by flood-lights and flowered lamps and a colored fountain completed the picture.

Pictures of his recent trip to Vienna were shown by Dr. Harry E. Garesline. Miss Elizabeth Carol Rogers offered several dramatic sketches. Assisting the hostess were Mrs. James A. Burroughs, Miss Gertrude Beck, and Mrs. Dalton E. Leary.

Mrs. Pell Gives Party in Bermuda

Mrs. Robert Pell, of Washington, who has joined her mother, Mrs. Reginald Barker, of London, in Bermuda, was hostess at a luncheon a few days ago at Long Cottage, Mrs. Barker's home in Paget.

The party was in honor of Mrs. Hastings-Brooke, sister of the Governor of Bermuda. Guests included the American Vice Consul and Mrs. Clay Merrell, Mr. and Mrs. John Kilbreth, of New York; Mrs. R. G. Robinson, Howard Buck and Jay Lynk, of Bermuda.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

PERFECT WEATHER tempted a good many persons to fly down to Rehoboth Beach over the week-end and the airport there made a brave showing with bright and shiny private planes parked in front of its hangers like automobiles. Among the number was the plane that the Australian Minister and Mrs. Richard Casey use for so many of their trips and in which they arrived at Rehoboth for a week-end of sea and sun.

Also week-ending at Rehoboth were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanger, of Washington, who were enjoying a short vacation after the Republican convention, at which Mr. Sanger did such yeoman's service with the Young Republican division of the Republican National Committee.

MR. SANGER said that the convention ran true to form in that it produced its quota of amusing contretemps. One of them was brought about by the visit of the Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope to the convention and they were the victims. It seems that word had gotten about that tickets were being saved for the popular diplomatic couple, so that when they arrived and asked for their tickets they were told by a distracted official hostess that three "Finnish Ministers" had already asked for and received the coveted pasteboards that same day.

THE LITTLE "smoke-filled room," so important in the lore of conventions, was replaced at Philadelphia by the freight elevator in the delegates' hotel. In fact it was in this helicopter-like and quite private chamber that Mr. Willkie was introduced to an important personage who became instrumental in securing his nomination for President.

WHILE IN REHOBOTH the Sangers called on Mrs. McCeney Werlich and inquired after the health of her father, Robert Hinckley, who makes his home in Rehoboth the year around since his retirement from the active social life of Washington. He and Mr. Sanger's father were friends in the days when Col. Sanger was Assistant Secretary of War under Theodore Roosevelt. At that epoch Mr. Hinckley painted a very fine portrait of Col. Sanger which now hangs in the family home at Sangersfield.

Shortly after their return to Washington the Sangers expect to set out for Chicago and the Democratic National Convention.

CHASE DONALDSON, of Washington, spent the week-end with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Henry B. Thompson, at her cottage on Park avenue. Mrs. Donaldson was unfortunately forced to remain in Washington nursing an abscessed ear.

Among the Washingtonians dining and dancing at the Beach Club that night were Gen. and Mrs. S. T. Ansell and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ansell, with the latter's sister, Peggy Essary; Mrs. A. H. Ferrandou and her attractive daughter who will be one of next season's debutantes; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Smith, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Jeffress, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Prew Savoy, James Mewshaw and R. Kemp Slaughter.

C. L. Wilsons Return From Honeymoon Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis Wilson have recently returned from their wedding trip to New York City. The bride was formerly Miss Doris Marie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Smith. Mr. Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Wilson, also of this city.

The marriage took place June 21 at the home of the bride with the Rev. Edward B. Wilcox officiating. Palms, ferns and vases of delphinium with gladoli adorned the house. The couple received their vows before an improvised altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white net gown with inserts of lace made over white satin. Her lace-trimmed veil fell from a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley, with an orchid in the center.

Mrs. J. J. Mack Supper Hostess

Congenial guests, excellent Russian food and a sparkling hostess combined to make the supper party given last night by Mrs. J. J. Mack a very pleasant one. Since reopening her Spring Valley house Mrs. Mack has been giving a series of supper parties—her favorite form of entertainment.

The party was informal from beginning to end. Gathering in various parts of the spacious house, guests sipped drinks before partaking of the buffet. Supper over with, games—or good conversation—were in order. Assisting the hostess, who incidentally was celebrating her birthday, were her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Belic.

Guests included Senator Henry Fountain Ashurst, the Attache of the Egyptian Legation, Anwar Niazi; Baroness Von Below and son, F. Dale Turnbull; Mrs. J. Hitler Decides to Set Up 'Germanic Union' For Scandinavia to Cooperate in Blockade

By the United Press

Berlin, July 9.—Adolf Hitler has decided to set up a "Germanic Union" of the North Sea and the Baltic, bringing Sweden, Norway and Denmark under Nazi domination and protection, it was announced tonight by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Germany's No. 1 ideologist.

Although he made no mention of Russia's interests in the Baltic states, Rosenberg referred once to Finland.

Germany's domination over the Scandinavian states will be permanent, Rosenberg said, but he did not reveal whether Hitler intends to allow those states to exist as separate nations.

Germany already occupies Norway and Denmark and last week obtained rights of military transit through Sweden.

He made no reference to Latvia, Estonia or Lithunia. (The Baltic states will vote in general elections next Sunday whether they are to be incorporated into the Soviet Union as additional republics.)

Germany, said Rosenberg in a statement to foreign newspaper correspondents, regards Scandinavia as "part of the Germanic union of the North Sea and Baltic Sea" under Nazi protection.

Step Held Imperative

Incorporation of the Scandinavian nations into the German-dominated area of Europe is imperative, Rosenberg said, because of the "necessity of closer economic, political and cultural cooperation" against the British blockade.

"Nor can Germany ever cease to protect herself against a drive such as was attempted by Britain last March," he added, referring again to German charges that Britain plotted to invade Norway to strike at Germany on the northern flank.

Rosenberg did not designate the parts the individual Scandinavian nations would play in the "German union" but he made it clear that they will be required to lean toward and upon Germany as "the largest Germanic nation."

"A small nation does not violate its honor when it places itself under the protection of a larger nation—it simply recognizes existing life-rules," he said.

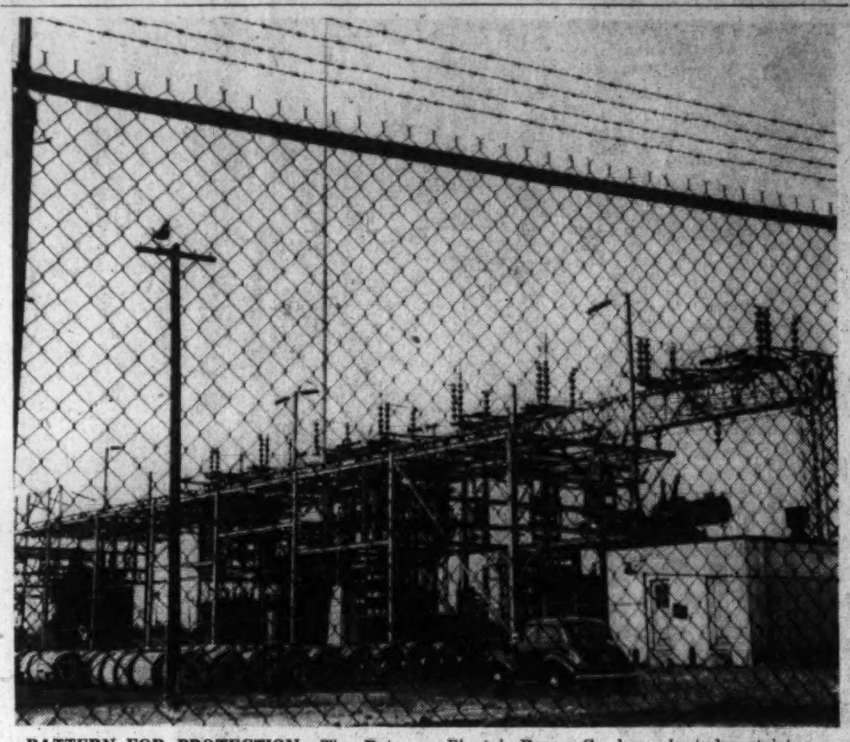
"Fate has willed that Germany must now take the entire Germanic area under her protection."

Defines 'Germanic Areas'

Rosenberg said all areas from which German peoples once emigrated are regarded as "Germanic areas," instead of limiting the classification to parts of Europe having German populations.

The British blockade, Rosenberg continued, forced closer cooperation in the European areas as well as a closer integration of all economic possibilities in order to enable Europe to exist on its own commodities insofar as was possible and avoid the necessity of imports from abroad.

Under the new setup, Rosenberg said, Germany envisages the building of a gigantic network of canals and roads linking the Danube basin with the new "German union" in the north.



PATTERN FOR PROTECTION—The Potomac Electric Power Co. has adopted a strict system of pass control to its generating stations. It is protecting the stations with barbed wire and flood lights, and is planning to double its armed guard as part of a program to prevent sabotage. the Marquis de Chambrun, an honorary citizen of the United States, as a descendant of Lafayette.

The Chamber vote showed that less than two-thirds of the Chamber's normal membership of 618 took part. However, these ministers or former ministers were present: Camille Chautemps, Charles Pomaret, Andre Fevrier and Albert Chichery.

Former Premier Paul Reynaud, whose leadership was discarded when France decided to sue for peace, also attended. His head was swathed in bandages. It was his first appearance in public since an automobile accident in which he was injured June 28 near Montpelier.

The government's outline to Parliament of its plans for the new France said in part:

"We must take all lessons from lost battles. We must look back on the errors made, determine the responsibility, seek the causes of our weaknesses. This will be done.

"Having measured the extent of our defeat, a nation like ours, whatever may be its sorrows and its sufferings, must not lose itself in useless regrets.

"It is from military defeat and internal disorder that other nations have drawn the strength to revive and transform themselves. At the cruelest moment of its history France must understand and accept the necessity of a national revolution."

The government must have all power, the declaration continued, to "decide, undertake, negotiate, and to be able to save what must be saved, destroy what must be destroyed, build what must be built."

Then came the short but powerful text of the government's resolution:

"The government, therefore, asks that Parliament be united in a National Assembly and vote confidence in Marshal Petain, president of the council (premier) to promulgate under his signature and his responsibility the fundamental laws of the French state."

Help Britain Halt Aggressors Now, Morrison Tells U.S.

London, July 9 (AP).—Herbert Morrison, British supply minister, appealed to the United States tonight for a dovetailing of British and American resources and production to defeat "the strength of the European Continent organized for aggression."

"You know that there is no limit to Nazi ambitions," he said in a broadcast relayed to the United States.

"We in this country are inspired by the sight of America, awake and preparing.

"Against the tremendous material strength of the European Continent organized for aggression there is only one sure industrial counterpoint in all the world, and that is to be found in the capacity of Great Britain and the United States."

D. C. Utilities Sharpen Eyes For Saboteurs

Pepco Threatened; Transit Company To Check Aliens

Washington's public utilities are rapidly pushing forward or have now under consideration programs to make airtight their defenses against sabotage.

Leadership in the move, a survey disclosed last night, is being taken by the Potomac Electric Power Co., where protective measures were accelerated in the last few weeks by reports that an employe of a contracting firm working on its property had boasted he could "wreck the plant."

The Capital Transit Co. has under consideration, it was learned, compilation of a list of aliens among its 3,500 employes. Edward D. Merrill, company president, said that if officials decided to catalogue employes according to the status of their citizenship the purpose would be simply "to have the information." The step would have no effect on employment, he added.

Proper Precautions Taken

Officials of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. declared "all proper precautions are being taken to protect our property," but declined to give details.

Approximately 20 civilians employed as guards by the Washington Gas Light Co., soon may be sworn in as special policemen and provided with guns, E. J. Boothby, general manager of the company, declared.

The reported threat to the power company's generating plant at Buzzard Point was investigated by James H. Ferry, vice president and chief engineer. The employe involved, a man about 30 and pronouncedly pro-Hitler in his views, quit his job 15 minutes after a telephone discussion of the report by his superior and Ferry.

Ferry said the telephone call was made about three weeks ago with especial care that it should not be overheard. The contractor's superintendent, he said, was unable to confirm the reported threat, but disclosed that the employe had antagonized fellow workmen with "careless statements."

Alfred G. Neal, president of the company, said in the last three months officials of another utility have advised him that an attempt was made to enter company property on the pretext of official business.

To guard against unofficial visits to Pepco plants, identification cards good for only one year are being issued to employes who have business on the properties. The cards replace badges formerly used.

Double Company Guards

At the same time, the company intends to increase its 24-man armed force of special policemen and will double the guard at its Buzzard Point and Benning power plants. Eight or ten men will be added to the force, Ferry stated. The warehouse at Tenth street and Florida avenue northwest and the office building downtown also are under guard.

As another precaution, the company is circling with fence the now only partially fenced-in Buzzard Point plant and is making repairs to its Benning fences. Special permission will be sought of the District Commissioners for exemption from regulations to permit barbed wire installation on the fences.

The added protection of fences is being supplemented with flood lights.

"There is absolutely no danger of a wholesale shutdown of power here," Ferry said. "We are certain the courses taken will be effective."

history, opening bids for 629 vehicles for its Armored Corps, patterned after the German "panzer" troops. With the completion of the order, the Nation will have 1,700 light and medium tanks.

The United States Housing Authority warned the defense program was in danger of "bogging down" because of a shortage of housing accommodations near arms industrial centers.

Erward R. Stettinius and William S. Knudsen, members of the defense commission, urged Congress to apropriate $25,000,000 to the Tennessee Valley Authority to speed up production of aluminum for airplane construction. Appearing before a secret House Appropriations subcommittee session, they asked that a dam and additional electrical generating units be constructed in Tennessee and Alabama.

Training Hearing Deferred

The scheduled appearance of War and Navy Department representatives before the Senate Military Affairs Committee to testify on the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill was postponed until after action on confirmation of the new chiefs of the two services. President Roosevelt, asked about the bill at his press conference, said the whole question was being mulled over.

Representatives of the State Governors' conference committee will meet with Justice Department officials today to discuss a proposal to call the 48 Governors to Washington for conference on defense. Gov. O'Conor of Maryland and others have been invited to attend today's session.

Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, writing as Acting Secretary of the Navy, said in a letter read before the House that no naval vessels have been sold to any belligerent power. It was written in response to a resolution introduced in the House.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, declared in a radio address that the United States cannot afford to waste "one moment" in its preparedness plans, lest it be "too late." The Nation, he declared, must be stronger than all potential aggressors.

The Army recalled Col. Horace H. Fuller, military attache to Paris, and his chief assistant, Lieut. Col. Sumner Waite, to report on the debacle of the French army. They will then go to Fort Bragg, N. C., and Camp Jackson, Ala., respectively, for troop duty.

Acting Secretary of War Louis Johnson said defense needs would force the Army to deny in the future the assignment of planes for participation in public events, such as State fairs and opening of commercial airports.

The warning of the lack of housing for defense workers was sounded in a report to the USHA by the national executive committee of Housing Authorities.

"We are already in a situation as desperate as we were during the World War when disastrous delays occurred because war industries couldn't get and hold workers for whom no housing was available," the report stated.

Migration has already set in on a large scale, and workers brought in for jobs in defense industries are being forced to leave because they cannot find places to live in.

"Some families are paying as much as 50 per cent of their income for rent. Workers are occupying beds in two and three shifts. Buildings unfit for use are being opened to the rush of thousands of families being employed in defense industries. Arsenal employes already are refusing to come to work in cities where they cannot find homes."

Writ Asked to Halt Sale Of Largest Uncut Diamond

726.6-Carat Treasure, Valued at $750,000, Center of Court Fight

By the Associated Press

New York, July 9.—A civil court action filed in London today brought the $750,000 President Vargas diamond—fourth largest ever found—out of the obscurity of the vault of a Fifth avenue diamond merchant for a brief public appearance.

Reporters gingerly palmed the 726.6-carat treasure while Harry Winston, the owner, explained his side of the injunction action of Triefus Bros., London diamond brokers.

The latter sought to restrain Winston from selling the diamond—largest uncut stone in the world—claiming they were to have had an interest in the purchase. Winston said his London attorneys had entered a denial.

The President Vargas nudged the famous Jonker diamond out of fourth place among record stones by a mere six-tenths of a carat. Winston also owned and cut the Jonker, and still owns the largest finished gem from the Jonker, a $1,000,000 bauble weighing 126 carats.

The Brazilian stone was found August 13, 1938, in the state of Minas Geraes, by Joaquim Evancio, a small farmer and diamond digger. Evancio received about $400,000.

Winston hurried to South America to bid for the diamond, but reached Rio de Janeiro only to find the diamond had been shipped to Amsterdam by a Netherlands syndicate.

"When you're after a prize like this," said Winston today, "you for-

French Missions Held in Britain

London, July 9 (AP).—Members of the French military and naval missions to London are being "held for repatriation," it was learned in informed quarters today.

Official sources said the missions definitely had not been interned, but observers regarded the phrase "held for repatriation" as elastic enough to cover virtual internment of the members, who worked with the British up to the French capitulation.

It was said they are in possession of much information about military and naval forces here, which Great Britain would not want to reach the Axis powers.

France Must 'Pay Penalty,' Italy Insists

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, July 9.—Italians today await with confidence the results of the Berlin conference in which the first steps of the "new order" in Europe are being taken. The fate of southeastern Europe will be settled as much as it can be, considering Russia may have other ideas.

France, Italians insist, will not be allowed to escape the consequences of having opposed the Axis and lost. Scandinavia may now form one nation again with one king. Spain will doubtless get Gibraltar, but that is apparently going to have to be fought for with aid from the Axis.

To be sure, Great Britain has to be defeated before the new order can be safely installed, and, therefore, the forthcoming attack against the British again takes the forefront in all comments. The threefold task of the Axis powers, according to Virginio Gayda, in the Giornale d'Italia is this:

"To establish a counter-blockade around the British Isles; to cut their contacts with the Empire and the rest of the world; to attack them and smash them in their national territory, their imperial positions and on the seas."

Won't Be Axis Ally

France will not be allowed to become an ally of the Axis, nor will she be relieved of any just penalties, says Gayda. Her collapse "does not alter the positions and conditions which she herself created by her past policies and her warlike actions against the Axis. The vanquished remains vanquished.

The equally authoritative Giovanni Ansaldo, writing from Germany in this morning's Telegrafo, the Ciano family newspaper, adds that even the episode of Oran "has not substantially modified the situation." He admits, however, that the new authoritarian government being formed at Vichy "justifies optimism that the French will make a contribution, however passive, toward European reconstruction."

Telegrafo admits the British action has destroyed one-third of the French fleet and seized another third. It also states that "it is not excluded that the French naval bases of North Africa will be used against the British with the consent of the French."

san aspect of the Nation's rearmament program.

Apparently sympathizing with the minority, the galleries burst into loud applause when Senator Tydings shouted—in answer to a question of Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida: "I'm not worrying about Great Britain; what I'm worrying about is the United States of America."

Flushed with anger at the demonstration, Senator Barkley jumped to his feet to "insist that the Chair enforce the rule" forbidding applause.

Senator Barkley told the Senate that he disagreed with Col. Stimson's stand for convoying American munitions ships to England if necessary, but pointed out that "no matter how strongly the Secretary felt about the matter, he couldn't enforce his view without the consent of Congress.

Confirmation of Stimson and Knox "will inevitably be taken as constitution of a war Cabinet," charged Senator Clark. He said the testimony of the two nominees "abundantly justifies the claim that they're both interventionists."

"You can't fight wars with guns you haven't ordered or with men you haven't trained," Senator Tydings warned. The Marylander declared his sympathy for the British and agreed with Senator Pepper that a German victory would be serious for this country; but he insisted that if the United States should be drawn into war at the present time, it could be of "no real help."

Taft's Views on War

"If the argument is sound that the best way to defend America is to aid England, then we should go the whole way and declare war at once on Germany and Italy," said Senator Taft. He declared that "we probably could assist the British materially by declaring war" through giving them naval aid and releasing British ships for the defense of the British Isles.

"The course advocated by Mr. Stimson, and certainly receiving sympathetic approval from the President, logically demands immediate declaration of war against Germany and Italy," he said.

But, Senator Taft declared, "the idea that we can help democracy by going to war seems to me fantastic" and American entrance into war "would be more likely to destroy American democracy than to destroy dictatorships in the totalitarian countries."

Barkley Queries Taft

Asserting that "I do not minimize the seriousness of the situation produced by a German victory," Senator Taft predicted that in such an event large sums would have to be spent on armaments—but American involvement in war would mean an even larger expenditure "of money and lives," he said.

Senator Barkley inquired why Senator Taft was reported to have said when he was at the Republican Convention in Philadelphia that he would vote for Col. Stimson.

"The Senator will understand," replied Senator Taft with a grin, "that I don't remember everything that happened in Philadelphia."

He explained that at that time he hadn't read Col. Stimson's latest speech because "I was busy."

Nicaragua Recalled

"But not busy enough," observed the majority leader.

Senator Wheeler charged that Col. Stimson "has constantly advocated taking steps that will get us into war" and alleged that both he and Col. Knox had constantly denounced the social reforms of the New Deal.

The Montana isolationists attacked Col. Stimson's connection with the sending of marines to Nicaragua and alleged that "the real reason" for sending them was that "financial interests in New York wanted to protect their particular dictator who was in power."

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, who, like Senator Tydings, was one of the "purgees" in the 1938 campaign, asserted that the nominations "must be contrued as a step toward our war involvement."

Japan Seizes British Ship Carrying Arms

By the Associated Press

Shanghai, July 9.—Handbills carrying the slogan "Down With America" were posted in Shanghai's streets today and a Japanese warship emphasized Tokyo's attitude toward England by seizing a British ship in Shanghai's harbor.

These manifestations of Japanese discontent with United States and British policies in the Far East coincided with a Japanese protest against "mistreatment" of Japanese gendarmes arrested by U. S. Marines July 7 and Tokyo's rejection of the British refusal to close the Burma supply route to China.

The anti-American handbills were posted by "indignant Japanese patriots," said the newspaper Tairiku Shimpo, which announced that a mass meeting of Japanese residents tomorrow would discuss the Marines' "insult" to Japanese authority.

[All available police in the British-American area of the International Settlement will be mobilized to prevent anti-American demonstrations, the United Press said.]

The gendarmes were arrested after they appeared armed, in plain clothes, in the marine-guarded zone of the International Settlement. Maj. Gen. Miura, the Japanese commander of gendarmes, demanded an apology for asserted mistreatmen of his men. Tairiku Shimpo suggested that the Marines were "gentlemen with human faces, but with the skins of animals."

The British ship seized here was the 3,000-ton steamer Shengking. Domei (the Japanese news agency) charged she was carrying munitions belonging to "a certain belligerent country" into Japanese-occupied territory.

British sources said the Shengking was carrying rifle ammunition from the French Concession at Tientsin to the French concession here and that Japanese had approved her manifest.

Meanwhile, reports from Tokyo said Japan is prepared for military action against the British Crown Colony of Hongkong if Britain persists in her refusal to close the Burma road to supplies for the armies of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Chungking Raided

Chungking, China, July 9 (AP).—Japanese planes raided this Chinese capital today for the twentieth time this summer, flying high above the American Embassy section and dropping more than 200 bombs into the already heavily punished center of the city.

Many incendiary and detonation bombs exploded harmlessly on the river edge. Others further smashed the area in which nearly half of all structures already had been ruined. All electric and telephone wires are down and many thoroughfares are blocked by debris.

There had been no hint that the maneuvering toward a Mediterranean sea test would come to a head so quickly except that contained in an Italian radio announcement yesterday. It said that units of the British fleet had headed westward from Alexandria, but no details were given.

A few hours before the Mediterranean clash, British ships and planes all but wiped the French navy from the seas and enveloped two German warships in a sheet of flame in their own heavily protected naval harbors.

Virtually complete immobilization of the once-powerful French fleet came when the squadron of a battleship and four cruisers at Alexandria peacefully accepted internment under British guns. This with the earlier disabling of the battleship Richelieu at Dakar left all but one of France's battleship in British hands or incapacitated for months. Only the incompleted Jean Bart remains available to the Germans.

Wave after wave of German raids over Britain yesterday took ten civilian lives, but cost the Germans for the third successive day eight of their attacking planes.

Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons July 4 the Italian navy had "prudently" remained out of the way while the British began their world-wide campaign to sink, disable or intern the French navy to keep it from becoming an arm of the Axis naval power.

Previously he had told the House that the British were waiting for the Italians to offer battle anywhere.

The tieing up of the French naval squadron at Alexandria harbor in a bloodless action freed the British for an attack on the Italians.

The admiralty announced that the commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean naval forces said contact was made with an Italian force consisting of two of Italy's six battleships, and a number of 8-inch and 6-inch gun cruisers and destroyers.

The admiralty's official but graphic account continued:

"Almost immediately after contact was gained the enemy retired behind a smoke-screen laid by their destroyers but before the enemy was obscured one hit at extreme range was obtained by one or our capital ships on an Italian battleship.

"At the time of receipt of this information the enemy were being pursued. The enemy ships were also attacked by our fleet air arm aircraft."

Then the admiralty said it was waiting for more details on this first clash of the British with a power which is threatening its empire life-line through the Mediterranean.

British bombers in a dawn flight pounded four German cruisers or destroyers near Wilhelmshaven. Two were set ablaze with incendiary bombs.

Other bursts of bombs straddled the docks and struck the sheds, slipways and a crane jetty at Kiel, starting other fires. Still other bombers dropped their loads on a German supply ship near German-occupied Denmark's air base, Aalborg, and hit wharves in the nearby harbor.

Raiding from Holland to Norway, the R. A. F. lost seven planes in a bitter fight over the airdrome at Stavanger, Norway.

[DNB, official Nazi news service, said all 12 of the British planes raiding Stavanger were shot down. The Germans claimed 11 other British planes, against 5 of their own, in yesterday's operations.

[Nazi bombers, Berlin said, scored hits on five British merchantmen, a cruiser, a destroyer and on English oil tanks, shipyards and munitions plants.]

At home, German planes which roared over England, Scotland and Wales all day and night wound up their performance about midnight with a spectacular demonstration off the southeast coast.

At least ten persons were killed during the day and eight German planes downed. Six were killed in the southwest, 2 in the southeast, 2 in Wales.

Last night German planes skimmed low over the sea just off the southeast coast while others, flying high, dived to 1,000 feet to drop "whistling" bombs on one town. Several buildings were damaged. Defending planes shot down a German seaplane.

The nation was warned by radio by Gen. Sir Hugh Elles, chief of the civil defense operations staff, that "something much more serious" is coming.

But Britons drew hope and courage from the bold strokes of their own navy and airforce.

The powerful French squadron of the eastern Mediterranean, a battleship, four cruisers and other ships, spiked its own guns at Alexandria for the rest of the war.

At the Senegalese port of Dakar in the South Atlantic the brand new 35,000-ton battleship Richelieu, pride of the French navy, lay disabled and partly submerged, prey of depth bombs from a daring British motorboat crew and the torpedoes of Royal Navy planes.

First Lord Alexander told a dramatic story of the assault on the Richelieu after the French had rejected British conditions which would keep her out of enemy hands.

A motorboat under Lieut. Comdr. R. H. Bristowe—a former London stockbroker—was sent into the harbor.

At the risk of blowing themselves out of the water, the seamen dropped depth charges close under the stern of the Richelieu. These damaged her propellers and steering gear, and aircraft dropped torpedoes when the motorboat sped away.

It was established after the attack, Alexander said, that the Richelieu was listing to port, down by the stern and wallowing in a pool of oil.

By the Associated Press

Bucharest (Wednesday), July 10.—King Carol, taking strenuous measures to keep his own totalitarian party in the Rumanian saddle, was reported today to have caused the arrest of Gen. Ion Antonescu, veteran Iron Guard leader.

Officials declined to confirm or deny the report, saying that a statement would be issued later in the day.

Antonescu's arrest was reported to have resulted from his attempts to unite various Iron Guard groups. King Carol has forbidden revival of old political parties.

Stock Sales Forbidden

Antonescu, war minister in the former cabinet of Octavian Goga, was mentioned only Monday by political observers as a probable successor to Premier Ion Gigurtu if the Iron Guard should reorganize the government to its own tastes.

Reports of his arrest followed by a few hours a government decree forbidding the sale outside this country of stock in any foreign-owned Rumanian company.

This action was taken when reports spread that the $100,000,000 British oil interests here might be transferred to Russia.

Speculation that such a transfer was in prospect had arisen simultaneously with disclosures that for weeks British-produced oil actually has been going to Germany.

War Prevents Exports

British and other foreign interests had been "forced by circumstance," the general manager or one oil company said, to send all their oil to the Nazis, save for small quantities to Yugoslavia, Hungary and Bulgaria.

The war in the Mediterranean, he explained, had prevented British exportation, and at the same time under Rumanian law the British were compelled to pay royalties in oil to the Rumanian government, which has been exporting it in turn to Germany.

During the day, armed soldiers appeared at offices of all foreign oil companies, including American concerns, to prevent the removal of records concerning the oil supplies which are so vital to German's army.

Axis Said Ready To Aid Magyar

lations as a means of settling Hungary's 20-year claim on Transylvania, which was a Magyar province before the World War.]

Just how much of Transylvania was demanded is not known, but the area in question was understood to comprise the border regions where the Hungarian minority is centered. It was pointed out, too, that that area also is the site of Rumania's powerful "Carol line," considered the only obstacle to an invading army.

That part of Transylvania which is inhabited chiefly by those of German blood—there are 500,000 such according to the last census—is expected under the plan to be left to Rumania, but with almost complete autonomy within the Rumanian state.

Agreement Preliminary

It was understood the Transylvanian German "fuehrer," Hans Otto Roth, was holding back from taking the ministry of minorities in the Rumanian cabinet pending assurances that such autonomy would be discussed at Munich tomorrow.

It was stressed that the reported German-Italian-Hungarian agreement was only preliminary, and was subject to change.

Nevertheless, diplomats saw this as the first step in a campaign by Germany and Italy to change the pattern of Southeastern Europe quickly to their own notions in preparation for the big attack on the British Isles.

Even as they left, Hungary's mobilization reached its peak; more than 500,000 men stood ready near the Rumanian frontier.

(In Sofia, the controlled Bulgarian press called upon the Balkan entente of Rumania, Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey to bring about a peaceful settlement of Bulgaria's territorial claims "before it is too late."

(The press unanimously declared that otherwise Bulgaria "might accept the help of Russia or Germany and Italy, which might bring repercussions unfavorable to the rest of the Balkans.")

Since the war started, Hitler and Mussolini have stressed their wish to settle troublesome southeastern European questions at a peace conference.

Italy's Fleet Well-Designed For Task in Mediterranean

By International News Service

The Italian navy is a modern array of warcraft especially designed for fighting in the limited confines of the Mediterranean.

The battleships Littorio and Vittorio Veneto, recently commissioned, are fast, well-armed craft of 35,000 tons, equipped with nine 15-inch guns in their main batteries. These guns are said to be capable of unusually long range.

Two other battleships of the same type are under construction in Italian yards but are not yet commissioned. For the rest of her capital ships, Italy relies on four World War craft rebuilt within the last few years. They are of 23,622 tons each and are armed with twelve 12.8-inch guns.

Carry Four Planes

The older battleships carry four airplanes while the two new ones carry three each.

Italy's chief naval strength lies in its cruisers. The Bolanzo, a 10,000-ton craft capable of a speed of 39 knots and armed with eight 8-inch guns, is rated as one of the best of its type afloat. There are five other heavy cruisers, all armed with the same highly efficient 8-inch guns.

Two other heavy cruisers, 8,000-ton craft, are now being built. Laid down in 1939, they could not be ready for action this year.

About 13 light cruisers of a type known as the "Condottieri Class" and an undetermined number of the "Regolo Class" recently commissioned or now under construction complete Italy's cruiser strength. Designed to combat French cruisers, these vessels would be overwhelmed by British battleships or heavy cruisers. They rely on their speed, about 35 knots, and carry ten 6-inch guns.

Has 50 Destroyers

About 50 modern destroyers and a fleet of approximately 115 submarines completes Italy's naval strength, except for the motor torpedo boats which Italy pioneered.

These motor torpedo boats are the extremely fast prototype of the "Splinter Fleets" Britain and Germany have thrown into action in the English Channel and North Sea.

Italy has nearly 100 of these tiny warcraft, well suited to defense of the Italian coast.

Boat Owner Burned

William Perry, 23, of 2408 Eighteenth street northwest, suffered first and second degree burns to the neck and head last night when the gas tank of his motorboat ignited in the speedboat lagoon at Glen Echo, Md. He was taken to Georgetown Hospital.

Grosvenors to Take Long Western Trip

They Will Meet David Fairchilds on Coast In August; War Cuts Short Voyage To South Seas on Junk, Jung Ho

By Hope Ridings Miller.

TRAVEL NOTES: Along about this season you can usually count on Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor to take off for their summer home, Bien Breagh, on Cape Breton Island off the coast of Novia Scotia. But this time they've decided on a different type of vacation. On Friday, they will leave by motor for the West Coast on a trip that will keep them away from Washington for several months.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

Exactly where they will go, they do not yet know; but chances are, they will be somewhere around Los Angeles on August 16 when Mrs. Grosvenor's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. David Fairchild, arrive by boat from Manila, where they now are. You will recall that several months ago Dr. and Mrs. Fairchild, formerly of Washington but more recently residents of Miami, Fla., accompanied by Mrs. Anne Archbold, of Washington, set off for the South Seas in search of new plants for the Fairchild Tropical Garden in Coconut Grove, Fla. Most of their journey was made in the Jung Ho, the luxury junk, which Mrs. Archbold had built especially for the trip.

Well, the war seems to have cut short the sailing trip. Mrs. Archbold has sent her junk on to Tahiti and she is scheduled to return to the United States by clipper on July 20. Meanwhile, the Fairchilds will sail home leisurely, arriving in California almost a month later.

JUST WHAT the Grosvenors' itinerary will be after they meet the Fairchilds is not yet decided. But they expect to continue their Western motor trip until late autumn. Meanwhile, there will be a gathering of their clan at the Nova Scotia estate, once owned by the late Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, father of Mrs. Grosvenor. Mr. and Mrs. Cabot Coville (she is the former Lilian Grosvenor) are there already. Dr. Mabel H. Grosvenor plans to go there early next week, while the youngest daughter in the household, Miss Gloria Grosvenor, will start out by motor for New England the end of this week and arrive at the island home the latter part of the month. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Alexander Gayley, whose marriage took place here recently, are now honeymooning in Pennsylvania, but they will go to Nova Scotia later for several weeks, joining Dr. and Mrs. Walter Kendall Myers (she was Carol Grosvenor), who already are established there for the season.

WHILE I'M STILL ON the subject of summer travel, I might as well tell you that Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver La Gorce also plan to leave the latter part of the month for a Western vacation. They will fly with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kudner to Carrizozo, N. Mexi., where the Kudner's ranch, Oh-Bar-Oh, is located. En route, the party will stop over in Akron, Ohio, to pick up Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, who will accompany them on to New Mexico.

After a couple of weeks, Dr. La Gorce will return to Washington and his wife will go on to Hollywood, Calif., to spend the remainder of the summer with her mother, Mrs. Beulah Davis, in Hollywood. Mrs. Vandenberg's plans for the remainder of the summer are not yet complete.

POTPOURRI: Now that the famous Cosmos Club is scheduled to go the way of far too many Washington landmarks, members who have enjoyed its garden for several summers are entertaining there right and left. For example, Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard had a small luncheon in the garden yesterday and she and Dr. Stoddard will be hosts at a dinner there this evening . . . Mrs. E. W. Pavenstedt (Maude Parker) is in New York for a few days and is staying at the New Weston . . . Spending the summer in Bristol, R. I., are Mr. and Mrs. Metcalfe Walling . . . Miss Cecil Lester Jones, who is vacationing at East Stoneham, Me., has turned over her house at 2906 P street to Miss Sarah Jenkins-Smith, Miss Eleanor Powell and Miss Elizabeth L'Anglais . . . Mrs. Charles Cooper, who has been ill for several months, is now recuperating in her summer place near Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. H. F. Grady Leaves Today For Convention

Has Attended Democrat Conclaves for Years At Delegate or Visitor

Mrs. Henry F. Grady, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Patricia Grady, and Mrs. Frank Waring, will leave Washington today for Chicago where they will be at the Stevens Hotel during the Democratic Convention.

Attending such a get-together has become a habit with Mrs. Grady. Ever since the Democratic Party has been organized, either she or her father, the late Sen. Reginaldo del Valle, of California, have had a front seat at the convention. Back in 1920 both were voting delegates. Shortly before, she had organized and headed the Western unit of the Woman's Suffrage group, and her father had also been an active worker in the movement that culminated in votes for women.

Again in 1924 Mrs. Grady appeared at the National Convention as a delegate. In fact, she has functioned in that capacity at each National Convention since, with the exception of one year, 1928, when she and her husband were in Europe. In 1936, she seconded the nomination of Roosevelt. This year, she is one of the four women on the committee of arrangements for the convention.

Christensens Entertain Archduke Felix

Archduke Felix, brother to the pretender of the throne of Austria-Hungary, was the guest yesterday at the Shoreham in the apartment of the Financial Counselor of the Norwegian Legation and Mme. Lars Christensen.

After his visit here the Archduke returned to New York, where he has been staying. His brother, Archduke Otto, has returned to Europe after his recent visit here and is now reported to be in Portugal.

Also returning to New York yesterday after a visit at the Shoreham was Mrs. August Belmont, who came to Washington on behalf of the Red Cross.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

PERFECT WEATHER tempted a good many persons to fly down to Rehoboth Beach over the week-end and the airport there made a brave showing with bright and shiny private planes parked in front of its hangers like automobiles. Among the number was the plane that the Australian Minister and Mrs. Richard Casey use for so many of their trips and in which they arrived at Rehoboth for a week-end of sea and sun.

Also week-ending at Rehoboth were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanger, of Washington, who were enjoying a short vacation after the Republican convention, at which Mr. Sanger did such yeoman's service with the Young Republican division of the Republican National Committee.

MR. SANGER said that the convention ran true to form in that it produced its quota of amusing contretemps. One of them was brought about by the visit of the Finnish Minister and Mme. Procope to the convention and they were the victims. It seems that word had gotten about that tickets were being saved for the popular diplomatic couple, so that when they arrived and asked for their tickets they were told by a distracted official hostess that three "Finnish Ministers" had already asked for and received the coveted pasteboards that same day.

THE LITTLE "smoke-filled room," so important in the lore of conventions, was replaced at Philadelphia by the freight elevator in the delegates' hotel. In fact it was in this helicopter-like and quite private chamber that Mr. Willkie was introduced to an important personage who became instrumental in securing his nomination for President.

WHILE IN REHOBOTH the Sangers called on Mrs. McCeney Werlich and inquired after the health of her father, Robert Hinckley, who makes his home in Rehoboth the year around since his retirement from the active social life of Washington. He and Mr. Sanger's father were friends in the days when Col. Sanger was Assistant Secretary of War under Theodore Roosevelt. At that epoch Mr. Hinckley painted a very fine portrait of Col. Sanger which now hangs in the family home at Sangersfield.

Shortly after their return to Washington the Sangers expect to set out for Chicago and the Democratic National Convention.

CHASE DONALDSON, of Washington, spent the week-end with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Henry B. Thompson, at her cottage on Park avenue. Mrs. Donaldson was unfortunately forced to remain in Washington nursing an abscessed ear.

ENTERTAINING AT the Rehoboth-Inadian Beach Club the other evening were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Laird, of Wilmington. Mr. and Mrs. Laird have many friends in Washington where they have often visited Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Prochnik.

Among the Washingtonians dining and dancing at the Beach Club that night were Gen. and Mrs. S. T. Ansell and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ansell, with the latter's sister, Peggy Essary; Mrs. A. H. Ferrandou and her attractive daughter who will be one of next season's debutantes; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Smith, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Jeffress, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Prew Savoy, James Mewshaw and R. Kemp Slaughter.

C. L. Wilsons Return From Honeymoon Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis Wilson have recently returned from their wedding trip to New York City. The bride was formerly Miss Doris Marie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Smith. Mr. Wilson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Wilson, also of this city.

The marriage took place June 21 at the home of the bride with the Rev. Edward B. Wilcox officiating. Palms, ferns and vases of delphinium with gladoli adorned the house. The couple received their vows before an improvised altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white net gown with inserts of lace made over white satin. Her lace-trimmed veil fell from a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley, with an orchid in the center.

British Children Offered Haven

With offers being made right and left to house British children for the duration of the war, the latest volunteer is Miss Janet Fish. Rocklawn, the spacious Fish estate at Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y., will be available to 75 youngsters.

Miss Fish, who makes her home here, is the daughter of the Hamilton Fish who was Assistant Treasurer of the United States under President Theodore Roosevelt. She is the sister of Representative Hamilton Fish, whose daughter, Miss Elizabeth Stuyvesant Fish, is a debutante of the season. She is also a sister of Mrs. Henry Forster, who has a home at Garrison, known as Soldiers' Fortune.

Another volunteer is Mrs. James Cameron Clark, who with Mr. Clark, lives at Ensign Farm, Mount Kisco, N. Y. She has offered to assume responsibility for ten boys.

Mrs. Tuckerman Entertains For Mrs. Frazer

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman entertained at a luncheon party yesterday afternoon at her home in Bethesda, Tuxeden, in honor of Mrs. James Carroll Frazer. Covers were laid for 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman are planning to leave shortly for their summer home at Southampton, on Long Island. They will be accompanied by their daughters, the Misses Peggy and Laura Tuckerman.

Stanley-Browns Go to Nantucket

Mrs. Rudolph Stanley-Brown, accompanied by her son and daughter, Edward and Katherine, have left for their summer home at Siasconset, Nantucket.

Upon their return in September, they will move into their new home at 2750 Thirty-second place. The new house, incidentally, was designed by Rudolph Stanley-Brown, well-known architect.

Miss Woods Visit James Kernans At Utica Home

Miss Grace Douglas Woods, who made her debut last winter, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Kernan at Hart's Hill near Utica, N. Y. She spent last week at Greenwich, Conn., as the guest of Miss Deborah Wood, her roommate at Sweet Briar College. She attended the coming out party of Miss Wood which took place recently.

Returning to Washington within a few days, Miss Woods will join her parents, Capt. Edgar Woods, U. S. N., and Mrs. Woods, who will leave soon for Norfolk. Capt. Woods, who has been on duty at the Naval Hospital here, has been transferred to the Norfolk Naval Hospital for duty.

Mrs. J. J. Mack Supper Hostess

Congenial guests, excellent Russian food and a sparkling hostess combined to make the supper party given last night by Mrs. J. J. Mack a very pleasant one. Since reopening her Spring Valley house Mrs. Mack has been giving a series of supper parties—her favorite form of entertainment.

The party was informal from beginning to end. Gathering in various parts of the spacious house, guests sipped drinks before partaking of the buffet. Supper over with, games—or good conversation—were in order. Assisting the hostess, who incidentally was celebrating her birthday, were her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Belic.

Guests included Senator Henry Fountain Ashurst, the Attache of the Egyptian Legation, Anwar Niazi; Baroness Von Below and son, F. Dale Turnbull; Mrs. J. Lee Murphy, Mrs. Thomas Dawson and Mrs. Lolita Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Kraus, Mrs. Paul Myron Lineberger, Commander and Mrs. Rudolph Lank, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dowell and their son, Arthur, jr.; Mr. and Mrs. George Beneman, Senor and Senora di Giralomo, Dr. Vladimir Gsovsky, Mr. and Mrs. V. Joukowsky, Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Brooks, Miss Helene Kravadze, Percy Young, Mrs. Vera Streleskaia, Jack Stafford and Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus Hughes.

Mrs. Auchincloss To Return Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss have leased a summer place at Watch Hill, R. I., where they have been for some time. Mrs. Auchincloss will return to town briefly on Friday.

She plans to leave here, accompanied by her father, former Senator Albert J. Gore, to attend the Democratic Convention which convenes in Chicago on Saturday. From there she will return to her place at Watch Hill.

He is sailing today for Lisbon and will travel by train through Portugal, Spain, France, Switzerland, through the Balkan countries and to Istanbul, then to Syria and Palestine and on to Cairo.

At the time of his arrival in the Capital it was thought that he would have to make the trip to his post by way of the Pacific and the Orient. Since returning to this country late in March, Judge Fish spent the greater part of the time at his home in DeLand, Fla.

Mrs. Pell Gives Party in Bermuda

Mrs. Robert Pell, of Washington, who has joined her mother, Mrs. Reginald Barker, of London, in Bermuda, was hostess at a luncheon a few days ago at Long Cottage, Mrs. Barker's home in Paget.

Admiral Hart's Son to Marry

Washington friends of Admiral and Mrs. Thomas Hart have received invitations to the marriage of their son, Roswell Robert Hart, and Sarah Lou White, July 26, in New London, Conn. The couple will live in Hartford, Conn., where Mr. Hart has been residing for some time.

The prospective bridegroom's parents, who formerly made their home here at the Shoreham Hotel, left Washington last year when Admiral Hart was sent to China. Miss Isabella Hart, the eldest daughter in the family, makes her home in New York. The Misses Caroline and Harriet Hart were presented to society here Christmas Eve, 1936, at a dance given at Grasslands by their grandmother, Mrs. Willard H. Brownson. Still another member of the family is a younger brother, Thomas C. Hart, jr.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Job-Holding Wife Resents Husband's Economic Inadequacy, Which Obliges Her to Work; Believes She Loves Another; Asks What to Think and Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I read your column regularly and was particularly interested in your reply (of June 27) to the woman who asked your opinion of the value of spanking as a disciplinary measure. You seemed suddenly to become a different person—a mother, rather than a hardboiled newspaper woman. (Assuming, that is, that newspaper women are hardboiled). I am a mother, too, but I don't approve of working mothers. It isn't the normal life, in my belief.

Which brings me to my problem: When I married, I had no idea I would not be supported. But so it is. I wanted a child and after a bitter struggle, I had one. But it came with so many responsibilities that I had to continue working. I was forced to return to my job almost immediately afterward, a development which caused me to lose a great deal of respect for my husband.

I felt that he was weak and spineless; and I didn't resent working so much as I resented the fact that I was the stronger character of the two, and that my child was being deprived because of his father's deficiencies. I am no mental giant, heaven knows, but I admire a man with brains and courage—with a bigness of knowledge and understanding. I suppose I mean "mature mindedness." Although I am only 24, I feel ages older than my husband, who is 30.

Now comes the crux of the difficulty: I met "the" man. There can be no doubt about it. He has all the attributes I always admired. Right away I recognized him as the type of man I should have married. But I was married when I was only 18; my husband was (so I thought) "cute," and I didn't know any better. The other man is older and could give me all things I would want and had been accustomed to. Yet he cannot, of course, be a real father to my son.

In an effort to forget, I have concentrated on building up my husband, and on making myself sweet and charming to him. We get along beautifully and never quarrel. We have no sexual maladjustment (which seems unusual); and I might not be so fortunate the next time (if I should marry again). However, I cannot entirely forget the man who is, I believe, my complement.

Do you think there is a psychological foundation for my conviction? Do you think I actually did fall in love with him? When I think of him it is with great admiration and respect rather than with regret that it could not have been my luck to marry him. The recollection does not make me unhappy. I am not moody and ill from "loving another," as some of your correspondents are. And I realize that if I had married him he might have disclosed his own particular variety of unpleasant characteristics. So, can you tell me, is the feeling love? And what is the best thing to do in my case?

MARY LOU.

Anger and Confusion Stem From Self-Seeking

DEAR MARY LOU: Love, the dictionary tells us, is "a feeling of strong personal attachment induced by sympathetic understanding." There is not much—if, indeed, anything—in your foregoing document to indicate that your attachment to "the man" (the older man) is based on YOUR sympathetic understanding of HIS nature. Nor do you cite any evidence that he disclosed a special awareness of, and relatedness to, your (shall we say?) unique qualities of selfhood.

It appears, rather, that the "psychological foundation" for your covetous admiration of him lies in your belief that he would be capable (as you say) of "giving you all the things you would want and had been accustomed to"—a supposition that gives him, in your eyes, considerable advantage over your husband, who has disappointed you in that regard.

This suggests that such love for the male of the species as you may experience is an inverted form of self-love. In brief, you make an involuntary emotional investment more with the hope of getting a substantial worldly return than with the intention or desire of giving (as someone has said) "fullness of life" to the so-called beloved.

No doubt your latter-day concentration upon "building up your husband, and making yourself sweet and charming to him," is essentially a self-seeking project, rather than the expression of a tender or compassionate concern for his happiness. And this might explain why the mutual harvest is so scant; why the relationship is characterized more by a show of surface harmony than by robust emotional vitality. Because, as the Scriptures tell us, "the letter (i. e., the symbol) killeth, but the spirit giveth life."

Going through the motions of being an utterly loving wife (when one's heart isn't in it) for no better motive than to cash in on the act isn't calculated to produce any greater dividend than an equally barren response—which you seem to be getting. And if you were to be married to the other man it is likely, as you surmise, that your egocentricity would bring you to a comparable impasse, so far as attaining full happiness is concerned.

The fact that you have no intuitive concept of what his "particular variety of unpleasant characteristics" might prove to be, shows pretty plainly that you achieved no knowledge or understanding of the real man—perhaps because you were so little interested in that angle; being largely concerned with and attracted by what he seemed to symbolize in the way of material security and social prestige.

So I think you may dismiss the idea that you ever were "actually in love with" the man. I believe it is more nearly the truth to say that you were captivated by your mental image of the snug little Garden of Ease to which he seemed to hold the passkey, and not by his intrinsic personality.

As for what is "the best thing to do in your case"—the best thing, probably, would consist of a changed mental attitude toward your situation. Make the most of what you have, in joyously appreciative spirit, and more will come to you. By secretly disparaging your present good gifts (through resenting the fact that they aren't more than they are, that they aren't all you might ask for), you are inviting their loss, diminution or destruction. For, again, remember the Biblical warning: "To him that hath shall be given; but to him that hath not (in the sense of failing to utilize or appreciate what he has), even that which he hath shall be taken away."

Dinner Formula—White on Black

A combination certain to attract attention through its understatement is the white-on-black affinity. It is seen here in interesting contrast in a lace, marquisette and taffeta gown worn by Postdeb Peggy Townsend. Peggy will be impressario at the Shoreham Hotel tomorrow night in one of the first fur shows of the season. Among the furs to be modeled will be the strikingly simple Russian ermine (above). It is in the popular 32-inch length, just casual enough to slip over this dinner gown, which has demure eyelet cap sleeves to match the bands on the skirt

Today's Health Talk

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

"Is there any method of dissolving kidney stones and gallstones without an operation?"

This age-old inquiry, which is repeated by thousands of human beings a year, has always heretofore been answered by doctors with a contemptuous "No." Lately, however, there seems to be a change of mind taking place.

The relation of diet to kidney stones is very suggestive. Certain geographical areas have long been known as stone areas—lower Egypt, India and in this country, southern Florida and Southern California. The tendency in these regions is to eat a vegetable diet and to spare meats and fats, cutting off many vitamins. Higgins has produced stones in the kidneys experimentally in rats on a diet deficient in Vitamin A.

In countries where education in nutrition has received attention, it can be shown statistically that there is a marked reduction in the incidence of bladder stone. The figures of Thompson, in England, for the last two decades of the nineteenth century, as contrasted with those of Joly from 1915 to 1931 show that there was only a fourth as many cases seen in the later periods. Desnos and Minet have shown the same thing in France. In Russia, on the contrary, where standards of living are low, the incidence of bladder stone in children is still high.

Twenty-one patients are reported from a large American clinic, who had "complete solution" of their kidney stones after being put on a course of treatment which included clearing up any infection in the kidneys, and maintaining an acid-ash diet with a high Vitamin A content. The diet prescribed for those who have had surgical removal of stones has prevented recurrence. The acid-ash diet prevents the precipitation in the kidney pelvis of alkaline salts from which stones are formed. Acid-ash diet contains bread, corn, eggs, fish, meat, oatmeal and prunes.

Burning Youth Blends With Veteran Talent On Cow-Barn Stages

New York, July 9.

OUR COWBARN theaters in the neighboring countryside are now running full blast, and there's nothing more interesting in these parts than the small, intimate and knat-ridden playhouses that present old hits or fresh tryouts during the hot month. Sinclair Lewis, the stage-struck novelist, painted a fascinating picture of one in his recent "Bethel Merriday," and now he is acting Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness," in several. "Red" is not a very good actor, being overtense and nervous. But he is show-crazy.

There are two human factors involved in these country theaters. One is the resident group of young actors, many of whom pay fees to learn the various complex trades of the theater. Some are just stage-daffy; others are intensely serious in their love for the theater and their devotion to its service.

Many of the current stage and screen people have emerged from the Silo Circuit. Ann Harding was among the first, and others have been Katie Hepburn, Martha Scott, Diana Barrymore, Fred Stone's daughters, and many another. Movie talent scouts haunt the barns and snatch good-looking kids for the Hollywood jute mills.

The other group consists of the veteran stars who play the circuit, and they form a remarkable list. You may see your pet trouper of all time in the little playhouse on the Simpkins place at Paw Paw, Conn. Why, among the list working the barns this week are Jane Cowl, Ethel Barrymore, Ruth Chatterton, Grace George and Effie Shannon! Great names in our theater, and fine, mature talents.

It's fun to go to these blends of age and brightly burning youth. The girls wear their lightest dresses, the boys their ice cream pants, driving up comfortably after dinner in the family carry-all, and watching a show, old or new, while fighting the vicious winged creatures that fly in the country night. Lots of fun. Come on over and see Margaret Anglin (and don't say you thought she was dead, or she and we will slay you.)

ARE MEN OUT YOUR WAY getting crazier and crazier about the idea of personally broiling steaks in the open air these days, and about cookery in general? They certainly are here. Show the lads an open fire and they whip out a great hunk of meat in a second. A big shop here, catering to the trend, is doing a boom business in supplies for the open air hearth, and has a booklet giving full instructions on their building and operation. Let the kids have their fun!

The Gentler Sex

While Rome Burns

President—We will now hear the report of the committee on the card party to aid starving war refugees. Mrs. Whipper.

Mrs. Whipper—Madam Chairman and ladies: The card party will be held at the Milkweed Country Club——

Mrs. Nitter—Just a minute! Why don't we get the Elderberry Club? It's much newer.

Mrs. Lightcap—The Boxwood Club has the best social standing. It's much older.

Mrs. Whipper—We couldn't get the Boxwood Club.

Mrs. Lightcap—I think I could get it. Mr. Lightcap knows a man in his office who knows a man who's on the board.

Mrs. Whipper—But the punch will cost twice as much at the Boxwood Club——

Mrs. Flytie—Oh, aren't we going to have ice cream?

Mrs. Whiffle—No, because the tickets are only $1. We can't afford to have ice cream.

Chorus—Oh-oh!

Mrs. Whipper—There won't be any money left over for the refugees if we have ice cream, and anyway we'll have some nice little chocolate cookies with the punch.

Mrs. Doodle—But everybody will be disappointed if we don't have ice cream.

Mrs. Preen—And think how embarrassing it will be for us to take guests and have them served nothing but punch!

Mrs. Flint—I rise to a point of order. This is a benefit!

Mrs. Preen—But even so we want to do things in a nice way.

Mrs. McAddle—Madam President, I came in late. What is it we're talking about?

President—Our benefit card party.

Mrs. McAddle—I thought we were going to have a lawn fete!

Mrs. Chipp—What we ought to have is a hobby show. I'd be glad to lend my pitchers——

Mrs. Flint—I move the report continue.

Mrs. Preen—Wait! We haven't decided about the punch and the ice cream.

Mrs. Doodle—Madam President, I have to leave to meet Mr. Doodle and I want to go on record before I go as voting for ice cream.

Mrs. Nitter—Since so many of the ladies are on reducing diets, why don't we have orange ice?

Mrs. Close—How much would the ice cost?

Mrs. Joyner—I move that the arrangements committee find out the costs of the ice, ice cream and punch and report back.

President—But the benefit's to be a week from Thursday!

Mrs. Nitter—Let's postpone it to two weeks from Thursday. I'm having guests next week-end.

Mrs. Preen—So am I.

Mrs. Lightcap—May I inquire what the table prizes are to be?

Mrs. Whipper—Well, we thought we might get some little 10-cent trinkets——

Chorus—Oh-h-h!

Mrs. Preen—I think we ought to have really nice prizes like bath salts, or——

Mrs. Whippier—But there won't be any money left. Besides there is the decorations.

Mrs. Flytie—Say, has anybody done anything about a soprano yet?

Mrs. Whipper—We were going to have some strolling accordionists——

Mrs. Flagg—We ought to have a soprano to lead the Star Spangled Banner at the beginning.

Mrs. Nitter—It would be better to have everybody stand up and sing in the middle of the game. Everybody gets so tired sitting down.

Mrs. Hazey—Madam President, I came in late. Where is it that we're going to sing?

President—At our benefit card party——

Mrs. Hazey—Oh, why don't we have a boat ride? Everybody would rather go sailing.

Mrs. Flint—I move we adjourn.

Mrs. Whipper—But wait. We haven't decided anything! And these people are starving!

Mrs. Flytie—Another thing, we ought to present the soprano with a corsage.

Mrs. Nitter—Madam Chairman, I have to go. I'm in favor of the ice cream and the soprano.

President—Let's take a vote——

Mrs. Joyner—Madam Chairman, since there are so many things to decide and everybody's so busy I move we postpone the benefit to THREE weeks from Thursday.

Chorus—Aye! aye!

Glove-Washing Technique Given

There's nothing like spanking white gloves to give a woman that enviable lady-of-quality look. As long as they are clean they adorn smart hands and keep them from becoming moist and uncomfortable.

This means having several pairs so that fresh ones will always be ready. If they are whisked through abundant soapsuds and lukewarm water after each day's duty they will wash in a jiffy and wear remarkably well.

Beware of Freak Diets, Warns Zorina

Its Knick-Knacks That Add Weight, She Points Out

By Ida Jean Kain

IT'S always undermining to our confidence to hear that some celebrated beauty is on one of those freak diets. So, as soon as it could be arranged, we went around and asked the lovely dancing lady, Zorina, if she had ever tried that Hollywood raw food diet.

Her answer makes one thing clear—if she ever was on it, she isn't! She said, "The best thing that women can do is to stay away from faddy diets of all kinds!" And she is particularly opposed to the raw vegetable fad. She thinks it is necessary to eat plenty of vegetables, both raw and cooked, but not to the exclusion of milk, eggs and a nice broiled steak. She is partial to steaks and they appear frequently on her menus.

While her aversion to being fat is clear—if she ever was on it, she observes that "There is no use in being slim if one is not well."

If women would leave the knick-knacks alone, Zorina believes, they could have good solid food without worrying about their figures. By knick-knacks, she means the extras—the desserts, ice cream soda, cakes and other dainties, all of which come high in calories. So, although she is continually talking about strawberry shortcake in the new Broadway hit, "Louisiana Purchase," she never has any!

Exercise Helps the Figure

Her ideas about exercise are straight, too. "It's not reducing," she declares. And she ought to know—for in her dancing roles she gets more exercise in a day than the average woman gets in a month.

It is exercise, however, that gives her such a beautiful figure: "Bust, 34 inches; hips, 35 inches; waist, 22½ inches—as small as any in Hollywood! She is convinced that this exercise, adapted from the dance, will give any woman a tiny waist:

VERA ZORINA

Stand erect with arms stretched overhead, shoulder-width apart. Have the legs straight and feet together. Without bending the knees, bend sideward at the waist as far as you can stretch. Bend first to the right, then stand erect again and bend to the left. By keeping the knees straight and the body in alignment as you bend, pull is centered at the waist. Not only does this exercise help to take off fat, but also to keep you limber.

In addition to dancing, Zorina likes to walk and rates it high as exercise because it's activity in the fresh air. She also likes and goes swimming every chance she gets.

Avoid Rushing to be Graceful

From observation, she is inclined to believe the main thing wrong with most women's carriage is a jerkiness which is caused by rushing. If you want to be graceful, her advice is to try to avoid continual rushing.

Her two beauty tips are: Wash your face and brush your hair. She never goes to bed at night without first removing every trace of makeup with good old-fashioned soap and water, then applying a cream. Because she brushes her hair so regularly, it grows at the rate of two inches in three months! After washing her hair, she brushes it dry in the sun.

This lovely star has too much common sense to follow fads of any kind, either as to diet or beauty.

Table Tips

Candles at Table Ought to Smile Rather Than Stare

By Martha Ellyn.

CANDLES are lovely for table decorations because of their soft, flattering light. However, hostesses should remember there is a definite time to use them.

Candles never have a place at the breakfast table and rarely at the luncheon table, unless the table is very dark and the candlelight will give aid. Many families enjoy candlelight each night for dinner. Candles never belong on a dinner table unless they are lighted. With but one exception candles should always be lighted before guests come to the dining room. The exception is when it is still light at the beginning of an informal dinner hour, but gets dark before the dinner is finished.

There are different kinds of candles. Nondrip candles are available. If the wax runs on a candle, let it harden and then break it off carefully so that the candle may be used again. If short candlesticks are used, tall candles should be used, and if holders are tall, then use the shorter candles. Colored candles are useful in carrying out a color scheme. For formal service, candles should be preferably ivory or white. When choosing a colored candle remember that some shades look different under light.

It has been said that candles should smile rather than stare at you. In other words, the flame should come above the level of the eye to shed adequate light over the table and assure comfort to all.

Little Mothers Adopt Hundreds of Doll Babies

Dolls Given To Children At Church

Songs and Cheers Make Up Program At Wilson Memorial Children's Party

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

"I have a new dollie, with eyes of bright blue.
"She can open them, shut them, and smile at me, too."

It was more than just a song—it was a joyful fact to the 127 little girls who sang those words yesterday morning at Wilson Memorial Church, on Eleventh street southeast. They had gathered there for the opening of the doll center on Monday and were given their doll babies yesterday, at the second day's session, sponsored by the Washington Council of Church Women.

When they entered the church auditorium they were greeted by a sight such as children dream of —a platform lined with dolls of all descriptions, one of which was to be in the arms of each child before she left. There were oh's and ah's as the children tiptoed up to look at the dolls they knew were not to be touched until the time came for them to be distributed. They picked out favorites, of course, but when the distribution began, there was a general willingness to "adopt" any doll that was proffered.

Among them was a Red Cross nurse. There were also Scotch dolls, babies in long dresses, sailor boys, babies in knitted suits and elegant young lady dolls in grown-up hats and dresses.

Other Churches Duplicate Program

Many of the girls who were at Wilson Memorial Church had attended the doll center at Calvary Baptist last season. Instead of the wide-eyed strangeness that was apparent in their attitude then there was ease and assurance yesterday and a happy confidence that there would be no disappointment about actually getting a doll to take home.

The program at Wilson Memorial was duplicated at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol street, and at Trinity Methodist Church, Fifth street and Seward Square southeast, where other centers were opened Monday and will continue each morning except Saturday this week and next. All are under the supervision of Mrs. Charles Green, who was in charge of that at Calvary Baptist last year.

The programs at these churches are being conducted in connection with the summer Bible schools. Tomorrow, a center conducted by the Woman's Council, independently of the Bible school, will be opened at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church for children of the Central Neighborhood area, under the direction of Mrs. John T. Hicks. Monday, another will start at Marvin Methodist Church for the southwest area. All the dolls to be distributed have been given and dressed by the church women.

Chinese Cheers Given for Visitors

Miss Viola Saunders, who is in charge of the summer Bible School, directed the children yesterday morning in their songs. Beside the one about the dolls, there were several others, all of which won immediate response from the little girls. Among them was this, with its lesson in health habits, to the tune of "Row, Row, Row Your Boat:"

"Brush, brush, brush your teeth, each morning, noon and night
"That's the way the dentist says to keep them pearly white."

The girls also sang words adapted to the tune of "Playmates," "Woodpecker Song," "In an Old Dutch Garden" and "Little Sir Echo."

They had games, too, and a couple of quaint "Chinese cheers" which were given in compliment to visitors. One of these tells of liking a friend so much "I put him in my little red box and tied it with a string."

Mrs. George Yoeman accompanied at the piano for the singing; Miss Marion Chapman played the violin and also led in some of the games, and Mrs. George Bennett was in charge of registration.

The boys of the summer Bible school, who had their program in another room, came in as observers when the dolls were distributed. Mrs. Green, anticipating the situation in which the small boys would scorn the idea of receiving dolls but would welcome that of having some "he-man" equivalent in the way of a toy, had obtained some animal books which were given to them.

For the girls, the dolls are more than playthings. They are "babies" who must be sewed for, provided with box cradles they will learn to make at the center, kept clean, put to bed at regular hours and so forth—serving as a means of instilling lessons in child care in the children and, through them, reaching the homes from which they come. At the end of two weeks, if they have proved they will be good mothers to their dolls, they will be given final "adoption papers" which will establish their ownership.

G. O. P. Convention in Philadelphia Was Twelfth Attended by Mrs. Virginia Speel

WHEN Mrs. Virginia White Speel went to the Republican Convention in Philadelphia as National Committeewoman from the District it was the twelfth such conclave she had attended. It was also the fourth to which she had gone as national committeewoman from here, and she had the satisfaction not only of seeing her candidate nominated but also of being photographed with Mrs. Willkie.

Mrs. Speel, who is founder and honorary president of the League of Republican Women, attended her first convention in 1880, when James A. Garfield was nominated on the thirty-sixth ballot in Chicago. Chester A. Arthur was chosen on the first ballot for Vice President. It was the convention at which the proposed third term for Grant was an issue.

Four years later she was again in Chicago when James G. Blaine received the Presidential nomination and Gen. John A. Logan that for Vice President. In 1888 she was there again when, on the seventh ballot, Benjamin Harrison received his first nomination.

She did not go to the next convention but was in St. Louis when McKinley was nominated and in Philadelphia when he was renominated in 1900, and Theodore Roosevelt received the unanimous nomination for Vice President.

She attended the Chicago Convention in 1904 at which Roosevelt was again nominated; saw the nominations of Taft there in 1908 and of Hughes in 1916; that of Coolidge in 1924, at Cleveland; Hoover, in 1928, at Kansas City and in 1932, at Chicago, and of Landon in 1936.

Long before the recent Philadelphia convention, she had picked Wendell Willkie as her choice for the Republican nominee. Mrs. Willkie she describes as "a sweet, natural, kindly and very intelligent young woman."

Among the social functions Mrs. Speel attended while she was in Philadelphia was a luncheon given at Devan by Mrs. Charles M. Lea, who is an active member of the League of Republican Women here.

Mrs. Speel leaves next Wednesday for her family home in Croylands, Indiana County, Pa., to spend the remainder of the summer.

DOLLS DID IT—Dolls seldom dictate decisions in the affairs of men and women but they did last week in the case of Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, president of the Washington Council of Church Women. Mrs. Linzel, with her husband, was in the Adirondacks on a vacation and would have enjoyed staying longer but she returned Sunday night to be here for the opening of the Doll Centers, sponsored by the council in various parts of the city this week.

Her daughter, Peggy, who has been attending Stetson University in Deland, Fla., and remained for part of the summer session, will return to Washington Saturday, July 20, for the rest of the season.

MORE VACATIONS—Three active members of the Daughters of the American Revolution left last week-end for a trip West together. They are Miss Margaret I. Fraser, of Maj. L'Enfant Chapter, former State chairman of press relations for the District D. A. R.; Mrs. Brinkley E. Callicott, of Louisa Adams Chapter, who now holds that position, and Mrs. Bertha M. Robertson, of Sagoyewatha Chapter, Seneca Falls, N. Y., who joined them. All three are also members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants of the District, Miss Fraser serving as legislative chairman of the general society; Miss Callicott, membership chairman, and Mrs. Robertson, assistant general of the general society.

They left for the West by train Sunday night and plan to go to the Coast, stopping in Denver, Yellowstone National Park, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Lake Louise and Banff. They will return home July 30.

PRESENT FLAGS—The William H. Beck Circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, together with the Lions Club, last night presented American flags and Scout troops flags to Boy Scout Troop, 84, at Opportunity House, 78 I street. Members of the circle participating were Mrs. W. J. Hausman, Mrs. Susanne Myers, Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell and Mrs. Alice Burke.

Mrs. Tourover Fetes Members Of Hadassah

43 Initiates Among 100 Attending; Yearbook To Press This Week

More than 100 members of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah, women's Zionist organization, yesterday were present at a chapter luncheon for which Mrs. Raphael Tourover, past president and a member of the national board, opened her home, 4812 Thirtieth street. Of the guests, 43 were new members.

The luncheon was served in the garden where small tables were arranged. Mrs. Moe Offenberg, the chapter president, received with Mrs. Tourover.

Isidore Hershfield, president of the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, spoke following the luncheon. He reported the election at the convention of the Zionist Organization of America recently of E. I. Kaufmann, of this city, as national president.

The program included a brief sketch, "Riddles in Rhyme," conducted by Mrs. David Kushner, sister of the hostess who is prominent in the Civic Theater. She also wrote the skit, which was in the form of a quiz on Palestine, in which the members of her audience were called on to participate. Those who failed to answer the questions were fined a quarter, which went to the fund for Palestine.

Mrs. Brown Plans Convention Visit

Mrs. D. Tucker Brown, president of the Woman's National Democratic Club, and many of its other officers will be among the Washingtonians attending the Democratic National Convention in Chicago next week.

Others from the club who are packing their bags for the Western trip are Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of Senator Pepper, of Florida, first vice president; Mrs. Allen Cleveland Phelps, treasurer; Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, past president; Mrs. Howell Moorhead, of the board of governors; Mrs. Carroll Miller, chairman of affiliated clubs; Mrs. Emil Hurja, chairman of program, and Mrs. Hale T. Shenefield, of the board of governors.

3 Go to Urge Rights Plank On Democrats

Mmes. West, Babcock And Forrest Leave For Chicago Session

Hoping for indorsement of the equal rights amendment to the Constitution by the Democratic National Convention, three members of the National Woman's Party have left for Chicago. They are Mrs. Helen Hunt West, acting chairman of the party's Congressional committee; Mrs. Caroline Lexow Babcock, executive secretary in charge of national headquarters here, and Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, chairman of the District branch.

Mrs. Hunt and Mrs. Babcock were the woman's party representatives at the Republican National Convention, which unanimously adopted a plank in its platform calling for "the immediate submission to the States of the equal rights amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

Former Senator George Wharton Pepper, sponsor of the plank in the resolutions committee, pointed out that women were voters, and as such were entitled to full rights guaranteed to citizens under the Constitution, according to Mrs. West. He contended that the amendment would rectify injustices which had come from interpretations by the courts, ruling women out of this protection.

The Woman's Party is not against protective legislation, it was pointed out, but contends that whatever protective legislation is right and proper, should be extended to all workers, regardless of sex.

The group from national headquarters will be joined in Chicago by workers of the Illinois branch in seeking an equal rights plank.

Mrs. Forrest, continuing West from the convention, will speak in a number of States in favor of the measure.

While women of the party here are urging equal rights as an incontestable provision in a democratic government, Alice Paul, president of the World Woman's Party, is working at its year-old headquarters in Geneva, trying to aid refugee women of Europe.

Mrs. Nina Allender, an active member of the National Woman's Party, whose cartoons were credited with powerful influence during the campaign for woman suffrage, recently received a letter from Miss Paul. It was written for her by Mme. Staissny, one of the refugees who has found a haven at the Geneva headquarters. She said, in describing the service being rendered to women who have come there from other countries: "The headquarters here remains a center of international life and it remains a center of human kindness in respect to the help of refugees. Many have found their way into a new future existence through the efforts of Alice Paul and she feels happy seeing the results of her work. A great many highly qualified scholars and artists come to ask her aid."

Lack of Ships Delays Sailing Of Children

Speeding Influx of Refugees Is Not U. S. Job, Presiden Implies

President Roosevelt yesterday put the problem of delivering more British war refugee children to this country squarely up to foreign shipping authorities as local headquarters of the "war babies" committee was swamped with telephone calls.

Inferring that speeding up the influx of British children was not this country's problem, the President asked if shipping were not the root of the difficulty.

He said he understood from New York City, headquarters of the United States committee for care of European children, that there are many youngsters in England all cleared by immigration authorities, but unable to find room aboard a ship.

Emphasized by Early

This point, that the difficulty in getting more British children to safety here is primarily a shipping problem, was emphasized earlier in the day by White House Secretary Stephen T. Early.

Reminding reporters that American ships are forbidden to touch at England under the neutrality law, Early said that this Government is making every effort to facilitate the entrance of more war refugee children.

The responsibility of finding shipping space for the children, he said, is entirely the duty of the British government, Early stated. The United States, Early said, is doing its best by cabling visa authorizations direct to London as soon as the necessary papers are in order.

Pointing out that the American law provides that private homes, not institutional homes, must be found for all immigrants, Early said that the problem was one of shipping, and "it is not ours."

Early emphasized that this immigration quota permits entry here of 6,500 Britons a month, or 65,000 a year, but that the quota is still "wide open." Only 300 have entered within the last month.

Committee Busy

Meanwhile the newly organized Washington committee to coordinate placing of children, under the supervision of the Council of Social Agencies, had a boom day.

The telephone switchboard buzzed with inquiries from people anxious to furnish a home for an English child and from persons wanting to know how they could bring children here from Europe.

The council, whose new committee will operate an information agency to handle inquiries of this kind, announced that the child care committee will hold its first meeting Friday.

Trucker Hurt, Helper Dies In Fiery Crash

One man was burned to death and a second seriously injured at 5 p. m. yesterday when a refrigerator truck crashed against a trailer truck crashed against a trailor Richmond highway 3 miles south of Woodbridge, Va.

Trapped in the truck cab when the vehicle burst into flames was the driver's helper, in whose clothing was a partially burned letter addressed to Clyde Sentry, Cullenton, Ga. Workmen cut his body out with torches and took it to the Hall undertaking establishment at Occoquan.

The driver, Steve T. Carroll, 26, of Winter Haven, Fla., was found lying at the roadside. He was removed to the Marine base hospital at Quantico suffering severe burns, shoulder fracture and internal injuries. The driver and helper on the tomato truck escaped injury.

Children's House Opens Day Camp

About 25 boys pioneered yesterday at the opening of the day camp of Georgetown Children's House at a new site in Glover Park.

Approximately the same number of girls will take their turn at the camp today. The camp provides a day's outing on Tuesdays and Thursdays for boys and on Wednesdays and Fridays for girls, for a period ending August 23.

The boys, ranging from 7 to 13 years of age, helped to cook their own lunch of scrambled eggs and bacon over the outdoor fireplace, and joined in woodcraft, nature games and exploring. Mrs. Robert T. Morse, head of the recreation department at the Children's House, and Fred Mulvey, who directs boys' work, were in charge of the group.

GroundCleared For Architect Headquarters

Building to Adjoin Present Location In Octagon House

Ground clearing has been started for construction of a headquarters building for the American Institute of Architects, adjoining its present home in the Octagon House, it was announced yesterday.

The Octagon House, on the northeast corner of Eighteenth street and New York avenue northwest, which served as a temporary White House after the British burned Washington in 1814, is to be converted into a monument.

Harmonizing architecturally with the 140-year-old Octagon House, where the Treaty of Ghent was signed by President Madison, the new building will have two stories and basement. It will house the A. I. A. offices and library.

The project, which will cost approximately $200,000, was made possible through a trust fund established in 1936 by the late Dan Everett Waid, a past president. Architectural plans for the building were drawn by Mr. Waid, the late Dwight James Baum and Otto R. Eggers. The latter is a member of the firm of Eggers & Higgins, designer of the Jefferson Memorial and the National Gallery of Art.

A.F.L. Protests C.I.O. Victory In Cafeteria

An A. F. L. protest yesterday delayed certification of a C. I. O. union as sole bargaining agent for Navy Department cafeteria employes who voted to affiliate with the C. I. O. in a National Labor Relations Board election.

The election, staged yesterday in the Navy Department projection room, resulted in a vote of 50 for the United Cafeteria Employes Local 474, a C. I. O. unit. There were 38 votes against union affiliation and six ballots were challenged. Only two of the cafeteria's 96 employes did not vote.

The A. F. L.-affiliated Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance protested the election on grounds that its name had not appeared on the ballot. The ballot presented employes with a choice between the C. I. O. union or no union.

William C. Humphrey, NLRB field examiner, who conducted the election, said that the A. F. L. affiliate did not request a position on the ballot until yesterday morning. The request was turned down, he said, because no evidence of membership in the cafeteria was presented.

Humphrey said that the A. F. L. request for a new election and the results of yesterday's election will be forwarded to the labor board for decision.

Youth Group Offers Defense Training Plan

Commission Urges Educational Setup For Skilled Workers

As Congress expected a pronouncement from the President on compulsory youth training, the American Youth Commission came out yesterday for a Nation-wide network of local committees to coordinate placement of youth in industry under the defense program.

President Roosevelt told his press conference yesterday that he is still working on his project for universal Government training of boys and girls between the ages of 18 and 21.

Meanwhile, the American Youth Commission suggested what it termed a "blueprint" for the education, guidance and placement of young people. Henry I. Harrison, chairman of the executive committee, made the announcement for the commission, which is headed by Owen D. Young, industrialist.

Calls for Coordination

The proposal called for coordination in each community by a committee representing industry, labor, education, civic and welfare organizations, employment services and youth, with a continuing research program to anticipate and meet needs of the local labor market.

The plan includes:

Training and guidance in local schools to assure a flow of trained workers in the local field.

Exchange of information between schools and public employment services to facilitate the placement of new workers in industry, along with establishment of a junior placement service.

Steps to facilitate the apprenticing of youth in the skilled trades.

The plan is based on eight experimental studies made in various type communities in cooperation with the United States Employment Service.

Although the commission's recommendation was in preparation before the national defense program was accelerated, Harriman said:

Emergency Brings Light

"It has remained, however, for the present emergency to bring to us forcibly that we can no longer afford the present hit-or-miss type of public education."

Commission members include Miriam Van Waters, Will W. Alexander, Clarence A. Dykstra, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Willard E. Givens, George Johnson, Mordecai Johnson, Chester R. Howell, William F. Russell, John W. Studebaker, Henry C. Taylor, Matthew Woll, George F. Zook. The commission is a division of the American Council on Education.

Fund Asked to Build 5 D.C. Airport Hangars

Roosevelt Asks Extra Appropriation; Field To Be Finest in World

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress for a supplemental appropriation of $2,750,000 for the construction of five hangars at the Washington National Airport.

The hangars, which are to be leased to the air lines, will bring the number on the field to six and, according to Col. Sumpter Smith, who is in charge of construction, will give the National Capital an airport equal to any in the world.

The original plan for the airport, for which the Public Works Administration allocated approximately $9,500,000, called for the construction of only one hangar. PWA funds are still available, it was explained, to carry out the original project.

Asked More Hangars

Since the signing of a law June 29 by President Roosevelt, giving the Civil Aeronautics Authority power to lease hangar space, air lines have asked for six hangars.

Originally the CAA intended to use one of the hangars for its own equipment and visiting planes, but under the present plan all will be leased to the air lines.

The hangars will be leased for 10-year periods and will pay for themselves within 30 years. Four of the hangars, which will be used chiefly for servicing rather than storage, will have 223-foot doors to accomodate the largest aircraft in operation.

Opening Set for Fall

The National Airport is scheduled to be opened next fall, or shortly after the terminal is completed. The landing equipment will be ready by September, it was said, but the terminal is not due to be completed until November 1.

One of the features which will place the airport among the finest in the world is a new lighting system that will make the field usable 95 per cent of the time. The landing area of the field alone, according to Colonel Smith, is larger than the whole of La Guardia Field, New York.

Austin, Cannon Made Detective Sergeants

Both Commended By British Sovereigns; To Take Oath Today

Detective Privates James G. Austin and Charles E. Cannon were promoted to detective sergeants yesterday, and will be assigned to police headquarters.

Austin is the detective who helped to break the Sirkis murder case, and Cannon has been commended by Ernest W. Brown, Superintendent of Police, and the District Commissioners.

They will be sworn in today. Both fill vacancies created by the recent shift of Metropolitan Police to service at the Capitol.

Austin served five years in the Army and came here for appointment to the police force March 21, 1928. He was made a precinct detective July 16, 1937, and holds a certificate of proficiency from Camp Perry in the use of tear gas and submachine gun. Married and the father of three children, he lives in Arlington, Va. He holds seven commendations, including one from the King and Queen of England.

Cannon, who also holds a commendation from the royal couple, served seven years in the Marines and saw duty in Mexico and Nicaragua. Appointed to the force December 16, 1924, he was made a precinct detective February 21, 1932. He is married and lives at 929 Kennedy street northwest.

Hit by Truck; Girl Is Removed on Bicycle

A 21-year-old man used a bicycle for an ambulance last night to race home with his 16-year-old wife, injured when struck by a truck, and summon medical aid.

Walter Baker, of 1208 N street northwest, was crossing Eleventh street northwest in the 1200 block with his wife, Florentine, when the accident occurred.

A 12-year-old bicyclist, Jack Lunceford, of 1218 Eleventh street northwest, pedaled over to look into the matter. The truck driver, Dalton Richardson, 35, of 104 G street northwest, jumped out to offer aid and transportation to a hospital.

Ignoring both, Baker gathered up the young woman, placed her on the bicycle's handlebars and drove away before Policeman M. S. McCarthy arrived to investigate.

A few minutes later the Emergency Hospital ambulance was summoned to the Baker home and Mrs. Baker was treated for cuts by the ambulance physician.

Baker returned the bicycle to its owner by a neighbor, Beatrice Atkinson, 15.

See Budget Chief, Rosevelt Advises

The President yesterday directed all questions concerning rumored purchase by the Government of the District Building to Budget Director Harold Smith, who said he had "no knowledge of such a transaction."

Completion of the first unit of the Municipal Center this year brought rumors the old building at Fourteenth and E streets northwest would be purchased and remodeled for Federal agencies.

Lamp Light Smashed, Post Burns Down

A 10-foot electric lamppost went up in flames last night at Twelfth and M streets northwest after several boys had smashed the light with a brick.

Police said that gas fumes had seeped into the electric lamppost following a break in the gas line. The fumes were ignited, they said, when the bulb was broken.

Youth Firing At Rabbit Hits Girl, 4, in Head

Student Takes Child To Hospital After Accident in Yard

A 4-year-old girl was shot in the head here yesterday by a youth aiming at a rabbit in his backyard.

The victim, Cynthia Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Baldwin, 4401 Cathedral avenue northwest, was taken to Doctors' Hospital. The bullet was lodged in the right side of her head.

Dr. John J. Shugrue said the girl's condition was serious, but she was doing "as well as could be expected." No immediate operation was planned to remove the bullet.

Police said the shot was fired by John A. S. Brown, 19, of 4408 Klingle street northwest, whose stepfather is C. W. Mitman, Smithsonian Institution curator.

Brown, a Yale sophomore, told police he fired at a rabbit with a .22-caliber rifle. The bullet struck the child 100 feet away in the yard of her home. The yards are separated by a vine-covered fence.

Young Brown said when the little girl cried out on the other side of the fence he realized what had happened. He helped bring the girl to the hospital.

The child's father is general agent for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. Young Brown is a graduate of Western High School, where he was a member of the fencing team.

Speeding Taxi Loses Excess Baggage

Thirty-one chickens were disposed of last night at the District refuse plant and not a single appetite was whetted.

The birds weer sent to the plant by Eleventh Precinct Policemen R. S. Warner and P. W. Legge to be destroyed. They were killed improperly, the policemen stated.

Warner and Legge were cruising at Fifty-first and G streets southeast early yesterday when a speeding taxicab passed them. They lost the cab while turning around, but recovered a laundry bag and a box filled with the chickens which the cab operator threw from his car.

The fowl had been choked to death, it was said, making them unfit for consumption.

Pygmy Hippo to Become Polygamist, New Mate Captured by Expedition

The Zoo's male pygmy hippopotamus is soon to become a polygamist, though he doesn't know it yet.

A female pygmy hippo has been captured by the Smithsonian-Firestone expedition to Liberia, led by Zoo Director William M. Mann, the Smithsonian Institution announced yesterday. With rare crocodiles, monkeys, midget antelopes, mouse deer, colorful jungle birds and other species, the hippo will be loaded aboard the steamer West Irmo in a few days for the long voyage to the United States.

Washington's Zoo now has a pair of pygmy hippopotami, parents of a 5-month-old female named Bimbo. The hippo captured in a pit trap by Liberian natives will be introduced to the trio on exhibition here with the keepers hopeful the addition will not break up what is now a happy family.

The newly captured pygmy hippo is said to weigh, including the crate, 700 pounds. She was carried 40 miles through the jungle to the expedition camp by natives.

Dr. Mann will bring the animal collection directly to Washintgon from Norfolk, with the exception of a few which will have to be quarantined for a time before going on exhibition.

According to the Smithsonian Institution's announcement, the West Irmo was scheduled to arrive at Norfolk July 20, but it was learned, on checking the information, that the vessel will not dock before July 30. Her departure is uncertain because of war conditions.

D. C. Seeks Road Work For Gas Levy

Governors of Va., Md. Will Be Asked For Assurances if Fuel Tax Is Hiked

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

The Governors of Maryland and Virginia will be invited to testify August 6 before a subcommittee of the House District Committee, it was disclosed yesterday, on a bill to increase the local gasoline tax, which is now two and three cents, respectively, under the levies of those adjacent States.

Representative Poage (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of a special subcommittee, said he wanted to obtain assurance from the Governors that if the tax differential is removed or alleviated that the highways leading into the National Capital will be improved.

At the same time Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, notified Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, that he is prepared for a hearing on the National Capital Park and Planning Commission's bill to fix the disputed District-Virginia boundary along the present highwater mark.

Wants U. S. Waiver

Smith said that he will propose an amendment, requested by the city council of Alexandria, to direct the United States to waive all claims to any land between the present highwater mark and the highwater mark of 1791. The bill now provides that the Federal Government shall obtain title.

The revival of the gasoline tax legislation came somewhat as a surprise as Randolph had stated that no further legislation will be pressed by the District Committee at this session. The gasoline tax bill had been tabled by the fiscal affairs subcommittee, headed by Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma.

Poage said that the subcommittee had accumulated considerable data on the District aspects of the tax controversy and was convinced that the District does not need the additional revenue for highway purposes.

Cites Poor Highways

Yet, he added that Washington should be seriously interested in improving the highways leading into the Capital because of its position as a trade center. While refraining from criticizing the neighboring States, Poage observed that the thoroughfares leading into the District in both Maryland and Virginia are inferior to most of their other main highways.

He said it would not be because the States, if they have purposely neglected these highways, but because of the loss of revenue suffered from the lower gas tax in the District.

"The District and the States ought to cooperate," he said. "All, it seems to me, will get more out of their gas taxes if their is no friction."

Poage pointed out that it would not benefit the District if, after raising its own gas tax to conform with the adjacent States, Maryland and Virginia were to expend the additional revenue in other sections than those around Washington.

Boundary Bill Hearing

Representative Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, is expected to schedule a hearing on the boundary bill. Unless the Park and Planning Commission agree to the Smith amendment, however, it is unlikely that the legislation will be passed by Congress at this session.

Smith said that two blocks of commercial property in Alexandria and some tracts around Gravelly Point are still in dispute although the Federal Government has acquired most of the contested land.

Swimming Boy Driven From Canal Sans Clothes

Fourteen-year-old Lonnie Carter and a couple of friends went swimming yesterday in the C. & O. Canal, about a mile above Key Bridge.

As he was swimming, a gang of older youths came along and started pelting him with stones. Lonnie's companions scrambled into the woods, but Lonnie managed to climb out of the canal on the opposite side. Hurriedly, he found a piece of canvas and a minute later he was given a lift by a motorist.

$13 Holdup Brings 1 to 3-Year Sentence

Justice James M. Proctor, of the District Court yesterday sentenced George F. Perry, 53, to one to three years in jail as soon as Perry was convicted of a $13 holdup. Ordinarily, sentence is delayed several days, but Justice Proctor, presiding over the summer criminal term of the court has adopted a policy of "swift justice."

William H. Corn, a worker on the Municipal Center project, testified that Perry took his billfold at Fourteenth and Fairmont streets northwest, the morning of June 1.

Jessica Arrives '2 Years Late' To Keep Capital Singing Date

SHE'S KEEPING A DATE—Jessica Dragonette, sporting this most unusual hat, flew into Washington last night. She'll sing tonight at the Watergate, keeping a date with the National Symphony Orchestra, which, she stated, was overdue two years

An "American institution," 5 feet 2 inches tall, jangled a bracelet of tiny metal flags, and asserted that she's keeping a date, overdue for two years, with the National Symphony Orchestra tonight.

Jessica Dragonette, blonde soprano star of radio and concert, flew down from New York last night to appear as soloist at tonight's sunset symphony at the Watergate. "I've felt cheated ever since I had to refuse an invitation to sing there two summers ago," because of a crowded concert schedule, she said.

Declaring that she felt "like an American institution" because she has "grown up with one of the Nation's industries—the radio," Miss Dragonette revealed that she is about to plunge into another field, also.

For years she has resisted offers from the movies "because I didn't want to be distracted from my other work." But now she has agreed to make five 30-minute "shorts," the first of their kind, she said.

Insists Her Eyes Are Plaid

As she described the new venture, her "plaid" eyes twinkled. She insists that they're plaid, because they look blue at times and brown at other times and hazel between times.

Several of the shorts will be built around the lives of American composers, Cadman, McDowell, Nevin. They're to be used for television as well as movie screens, she said. Next month she plans to fly out to Hollywood and for weeks thereafter will commute between California and Michigan, where she is singing for the radio on the Sunday Evening Hour this summer.

Miss Dragonette revealed that in her program for tonight she has inserted a Spanish song, Turina's "Cantares," at the request of an admirer she will meet for the first time tonight. He is Franklin Adams, of Washington, formerly connected with the Pan American Union.

The opera star also will sing Schubert's "Serenade," Foster's "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair," Delibes' "Les Filles de Cadix," and aria from Massenet's "Thais." The orchestra, conducted by Dr. Hans Kindler, will play "Overture to Oberon," by Weber; Bach's "Come Sweet Death," Improvisation on "Oh, Susannah" by Laszlo, Wagner's "Song of the Rhine Daughters" from "Gotterdammerung," and "Voices of Spring" by Strauss.

Alexander Laszlo will appear to attend the premiere of his improvisations.

Visiting Boy 'Detective' Finds Way to Aunt's Home Unaided

William E. Hurley, jr., 11-year-old son of a Springfield (Mass.) police detective, wasn't lost yesterday. He was just doing a little detecting during those six hours when he was being hunted.

Billy evidently got fed up with the conducted sightseeing tour he and his 13-year-old cousin, William Libby, were taking with a group of tourists. At any rate, he got separated from the rest as they went through the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

While police looked for him, William took a tour of his own. Through the FBI he went, looking into offices where tourists were excluded and forever asking questions. Then it was off to the Capitol, where he passed the time of day with the guard but failed to keep a luncheon date with Representative Lawrence J. Connery, of Massachusetts.

William had been in Washington but a week, so his next project was going to necessitate some real detecting. He decided he would get back to the home of his aunt, Mrs. Marion Libby, 26 Crittenton street northwest, without asking directions.

He did it. Police said he must have walked 10 miles.

Miss Clay Awarded $450 Scholarship

A $450 scholarship to Pembroke College, Brown University, has been awarded to Elizabeth Ann Clay, of 2603 Monroe street northeast, it was announced last night.

Miss Clay was graduated last February from McKinley High School, where she was a member of the Pharos Honor Society, and was active in dramatics and music. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Clay.

Riley Elgen Confirmed By Senate

Renomination As Chairman Of PUC Speeded To Roosevelt

The Senate yesterday confirmed the renomination of Riley E. Elgen as chairman of the Public Utilities Commission.

On motion of Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, the President was to be notified immediately so the renomination would become effective this morning.

The Senate District Committee yesterday reported favorably the renomination after Senator McCarran had listened to two complaints against the commission.

Elgen was mildly rebuked for not holding a hearing on the complaint of John A. Savage and Mrs. Myrtle de Montis with regard to a demand for a $45 deposit from the Potomac Electric Power Co.

"I think you are positively right," said Elgen after Senator McCarran suggested that the inquiry probably never would have been held had the commission granted the hearing.

Elgen explained that the commission had made an investigation to determine whether the power company's demand complied with the commission's own rule and had found that it did. Consequently, no hearing was considered necessary.

"The people set up these quasi-tribunals," commented McCarran, "to protect their own rights. They like to be able to use them as a safety valve."

A. J. Driscoll, president of the Mid-City Citizens Association, indorsed Elgen's nomination and stated he had always found commission employes "vedy considerate and painstaking."

The only other complaint was made by George A. Gannaway, of the Federation of Civic Associations, who said that he thought it "very strange" that William McK. Clayton, veteran civic leader, had "laid down" in his demand for a 5-cent streetcar fare after a chat in a corridor with Elgen.

Banker Urges Redefining Of Wage Hour Terms

No clock watcher, the ambitious bank teller is discouraged by wage-hour law provisions requiring him to knock off at a specific time each day, Francis G. Addison, president of the Savings & Commercial Bank, told a wage-hour division hearing yesterday.

He urged the division to redefine "executive" and "administrative" employes so that tellers could be employed on a monthly instead of hourly basis.

Struck by Auto

John Estes, 63, of 932 New York avenue northwest, was struck by an auto in the 2500 block of Wisconsin avenue northwest yesterday and was taken to Emergency Hospital with broken ribs and back injuries. Driver of the auto, according to police, was Raymond Wanner, 21, of Little Falls road, Arlington, Va.

400 Attending Church Parleys From D.C. Area

Spiritual Retreats Are Combined With Vacations

Combining spiritual retreats and vacations, more than 400 church workers from Washington, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia are attending religious meetings on nearby campuses and other spots this week.

Principal gatherings are the Methodist Junior High Camp at Western Maryland College, Westminster; the Presbyterian youth conclave at Hood College, Frederick, and the golden jubilee convention of the World-wide Baraca and Philathea Bible Class Union at Syracuse, N. Y.

Youngsters at the Westminster parley met yesterday for discussions on world peace, our church in the world, journalism and creative writing, recreation, and other subjects, and during the afternoon went in for tennis, swimming and other sports.

Adult Leaders

Adult leaders of the conclave include Mary Alice Doty, of the Baltimore Conference, Methodist Church, Board of Education, dean; Dr. Ralph Dela Smith, pastor of Woodside Methodist Church, Silver Spring, Md., associate dean; the Rev. Ralph M. Sharpe, pastor of Marvin Methodist Church here, boys' dean; Miss Annabelle Spangle, Hamline Methodist Church, girls' dean, and the following other faculty members:

Miss Helen Newman, Petworth Methodist Church; Miss Elizabeth Pile, Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church; Miss Fay Marsh, Union Methodist Church, and the Rev. Raymond H. Brown, formerly pastor of the Damascus (Md.) Methodist charge. More than 100 of the delegates are from the District.

Representatives from the Washington, Baltimore, New Castle and Carlisle Presbyteries are mingling at the Hood College parley, which continues through July 13. The Rev. D. Hobart Evans, pastor of the Hyattsville (Md.) Presbyterian Church, and Dr. S. J. Venable, of Colora, Md., are young people's and senior leaders, respectively. Other faculty members are the Rev. Robert P. Davis, pastor of the Towson (Md.) Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Walter F. Wolf, of the Arlington (Va.) Presbyterian Church, and Wallace Ashley, of Cumberland.

Washingtonians at Syracuse

Leading the local delegtaion to the Baraca-Philathea parley at the First Baptist Church, Syracuse, are Miss Henrietta Heron, of this city, and M. William Barrett, of Alexandria, Va., counselor and treasdrer, respectively, of the world organization, the headquarters of which are here.

Participating in today's discussions will be Jack, Alexandria and Rush Young, Mars Hill. A panel on "How Can We Win People to Bible Classes" will be led by J. Edwin Barrett.

Meanwhile, several churchmen are attending the Pennsylvania State Christian Endeavor Conference at Pittsburgh. They include Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church, one of the speakers, and Milton Chase, editor of the District Christian Endeavor monthly.

Many local men and women are planning to participate in United Christian Adult Conference at Massanetta Springs, Va., from July 15 to 22. They will include Page McK. Etchison, president of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association; George E. Harris, executive secretary; Dr. Warren D. Bowman, pastor of the Washington City Church of the Brethren, and others.

D. C. Guardsmen Drill in Blackout

Approximately 1,000 District National Guardmen got their first taste of drill under blackout conditions last night when lights went out for 35 minutes in the Armory at Pennsylvania avenue and Sixth street northwest.

Stumped momentarily, officers called for candles, lanterns and flashlights, and continued with preparations for the first Army maneuvers to be held in New York next month. Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, head of the District National Guard, kept a board meeting in session by light of the Pennsylvania avenue street lamps.

RAINBOW ROOM ANNIVERSARY. A sky-high party in the Rainbow Room on Wednesday, July 17, will celebrate its fifth anniversary. There'll be celebrities by the dozen, star entertainers from current shows, extra novelties by Milton Davis and his orchestra. Manager Connolly, of the Hamilton Hotel, is knee-deep in special plans for the celebration which promises to be one of the fanciest and funniest ever tossed in Rainbow. And every Rainbow special party has always been a record breaker for good times and big attendance. More particulars later.

P. S. A new genie, Prince Hassan, is due to arrive in Rainbow any moment. He can tell you what's going to happen to you next week or next year, does card tricks and Indian magic.

SEE THE PRETTY BIRDIES on the Shoreham Terrace. Fluttering white birds are perched on Gloria Daye's wrists as she dances. It's a graceful and pretty sight . . . And dancer Talia is all befeathered as a swooping sea gull in a dizzying over-the-waves number.

LOTUS PANORAMA. The new Marvelettes do circus tumbling and balancing in perfect Ringling form. They're all brunettes and brownettes . . . Bill Strickland's back looking both bigger and browner . . . Black-eyed Loyce Graham dances on one foot most of the time, keeping the other pretty ankle back of her ear. Does she look stunning in thase red lace pajamas! . . . That's "Tiny" Meeker and his attractive wife over in the corner . . . Jean and Martin do a gay and slippery tango. He's a University of Missouri alumni and she's a graduate of the Russian Ballet.

ORGANING MINUS HANDS. Milton Herth, organ wizard of the Neptune Room, can produce hot'n fast harmonies with both hands raised high in the air. He says, "By using heel and toe I can get the equivalent of four fingers. And that's enough to play a lot of tunes." It's a sensational trick to watch . . . P. S. Milt and his trio have been making a flock of new boogie-woogie platters.

AROUND "2400." All debbies now around town seem to stepping into and around the Lounge Riviera. We saw seven of them there the other eve, all swaying sweetly to Pete Macias' best conga rhythms . . . Singer Harriet Derck was looking verra snazzy in a yellow blouse with green and yellow polka dotted skirt and a necklace of huge red cherries . . . For a carefree afternoon you should get yourself an admission card to the roof of Hotel 2400. It's beautiful and restful and you can sit there until the stars come out—and later.

DOUBLE AIR COOLING keeps Lee's Stables at a constant Maytime temperature. If the weather is cool, fresh air is pumped in from outside. When it gets hot, washed cold air is pulled in from Owner Ralph A. Lee's nearby ice cream plant. But you can't order vanilla or pineapple flavored air.

SPECIALISTS ALL are the members of Roy Bradford's new Del Rio Band. Roy plays a wicked fiddle, does such trick solos as Rubinoff's "Fiddling the Fiddle." Pianist Jack Wells is also a smart comedy vocalist, used to be with Anson Weeks. Sax player Fred Jameson also sings, mostly in the romance manner. And cutie-pie Bonnie Fleming automatically takes rank with the town's more superior canaries.

MIAMI VISITOR. Frank Kearns, night club ed of the Miami Beach Topics, writes that he plans to come to Washington and write himself a piece about our town's after dark life as compared to Miami.

REMINISCENCE DEPARTMENT

GENE BARI, now leading his West Coast Trio in Mayfair

Arthur Herbert, maestro of the Starlight Roof, played in the Army Band away back in the 1920's. He marched in the parade on the day the Unknown Soldier was buried, has a vivid recollection of standing in the rain at attention for 2 hours on that occasion . . . Matt Windsor remembers the tough days of World War I when he was a youth in the Ukraine when he had to walk many miles to get any kind of groceries. "America's so wonderful" says Matt, 'that I even enjoy paying taxes" . . . Oscar Heintze, of the New Bavarian, likes to remember those happy days in Vienna when he played for the beautiful Tilly Losch . . . Lee Hardesty gives high rhythm on sax and clarinet in Paul Kain's Glen Echo Orchestra but he used to be strictly classic when he played in the Philadelphia Symphony.

SPORTS INFORMATION keeps the radio busy in the Harrington Tavern. Patrons bend eager ears to the baseball games in the afternoon and if there are any big sports events going on in the evening they're always available on the Harrington radio.

FACTS AND RUMORS. Arthur Todd is not taking a job as an orchestra leader with Meyer Davis, despite all that chatter. He's too happy in his present location . . . Abe Clar is leaving the Casino Royal to piano at the Congressional Club . . . Don't come around asking us when Leader Dick Koons, of the Mayflower Lounge is going to get married. We don't know either. Dick semes uncertain, too . . . Peppery Dick, of the Hi Hat Cavaliers, sings in four languages. Think of all the people who can't sing in even one language . . . Leader Rod Raffell, of the Nightingale, tells us that Robin Gould is taking a mail order course in knitting and cake baking. Well, we'll be—!

STATISTICS. It is estimated that River Bend patrons put on a ton of weight at each of those Wednesday eve "Piggie Parties." The menus are savory and varied and there's always enough beer on tap to float a battleship.

Nazis Encourage Stand of Japan

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, July 9.—Germans in Japan are now assiduously spreading anti-American propaganda. Influential Japanese are being told the United States is the main obstacle to their ambition of becoming a world power and at the same time they are being told that the power of the United States has been exaggerated.

Influential Japanese are being fed with praise for aiding the Axis by holding the United States fleet in the Pacific. Those were the leading ideas put into circulation by Col. Gerhard Matzky, the German military attache, at a recent gathering in Tokyo.

Jobless and Fifth Column Are Discussed in Alexandria

Unemployment is aiding fifth columnists in the Nation, Ray Simpson, College debater, told members of Alexandria Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday in George Mason Hotel. Here to visit his uncle, Robert L. May, Simpson appeared as guest speaker at the meeting.

Fifth columnists and sponsors of un-American activities daily are employing persons who have reached the point of desperation as a result of their failure to find employment, and who would accept any type of employment in preference to starvation, Simpson said.

The speaker also warned against certain youth factions. While a majority of these groups are legitimate, he said, many others are composed of unemployed youths who have been organized by fifth columnists on the promise of economic aid.

Because of their youth, he said, the members do not fully realize the true purposes of their organizations and are led blindly by ruthless leaders whose only object is to undermine the democratic principles of this Government.

11 Are Registered In Police School

Eleven applicants for appointment to the Alexandria police force registered at the opening session of the annual police training school last night at department headquarters. The initial meeting was devoted to registration and organization of the class. Actual classwork will get under way this evening under the direction of Capt. John S. Arnold and Detective Russell Hawes.

Classes will be held every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening from 7:30 until 10:30 for the next three weeks. The principal purpose of the course is to determine the qualifications of candidates for future appointments.

4 Men Arrested In Theft of Rails

Reports on the purchase of large quantities of "street car rails" by an Alexandria junk dealer has led to the arrest of four men for the theft of approximately 17,000 pounds of iron railing from a Southern Railroad siding in Alexandria, Detective James Baber said yesterday. The junk dealer is also being held for violation of a section of the Virginia State code, banning the purchase of railroad material by second-hand stores or junk dealers.

Detective Baber said police became curious last week when the dealer reported he had purchased the railing from the four men at various times. An investigation revealed the rails had been lifted from the seldom-used siding, and had been transported to the shop in a truck loaned by the dealer.

Firemen worked frantically yesterday among the ruins of a two-story brick building behind 505 Thirteenth street southeast, believing a man and at least one child had been trapped in the cave-in. They halted only when the "victims" were found nearby, unharmed. An old stable, converted into a garage, collapsed while Robert Carr, 32, of 1441 A street southeast, was repairing a door. His nephew, 4-year-old Thomas Davis, who lives at 505 Thirteenth street, was playing in the garage a short time before. Mrs. Earline Davis, mother of the boy, witnessed the cavein from her apartment window and was terrified, believing her son was in the building. As she ran from the house, Tommy was coming in the yard, bewailing the loss of his tricycle which was crushed in the wreckage

MRS. FLORENCE CONLIN SOCIAL WORKER, ON THE BENCH AT PRESIDING JUDGE GEORGE C. AUKAM'S RIGHT HAND

Presiding Judge George C. Aukam, of the Municipal Court, declared yesterday that in the first week of trial he found it most helpful to have a social worker at his right hand when he was hearing cases in the Landlord and Tenant Division.

Hundreds of poor persons are summoned by the court each month, when they get into difficulties with their rent. Judge Aukam recently asked that a social worker be assigned to the court to help him sift out meritorious cases and determine what could be done for them.

Mrs. Florence Conlin was sent for the month of July by the Council of Social Agencies and completed her first week's work yesterday. She was welfare director of the District American Legion for two and a half years and previously worked five years with the District Public Assistance Division.

Besides being available in the court handling of cases, Mrs. Conlin handled 24 cases referred to her by Judge Aukam. After investigating the circumstances of the families concerned, she was able to effect adjustments in 19 of them.

One case involved a former WPA worker unable to pay his rent. As he faced the court, without legal defense to the claim of his landlord, the man was bewildered as well as destitute and appeared to have no way to escape eviction, and his wife was expecting a baby shortly.

Mrs. Conlin ascertained that the man was eligible for immediate reemployment by the WPA, because he left to take other employment, and showed him how to handle his application. A friend was willing to pay one month of the back rent. Assured that the man would be able to get work, the landlord agreed to an arrangement for paying off the remainder. The Catholic Charities took over immediate needs of the family, pending the man's reemployment.

Thus, through the intervention of the court social worker, the landlord got his rent and kept a tenant, the family was saved from desperation and the court's books were cleared of a case that might have remained there indefinitely.

Comparable but less elaborate adjustments were enough to deal with other cases. Mrs. Conlin reported one instance in which the family rent was due several days before the pay day of the single wage earner. She was able to suggest an adjustment of the dates.

Each case was accompanied by an analysis of the relief record and needs of the family involved. There were five cases in which Mrs. Conlin found no social service adjustment was called for.

Attorneys, until lately skeptical of the proposal, appeared now to consider it useful. A lawyer for one rental agent took judgments in half a dozen cases, then paused in the courtroom to advise the tenants to consult Mrs. Conlin.

When the month of trial is complete, the Municipal Court judges will study the record and determine whether to urge that the social worker system be made permanent.

Nationals Defeat American All-Stars, 4 to 0

It's a 3-Run Homer for West and the Game for Nationals

32,000 See Nationals Shut Out Americans

4-0 Victory Aided by 3-Hit Pitching; Is First Blank Gained in 8-Year History Of Classic; West's Homer Does the Job

By Judson Bailey
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, July 9.—The National League humiliated the aces of the American League with the first shoutout in the eight year history of the all-star game today, 4 to 0, on magnificent three-hit pitching and a first inning home run by Max West, of the Boston Bees.

A sweltering crowd of 32,373, slightly less than the capacity of the park, thrilled at the throwing of five National League hurlers as they stifled the ballyhooed batting of the Americans.

The only blows given up by the Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters and company were two hits to little Luke Appling, of the Chicago White Sox, and one to Pitcher Buck Newsom, of the Detroit Tigers.

The National Leaguers fielded faultlessly and collected seven safeties, four of them in a surprising outburst off the New York Yankees' Red Ruffing in the first inning.

West Hurt

The embittered senior circuit stars, victors in only two of the seven previous all-star tussles, never gave their foes a chance.

Arky Vaughan, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, a goat in the beating the National League took last summer, led off the assault on Ruffing with a scratch single over Joe Gordon's head. Billy Herman, of the Chicago Cubs, who had a perfect day at the plate with three hits, put on his favorite play, the hit and run, and singled Vaughan to third. Then West lofted a 360-foot four bagger into the right field pavilion.

West, ironically, was hurt in the first half of the next inning to continue the All-Star struggle's string of casualties. He crashed into the right field wall in a desperate leap for a liner by Appling and bruised his left hip, apparently not seriously.

After that first inning flurry the game settled down to a tight rope act, and the only other run was scored in the eighth inning after Bobby Feller, of Cleveland, took over the pitching chores.

He walked Mel Ott, of the New York Giants, on four straight balls and after Frank McCormick, of Cincinnati, had sacrificed the runner to second, Catcher Hank Danning, of the New York Giants, the National League's leading hitter, drove him home with a sharp single to rightfield.

The only error of the game occurred on this play as Catcher Rollie Hemsley, of the Indians, let Lou Finney's throw roll through him and Danning get to second but no damage was caused.

Both Manager Bill McKechnie of the Nationals and Joe Cronin of the Americans captured the spirit of the All-Star struggle as a show, and 36 players got into the game, 22 for the National League.

Hubbell Finishes

Derringer, who started on the mound for the senior circuit, worked two innings and was the winning pitcher. He fanned three batters and gave up one hit, Appling's double when West was hurt.

McKechnie kept his pitchers going at top speed in short tricks. He sent Walters to the mound at the start of the third and the National League's most valuable player pitched hitless ball for two frames, facing only six batters. Whitlow Wyatt, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Larry French, of the Chicago Cubs, followed with workmanlike performances, each giving one hit in two innings, and the veteran Carl Hubbell finished. He gave no hits in one inning.

McKechnie made one mass substitution of six players at the start of the sixth and the only players he missed were Pitchers Hugh Mulcahy and Kirby Higbe, of the

McKechnie Holds Pep Session In Clubhouse After Triumph

National League Stars' Pilot Whoops, Praises Pitching, Calls for Cameras

By Charley Dunkley.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

St. Louis July 9.—William (Deacon) McKechnie, 53-year-old leader of the National League All-Stars, was supremely happy at the 4-to-0 triumph of his players over the stars of the American League.

"Those guys got a look at some good pitching today, didn't they?" McKechnie asked. "It was a great game. I'm proud of my players. We had a fast fielding club and a great defensive team. Wasn't Max West's clout a beauty?"

Calls for Cameras

The Deacon stripped down to his shorts in the sweltering heat of the dressing room.

"Who wants to take my picture?" he beamed.

Then he shook the hand of each player, thanking them for their performance. He was particularly pleased at the hitting of Billy Herman, Chicago Cubs' second baseman, who had a perfect day at bat with three singles.

"Nice hitting, Billy," he complimented.

McKechnie was surrounded by his lieutenants, the veteran Casey Stengel, manager of the Boston Bees, and Doc Protho, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies. They whooped it up with boyish enthusiam, while photographers swarmed around them for newspaper "shots."

Second Straight Victory

They were happy because it was the first game of the eight-year-old series that ended in a shutout and it was the third victory for the National Leaguers. Taking in the game played at Tampa, Fla., last March for the Finnish Relief Fund, the National Leaguers have walloped the Americans twice this year. They won the game in Florida, 2 to 1, with seven New York Yankees in the starting line-up. Today there were five Yanks teeing off—Keller, DiMaggio, Gordon, Dickey and Ruffing.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, shouldered his way through the perspiring players to congratulate McKechnie. Frick was

MacDisappointed All-Star Classic Awarded to Detroit

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP).—Connie Mack said today he was "deeply disappointed" that Philadelphia did not get the All-Star baseball game for 1941. It was awarded to Detroit.

The veteran manager of the Athletics said he felt "the game should rotate between East and West and not go westward two years in a row." He did not go to St. Louis for today's game.

The 1941 game was the first formally sought by Philadelphia.

Detroit Beats Grand Rapids

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 9 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers hammered five hurlers for 20 hits, including homers by Paul (Dizzy) Trout, Birdie Tebbetts and Earl Averill, to defeat Grand Rapids, of the Michigan State League, 13 to 6, in an exhibition game before 3,500 here today.

Trout worked the first five innings, yielding 10 hits. Clay Smith, recalled from Beaumont, of the Texas League, finished, allowing only three safeties.

Challedon Captures $1,500 Corinthian

Washington-Owned Horse Beats Many Stings at Suffolk Downs; Race Is 'Tightener' for Brann's Ace in Big 'Cap

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 9.—W. L. Brann's Challedon, the 1929 champion of the turf, resumed his racing career today after a seven-months' rest and scored a decisive triumph over the Lemar Stock Farms' Many Stings in the two-horse $1,500 Corinthian event at Suffolk Downs.

The race was arranged to provide Challedon with a "tightener" for next week's $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap and the Brann star surprised the crowd of 14,000 by winning easily by 2½ lengths.

Although held under firm restraint by Jockey George Woolf, Challedon turned the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 1-5, only a second over the track record, while carrying 126 pounds.

His performance was so convincing that his trainer, Lou Schaefer, said he would not start the colt again until he is called upon to carry the top weight of 130 pounds against a brilliant field in this track's outstanding event on July 17.

Had Woolf ridden him out, it is likely Challedon would have won by 10 lengths and shattered the track record. Many Stings, under the whip all through the home stretch, was unable to challenge at any stage of the race. There was no wagering.

Play-by-Play Of All-Star Classic

By the Associated Press

FIRST INNING

AMERICAN—Travis hit the first pitch deep to Terry Moore in center. Williams walked on five pitches. Keller struck out on three straight pitches. Derringer threw out DiMaggio. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

NATIONAL—Vaughan's bounding grounder hopped over Gordon's head for a scratch single. Herman smashed a single through Travis on a hit-and-run play, sending Vaughan to third. With the count one strike and no balls, West lifted a home run into the rightfield pavilion 360 feet from home plate, scoring Vaughan and Herman ahead of him. Williams came in short for Mize's high fly. Lombardi hit the first pitch into short center for a single and the crowd cheered as Medwick came to bat. He fouled to Foxx. Lavagetto popped to Gordon. Three runs, four hits, no errors, one left.

SECOND INNING

AMERICAN—Foxx was called out on strikes. Appling picked out a slow ball second pitch and doubled it against the rightfield wall. Max West crashed into the wall trying to spear the ball and fell to the ground, apparently hurt. Time was called and players rushed to his aid. West walked gingerly from the field and was replaced by Nicholson, of the Chicago Cubs. Herman took Dickey's easy grounder and threw him out, Appling going to third. Gordon struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

NATIONAL—Terry Moore fouled to Foxx. Derringer struck out on three pitches. Vaughan worked the count to three and two and then went down swinging. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

THIRD INNING

AMERICAN—Bucky Walters, of Cincinnati, went to the mound for the National Leaguers and threw out Ruffing. Travis lined deep to Medwick in left center. Herman threw out Williams. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

NATIONAL—Gordon made a spectacular stop of Herman's grounder back of second, but his throw was too late to catch Herman and it went for a hit. Keller ran to the bullpen to catch Nicholson's foul and Herman raced to second after the catch. Gordon threw out Mize, as Herman advanced to third. Lombardi filed to Keller in short right. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

FOURTH INNING

AMERICAN—Phelps went behind the plate for the Nationals in place of Lombardi. Herman easily threw out Keller. DiMaggio tried to dodge an inside pitch and knocked it to Nicholson in right. Vaughn threw out Foxx. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

NATIONAL—West's injury was reported to be a bruised left hip. Newsom and Hayes formed a new battery for the American League. Gordon pulled down Medwick's screaming liner. Lavagetto lifted a high fly to Keller on the first pitch. Terry Moore filed to Williams. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

FIFTH INNING

AMERICAN—Wyatt went to the mound to take over the National League pitching chores. Appling grounded to Mize. Lavagetto came in for Hayes' grounder and

Overlin Stops Harry Balsamo In 9th Round

Angered by Alleged Rough Tactics, Ken Cuts Foe to Ribbons

By the United Press

New York, July 9.—Angered by his opponent's rough tactics, playboy Ken Overlin, middleweight champion, turned butcher tonight and chopped Harry Balsamo, New York's "belting brakeman," into such a bloody mess that Balsamo had to quit in the ninth round of their Milk Fund bout at Queensboro Arena.

With blood streaming from both brows, from gashes on both cheeks and from nose and mouth, Balsamo appealed to Referee Billy Cavanaugh to stop the fight. This the referee did, awarding playboy Ken, of Washington, D. C., a technical knockout victory at 2:38 of the ninth round.

Although Overlin's new middleweight crown was not at stake, as both were over the 160-pound limit, he fought more savagely in the eighth and ninth sessions than in any previous New York showing. And before he had finished with his taller and heavier opponent in the ninth, many of the 7,000 fans were yelling "Stop the fight! Stop the fight!"

The bout was scheduled for 10 rounds.

Balsamo, scaling 170½ pounds to Overlin's 161¼, aroused Ken's fury by repeated rabbit punches, hitting on the break and finally by almost falling out of the ring with the champion as he forced Ken backwards over the ropes.

Overlin won every round but the second, which was even. His speed and whirlwind hooking attack completely befuddled big Harry, the knockout artist who had belted out 43 opponents in 50 professional engagements. There were no knockdowns, although Balsamo

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Perhaps we were placing too much emphasis on too many isolated cases, but from time to time we have put in the rap for major league baseball athletes as an insufferable lot of self-centered, nickel-hoarding ingrates who profane the fans' hero-worship by grumpy indifference.

POVICH

The indictment was not all-embracing, of course. Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig were swell guys. In fact, it is almost axiomatic that the bigger the star, the bigger the man. In the main, though, the ball players consider themselves under no obligation to the fans who pay the freight. And when it was revealed last winter that a half-dozen well-paid players had made application for unemployment relief from public funds during the off-season, the whole fraternity could hardly escape some of the rap.

It's with an effort that most ball players tip their caps when the fans are moved to cheer 'em for a good play. And when they do, the gesture breathes of diffidence. When tomorrow's fans, the kids at the gates, wait patiently for the autographs of their favorites the athletes sneak out the back gate if there is one. Babe Ruth never turned down an autograph-seeker in his life, but the main body of 'em today can't be bothered.

But there are delightful exceptions among the ball players and on the suspicion that we may have been too harsh, we make haste to cite one of the truly beautiful acts by a ball player which has come to our attention. Here's the story; On the Yankees' last trip to Washington, a fan approached Coach Earl Combs as he was leaving the game and told him of a Gallinger Hospital patient who had admired his play when he was a Yankee outfielder. He had been her favorite ball player and would he write her a letter. He said he would. And here is the letter he wrote, not a few days later, but that very evening:

"Dear Miss—I jist learned today through a fan at the ball game that you are ill in the hospital. I want to extend to you my sympathy and wish for you a speedy recovery. I can certainly sympathize with any one who is confined to a hospital bed, having spent seven weeks in one not so many years ago. I may never have left it had it not been for the many baseball fans who were nice enough to send me a word of cheer and take time to write me letters.

"I am hoping my letter to you will make you fight just a little harder to get well, for I know it helps to know some one is pulling for you. I understand you were rooting for me when I was playing ball, and that is what I am doing for you now.

"By now I know you must be wondering who is writing you. Do you remember Earl Combs, the gray-haired man who used to play the outfield for the New York Yankees years ago. Well, I'm that fellow and believe me I'm cheering for you now.

"Five years ago when I was in the hospital with a fractured skull I received as many as 70 letters a day from fans and I think that was largely responsible for my recovery. They begged me not to give up. That is what I am asking you not to do. 'Don't Give Up.' We can overcome a lot of tough obstacles if we just show courage and determination.

"Our club is not doing so well this year, but there is time, yet. And if we can't win the pennant again, we won't be selfish about it. Somebody else deserves the thrill that comes with being champions. I trust that you will soon be in the best health again. Very sincerely, EARL COMBS."

The prize fight that intrigues us more than any fistic affair since the second Louis-Schmeling battle was in the making is next week's Henry Armstrong-Lew Jenkins bout at Yankee Stadium. No title is involved but that fact is no deterrent. It looks like the best fight between little guys or big ones in many, many years.

Jenkins, of course, is the man whose presence lifts the battle out of the another-fight class. He came out of Texas only a year ago to knock out everybody he encountered in the East and climax his upsurge by stopping Lightweight Champion Lew Ambers in three rounds. He's the new sensation, but Armstrong is the perfect opponent as far as fan-interest is concerned.

There isn't much doubt that Jenkins is the hardest-hitting, fastest-hitting man for his pounds who has attained any prominence in the last decade. But how will he fare against the perpetually moving Armstrong, and what will happen when Armstrong crowds him? We want to be there and watch it. We have an idea that Jenkins will never reach Armstrong's chin and will get himself knocked out half way through the bout.

Medalist Loses In First Round Of Junior Golf

By the Associated Press

South Bend, Ind., July 9.—Unawed by her opponent's past performance chart, Miss Eileen Quinlan, a smiling, happy-go-lucky Irish girl from St. Paul, Minn., began match play in the twenty-first annual Western Woman's Junior Golf Tournament with an upset today by defeating Phyllis Otto, of Atlantic, Iowa, the tournament medalist, 1 up.

Miss Quinlan, who never has taken a golf lesson, matched her more experienced foe whenever the pressure was on and swept to victory on the strength of some sensational recovery shots and a red-hot putter.

She had six one-putt greens, rolling the putts in from as far as 40 feet away.

Tomorrow Miss Quinlan will meet Margaret Gunther, of Memphis, Tenn., who defeated Edith Holt, of Weaver, Iowa, today, 4 and 2.

Tomorrow Miss Cline will meet Virginia Smith, of Milwaukee, Wis., a 4 and 3 victor today over Barbara Bathke, of St. Paul, Minn.

Art Doering Leads Amateur Play in West

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, July 9.—Art Doering, 24-year-old Chicagoan, fired a sub-par 70 on the Minneapolis golf course here today to lead at the halfway mark of the 36-hole qualifying test in the forty-first annual Western Amateur tournament.

Medalist honors will be decided Wednesday when the second 18 qualifying round is played.

A stroke behind Doering were Jim Black, St. Louis, and two Minneapolis players, Neil Croonquist and Kenny Young.

Bud Ward, of Spokane, Wash., National Amateur titlist, pulled up with a five over par 77, largely because of erratic iron play. Poor putting sent Johnny Goodman, Omaha, former National Open and Amateur titlist, up to a 75.

Both Ward and Goodman, however, apparently were safely in the championship flight for match play starting on Thursday, even if they duplicated their rounds today in the final 18 holes Wednesday.

Doering had four birdies, two bogeys and 12 pars. He dropped in 12-foot putts for birdies on the second and fourth holes, missed the green and took a bogey four on the sixth; canned a 6-foot putt for a birdie on the seventh; three-putted the eighth for a bogey five and then made a 10-foot putt on the seventeenth for his final birdie.

Kovacs Advances To Third Round In Gold Racquets

By the Associated Press

North Conway, N. H., July 9.—Frank Movacs, of Oakland, Calif., the top-seeded player in the Gold Racquet Tennis Tournament, today paced the favorites into the third round by winning 12 consecutive games from Orme Wilson, of Boston.

Second-seeded Hal Surface, of Kansas City, defeated Del Farrar, White Plains, N. Y., 6—2, 6—4. Fourth-seeded George Toley, Los Angeles, eliminated Jack Martin, Washington, 6—0, 6—1.

Cliff Sutter, of New York, ranked third in the draw, defeated James Wade, of Los Angeles, 6—1, 6—4.

In other second rounders, Larry Dee, Palo Alto, Calif.; defeated Eugene McCauliff, New York, 6—4, 8—6, and Kenneth Bartell, Los Angeles, eliminated Chauncey Steele, New York, 6—4, 6—2.

Wins Tennis Crown

Evanston, Ill., July 7 (AP).—Marvin Wachman, Milwaukee, former Northwestern University ace, won the mens' singles championship of the North Shore tennis tournament today with a 4—6, 6—3, 6—1, 6—3 victory over lanky Gardner Larned, Chicago.

Otto Greiner Shoots 142 to Retain M. A. Junior Golf Crown

Rounds of 69, 73 Rout 23 Contenders; Skinker Is Second After a Play-Off

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Otto Greiner, 20-year-old Baltimore University student, brought the Middle Atlantic Junior Championship Trophy to Columbia yesterday morning and took it right back home last night after two fine rounds over the Columbia Country Club course.

"Otts" posted a morning round of 69, one under par, and an afternoon trip of 73, three over par, for a 142 total and a seven-stroke margin over the next best score in the field of 24 junior golfers. He won the title last year at Kenwood with a sub-par 139 total for the 36 holes.

The former Maryland State and Middle Atlantic amateur champion played the first nine holes in an average 37 and he missed par on the tenth to go 3 over. But from that point to the thirty-sixth green it was Greiner all the way. He passed his playing partner, Earle Skinker, with an eagle three on the twelfth hole via two great woods and a short putt, he birdied the fourteenth and dropped a short birdie putt on 18 to play the back nine in 32, with five 3s, for his 69.

Slips a Little

He slipped a little on the outgoing nine in the afternoon and was 39 with only one par. He birdied the third, with a 20-foot putt, and the fifth, but other than a par on seven the rest were bogeys. He found himself again on the back nine, however, dropping seven consecutive pars, a birdie on the seventeenth and a par on the home fifteenth. He played the entire 36 holes without a three-putt green, and it was only the second time he had seen the layout.

Skinker, the District of Columbia schoolboy champion from the host club, won the runner-up prize after a play-off with Frank Dunham, jr., of Army and Navy. The boys each had 73 in the morning and 76 in the afternoon, for 149 totals, although Skinker was the more consistent. He was 36 and 37 and 39 and 37, while Dunham was 11 over par on the outgoing nine, with 39 and 42, but he played the back nine both times in 34 strokes, one under par, for the deadlock.

Escapes Bad Hole

Skinker, who lost a play-off for runner-up in the Maryland junior just two weeks ago, was in bad shape on the first hole of the play-off, when he dumped his second shot into a trap bordering the green, but he blasted out and coolly canned a 12-footer for a par. He won on the second hole with a birdie three, while Dunham was over the green in two and took five.

The third best score was a 153 by Maryland Intercollegiate Champion Eddie Johnston, of the Terra Mariae Club in Baltimore, who was 77. Steven Olds, of the host club, was fourth with 156.

Greiner was the only one of the youngsters who took the course apart. District Junior Champion Bill Cassedy had trouble in the afternoon and was 76, 85—161, while Manor Club Champ Dick Meyer was 163, with a pair of 44's on the first nine.

Greiner will be back at Columbia in two weeks for the Maryland Open championship, but if the Terra Mariae Club member could just leave that score there and stay home he'd probably be the new champion.

Former Grid Giant Joins Eagle Eleven

Philadelphia, July 9 (AP).—Bert Bell, president of the Philadelphia Eagles, announced today that Hugh Wolfe, former University of Texas and New York Giant back, had agreed to play with Philadelphia's National Professional Football Team this year.

Wolfe captained the Texas eleven in 1937 and was named to play in the annual East-West game at San Francisco that year and in the All-Star-Pro game at Chicago in 1938. He organized and coached a professional team in Hawaii last year.

The Eagles received Wolfe from the Giants in a trade at the end of the 1938 season.

50 Assorted 'Gunmen' Shoot It Out—In Fun

Third Leg of Round-Robin Tournament Between Police and Civilian Clubs Won by McMahill, of Precinct No. 2 With 282x300

By Al Hailey

Gunmen from Washington, Montgomery County and Alexandria "shot it out" yesterday in an eight-sided battle, but no casualties were counted. It was all quite fitting and proper. Fact is, they're making it a regular Tuesday habit.

The gunmen were—guess—policemen, approximately half a hundred of them, and a few enthusiastic civilians who love to hear the crack of a .38 and whiff the acrid smoke from the muzzles.

Occasion for the flying lead was the third leg of the little publicized round robin tournament between police and civilian clubs at the Terra Cotta range of the No. 12 Precinct Pistol Club.

Warmup for Tourney

Yesterday's shooting, however, served principally as the warm-up for the first annual pistol and revolver tournament, which the National Capital Rifle Club is staging at the range Sunday.

Eight teams were represented at yesterday's fray—Alexandria Police, White House Police, Federal Works Police, Metropolitan Police, Montgomery County Police, No. 6 Precinct Civilians and the National Capital Rifle Club.

Sergt. S. R. McKee, captain of the Metropolitan Police team, who was one of the main figures in the construction of the Terra Cotta range last fall, explained that the current round-robbin is patterned after the baseball leagues and that the real "world series" is coming up in the fall when the fifth annual pistol matches will be staged at the range October 5-6, with shooters from this area firing.

"Wes have been operating with virtually no publicity, but any club or club team may enter the current round-robbin tourney," Sergt. McKee emphasized.

Shooting Their Business

The Terra Cotta temper seems to be "all-star baseball, football or what-have-you events be hanged, shooting is our business."

Experts all at the art of handling guns ,the contestants yesterday were firing .38 Colt target pistols, mainly over the National Match course—which means 10 shots at 50 yards slow fire, 10 at 25, time, and 10 at 25, rapid.

R. B. McMahill, of Precinct No. 2, and member of the Metropolitan Police team, was high yesterday with 282 out of 300. John Cash, of the White House team, was second with 281, and White House Team Captain Edgar Warden had a 279 for third. Gladys E. Dyer, lone woman shooter and member of the No. 6 Precinct Civilians team, turned out late in the afternoon for a few practice rounds.

McMahill was the hit of the day by virtue of his world's record performance in a five-second speed trial last week at Camp Ritchie's Eastern Pistol and Rifle championships. He scored a perfect 50x50

Florida Race Body Holds Up Applications

Action Is Deferred On Two New Tracks, Denies One Permit

By the Associated Press

Jacksonville, Fla., July 9.—The State Racing Commission has deferred action on applications for two new horse racing tracks in Florida and denied permits for operation of another horse track.

The board yesterday postponed until August 12 its decision on whether to permit racing at Gulfstream Park, north of Miami in Broward County, and at the former Tampa Downs site in Hillsborough County.

Racing dates for a proposed horse track in Volusia County were refused because of "insufficient finances" of the Daytona Beach Jockey Club.

There will be at least the usual amount of racing in Florida next year, however, because the commission approved about the same schedules as last season at the State's two present horse tracks, one jai alai fronton and several dog racing plants.

Tropical Park's horses will run 50 days with the usual split season. The track will open December 20 at Coral Gables, then close again January 7.

Hialeah Park will open January 8 for a 45-day meeting to end March 1. Tropical Park then will reopen for the second half of its season from March 3 until April 10.

Sylvan Shores Wins Two, 8-6, 5-4

After defeating the strong True Blue ten, of Washington, the Sylvan Shores Softball team won its eighth and ninth straight games yesterday, by downing Sherwood Forest, 8 to 6, in the morning and the league leaders of Washington's Firemen's League, Government Printing Office, 5 to 4, in an 11-inning nightcap.

Bobby Gannon led the hitting attack, getting 3 for 4 in the first game, a single, a double and a home run, and 4 for 5 in the second game, 3 singles and a triple.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, July 9.—Don Budge, who made a lot of money for the United States Lawn Tennis Association while he was an amateur, and then had only kind words for it when he turned pro to make some for himself, will soon make a personal appeal to the association's big-wigs for a national tennis open.

CONSIDINE

The amazing red-head agrees with a recent piece we had that this is the time for the U. S. L. T. A. to cut itself loose from the domination of the International Tennis Federation. The I. T. F. is the body which for a number of years has refused to sanction a United States open tennis tournament (based on the lines of our highly successful, 44-year-old golf open). And if you wonder what right the I. T. F. had to tell us what we could do, and couldn't, the I. T. F. was a sort of Judge Landis of the world's tennis, and any member nation which broke its rules was booted out of foreign competition, Davis Cup, etc.

The I. T. F. was dominated by the French and English, who were afraid that if we were permitted to run an open there would be a clamor for one in those countries, and the resultant tax-grabs by the officials of those countries might lead the same officials to want to grab a percentage of the big money-making amateur tournaments over there. Now, of course, the I. T. F., whose offices are in Paris, is about as operative as the Maginot Line.

There is really nothing to restrain our doing what should have been done years ago—whether they liked it or not. Except one thing:

Our own tennis association is dominated by the remnants of what might be called the old Newport mob. They have an unquestioned interest in the game, but they were brought up in a school where leprosy was to be preferred to living in a home without a Groton diploma on the wall. Tennis was a country club game when they learned it, and they have devoted their lives to trying to keep it as far removed from the sandlotters as possible—which partially accounts for the way golf has long since passed it in popularity. This profound little clique was horrified when Tilden called them brass hats, when Richards called them stuffed shirts and Vines called them hypocritical exploiters of amateur talent. They've resented every baker's boy who ever learned to swing a racquet. And as for professionals, they blanch when they see them using anything but the tradesman's entrance.

But Budge was their pet. He was a poor kid, but they appreciated the fact that he could hit a ball as nobody before him ever hit one. He drew mobs of spectators, won everything, brought the Davis Cup back after it had been on foreign soil a decade. And when at last he turned pro he didn't rush to the nearest magazine and ghost a piece on how he had been misused, though he could have blown the loudest whistle of all. Thus Budge, who talks a lot of horse-sense, is the best possible ambassador to go to them to point out the thing that is all too obvious to the younger and more progressive tennis officials—that tennis in America is virtually doomed as a spectator sport because the war will keep out the foreign players.

And that an open is the easiest way to fill the U. S. L. T. A. treasury with the money the association needs for the development of players at the hundreds of member clubs throughout the country.

Budge was telling me the other day that he thought that if the open did come to pass that no amateur would reach the semifinal round. He thinks that day in and out the best amateur around today is Elwood Cooke. Don thinks reasonably enough that the probable semifinalists in a United States tennis open would be Ellsworth Vines, Fred Perry, Bill Tilden and himself. Tilden is the weakest of the four (though not as weak as his 48 years would indicate) but Budge couldn't see Tilden losing to an amateur.

The exhibition pro game is about dead, for want of a new and powerful recruit from the amateurs to battle Budge. The amateur game is dying for want of colorful foreign players of the type of Cochet, Borotra, Von Cramm, etc. We've got ham (and how) and we've let ourselves be talked into separating it from our eggs. It is unnatural. An open, based on the idea of the great golf open, is such a simple solution that with a little honest prodding it will some day be understood by the pooh-bahs who are chronically suspicious of anything the general tennis public wants.

We wish Budge all the luck and patience he'll need.

Two Softball Games Tonight In Tourney

Dixie Meets Greenbelt, I. B. M. Faces Steel At Ballston Stadium

The annual Middle Atlantic softball tournament continues at Ballston Park, Arlington, with two games tonight. At 7:45 Dixie Tavern meets Greenbelt and at 9 Bethlehem Steel, of Baltimore, will engage I. B. M., current tournament favorite since the elimination Monday of Senate Beer, 1939 Middle Atlantic champions.

Dixie Tavern, a hard-hitting team, boasts victories over Cameo Furniture, the same team which upset Senate Beer the other evening, and the U. S. Aggies in league play at Ballston this season. Greenbelt, however, looms equally as strong and the game is rated a toss-up by tournament officials.

The nightcap promises to be a pitcher's duel between Friedman, of Bethlehem Steel, and Temple Jarrell, of I. B. M. International Business Machines, yet to suffer a loss to a District ten this year, will rule a slight favorite.

slipped to the canvas at the end of the fourth as Overlin warded him off with a backhand. However, Balsamo was staggered again and again and almost knocked through the ropes three or four times.

In the fifth round, Referee Cavanaugh had extreme difficulty in prying them apart as they whaled away at the back of each other's heads with rabbit punches.

Overlin forced the fighting throughout, with Balsamo backpedaling and trying now and then for pot shots to the head. Ken's body attack slowed up Harry considerably after the fifth.

After the bout, Overlin said, "I never got so mad at any opponent in my life. He did everything illegal out there except to use a club on me. But I fixed him up all right."

Lansburgh Defeats Sterling Ten, 4-3

Behind the three-hit pitching of Buddy Lazear the Lansburgh Softball Club defeated Sterling Laundry, 4-3, yesterday to finish up in a second place tie in the first half of the Taft-Burroughs League.

In addition to his pitching, Lazear had a perfect day at bat, getting two hits in two times up. He struck out nine men over the seven-inning stretch.

Bay View Captures Arlington Feature

Chicago, July 9 (AP).—Bay View, a 3-year-old owned by Mrs. Tony Pelleteri, of New Orleans, beat out Garrett Watts' 10-year-old mare, Silverette, by two and a half lengths in the Berwyn Purse at Arlington Park today.

Lexbrook Stable's Designer was third in the field of six, all 3-year-olds except Silverette. The highly favored Shady Brook Farm's Connaught failed miserably.

Bay View, ridden by Carroll Bierman, returned $11, $5.60 and $4. Running time was 1:22 2-5 over a slow track. About 8,500 fans were out.

Cameo Shades Russell, 8 to 6, In League Tilt

Five-Run Onslaught For Third Inning Overcomes Deficit

A five-run attack in the third inning spelled the difference between defeat and victory yesterday for Cameo Furnituremen as they nosed out Russell Motors, 8 to 6, in The Washington Post-Industrial League.

The furnituremen were trailing, 5-1, when the Russell pitching form underwent an about-face. Giggle Adair's lone hit of the day, a home-run, helped the Cameo cause, but Russell made motions toward tying up the score in the seventh by pushing across one run in a brief rally.

Price and Hahn held the motormen to eight hits, while Beckett and Seidel allowed the winners 12 hits.

Fire-Eaters Challenge John Laws

Intimating that in the past local police have shown great reluctance to meet fire-eaters in any kind of baseball, Manager George M. Burdine of the Fire Department yesterday issued a challenge to the cops for a softball game to be played on Field Day, September 14, at Griffith Stadium.

Burdine would stage the Police-Firemen contest between all-stars representing the two branches, neither of which has an official team but rather a single battalion and precinct tens which have been merged to meet outside foes.

The Fire Department has sponsored a softball team for three years during which time, under the management of Burdine, a highlight of their last season's campaign was a game at Madison Square Garden with the New York Municipal Government ten, won by the latter, 6 to 4.

Should the Washington police ignore his challenge, Burdine may bring here an all-star team called from the tanks of New York firemen and police. Negotiations for such a game have started between Burdine and William W. Cohen, executive vice chairman of New York Municipal Government athletic activities.

Lynchburg Beats Va. League Stars

Lynchburg, Va., July 9 (AP).—Unleashing a savage third inning batting attack that produced five runs, the Lynchburg Senators gave a convincing demonstration of their team superiority over the Virginia League tonight by plastering a 7-to-4 defeat upon an all-star aggregation chosen from the other teams in the loop.

More than 2,000 persons watched the Senators spot their opponents three runs in the first inning and then come sweeping back to settle the matter in the third frame.

Ed Galasso, Lynchburg right-hander, went the route for his team and was never in hot water after the first inning. In addition to his fine pitching (he gave up seven hits), Glasso wrote the climax to the big third by blasting a line drive home run that cleared the top rail in deep centerfield.

$12.60 Shot Scores By a Half Length In Feature; 9,000 Attend Opening

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Hagerstown, Md., July 9.—Small-track racing proved big business today as 9,000 fans stormed the modernized plant of the Hagerstown Fair Association to attend the opening of the half-mile racing season in Maryland. With the totalizator checking the wagering for the first time, the crowd formed in long lines in front of the windows.

Those who held the No. 6 tickets in the fifth race, cashed a $12.60 mutuel when Fred Brown's Eltonhead survived a three-way photo finish to win the Harry E. Bester Purse, featuring the opening program. Eltonhead, a winner at Charles Town, came to the wire in a gang finish that included H. Florentine's Squabble and J. E. Crider's Little Harpist. Six others competed in the 5-furlong test.

Eltonhead, capably ridden by Jockey Johnny Leyland, was clocked in 1:03 1-5 over a fast track. The photo showed the Flag Day gelding the winner by a half length with heads separating the others in the tight finish.

Never Home was first to show in front when Starter Ira Gregory sent the field away from the Puett gate. Eltonhead was lapped on the outside of the pacemaker. Turning for home Never Home began to fade and Eltonhead took command. Little Harpist, always close up, challenged the outside and Squabble came through on the rail. However, Leyland found speed enough in the gelding to hold him together going into the wire.

A favorite and a long shot figured in a pay off of $132.80 in the daily double. Trainer Edward Brining, of Hagerstown, saddled E. A. Nicodemus' Mayfern and the daughter of Mowlee scampered around the 5-furlong course to win by 2½ lengths at a $3.90 mutuel.

In the second half of the double, the second race, Jockey Skeets Holland returned to his first love—a half mile track—and booted J. Booker's Little Mistress to victory at a $29 mutuel. The finish was a blanket one with Cautious Bo and Sun Sweep in the thick of the battle.

The day's second Hagerstown victory came in the sixth race. Trainer Harvey McHenry, of this city, saddled Black Demon for Miss E. Biller and the 4-year-old colt led all the way under the handling of Jockey F. A. Martinez. Trainer J. Camac saddled Eltonhead and made it two winners for the day, having sent Corsica, a $21.90 shot, out to win the third event.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLOX, $7.60, $3.10, $3.10; MAETAKE, $3.00, $2.60; LACEY MISS, $2.90.

BLOX, carried out at first turn by THE TRIUMVIR, saved ground to improve position, rallied gamely under hard drive and was up in concluding strides along rail. MAETAKE saved ground while setting pace accompanied by LACEY MISS and barely failed to last. LACEY MISS was hard ridden close up and closed gamely. KALEIDA closed some ground.

Selections at Hagerstown.

Dear Al:

Alan Clarke, who is well known here as "Lefty" Clarke because of his brilliant pitching record in the Blue Ridge League, wishes to remind all that Mayfern, first winner of the meeting, is a daughter of Mowlee. Clarke's pitching now is confined to hay. He renewed acquaintances with Frank Colley, local sports editor who was Clarke's roommate in his baseball days. Sammy Palumbo passed up the first day's program and may take a couple of mounts today. O. S. Jennings' Royal Business, winner of the closing handicap at Charles Town, was a surprise arrival at the course. The horses Olan and Yankee Lad crashed in a training accident yesterday morning. Olan was injured about the shoulders. Every year I remind you but it is a fact that this is the only track in the country where the horses run across a bridge. Riders who were over the oval were pleased with the new cushion. A notice has been posted in the jockey's room that all riders must be clean-shaven and well groomed. Hagerstown has torn a page out of Charles Town's book and has banned individual jockey agents. The track is using a central agent for assigning mounts. Met one of the horsemen yesterday who had lost several hundred dollars between meetings in a crap game. He wasn't worried about that but was bemoaning the fact that he lost a $10 bill out of his vest pocket. Charles Town Nora took in the first program and brought her own camp stool. That detour will be done away with on the main road, so I'm told. Always did wonder why they always fix roads when the meetings are on. Happens all over the country. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Glitter Girl turned in a swift effort in winning at Charles Town and appears suited by conditions in this field. Ginsberg was a winner at the other town and is dangerous. Mr. Jim had poor racing luck in recent starts and is a threat.

Second race—Small Devil has the speed to open a lead on this kind, and although the route may be too long I'm going to string along. Cream Cheese is dangerous off Charles Town form. Gemwick is better than that last.

Third race—Maryiyah turned in an excellent effort at the other town and can be depended upon to turn in a good performance with these. Navigation was something of a champion in West Virginia, but had Palumbo up. Hacker rode this one like a Keystone cop. High Rose gets in with a feather.

Fifth race—Shanteb scored at a shorter route at the other town and promises to do a lot of running here. Needs only the right ride. Way Out improved when the blinkers went on. Frederick is a fairly fit veteran.

Sixth race—Consistent has the speed to make the most of the No. 1 post position and I'm going to string along. The 109-pound assignment is right. Din is dangerous in this company. Miss Ksar has oodles of speed but may not make the turns.

Seventh race—Petee Lad seems best of the eligibles for this event. He is in good form and deserves the call. Stepping In showed to advantage at the other course and is a threat. Last Scamp could surprise.

Best bet—Bellthorn.

Willie O'Steen Upset by Anne Harrison in D. C. Women's Tennis

Defending Champion Outclassed

Local Hopes Dimmed As Baltimore Ace Gains Semifinals Of D. C. Net Tourney

By Jack Munhall

Washington's hopes of keeping the District Women's Open tennis title here suffered a severe jolt yesterday when defending Champion Willie O'Steen Herbert was victimized by Baltimore's unseeded Anne Harrison in the quarter final round of play at Columbia Country Club.

Looming ever more formidable Miss Harrison, recovered from an appendectomy which kept her on the sidelines most of last season, romped over the top-seeded Mrs. Herbert, 6—3, 6—1, in a slam-bang, well-played match. Herself a hitter with the power of the average male netman, Mrs. Herbert still was unable to match the savage drives of her foe, who also displayed a well-rounded game which established her an even-money bet to win the tournament.

No Other Upsets

With the exception of Mrs. Herbert's upset, marking the second time within two weeks that she has disappointed a tournament rankings committee, competition uncovered no other surprises.

Third-seeded Margo Lee, of Washington, who upset Mrs. Herbert for the City of Washington title last month, matched Miss Harrison's impressive victory by blasting Frances Rowan to 6—0, 6—4 defeat, while second-seeded Anne Dayette, of Baltimore, beat Frances Carter, 6—3, 6—3, and fourth-ranked Charlotte Decker struggled for a 6—4, 6—2 conquest of Eleanor Voith. These were all second-round matches.

Miss Harrison therefore is the first semifinalist and will idle today while awaiting the outcome of a match that will decide her next opponent and very probably the final result of the tournament. For Miss Harrison next will meet the winner of today's 2:30 o'clock quarter-finals engagement between Miss Lee and Elizabeth Sowers.

Should the first-named player win, as expected, the stage will be set for Lee-Harrison match which, besides being a topnotch attraction, should provide the successor to Mrs. Herbert. Neither Miss Dayette nor Miss Decker, who battle underdog rivals today for the other semifinal berths, can be conceded more than a slight chance to beat the Lee-Harrison winner.

Olmstead Dangerous

Miss Dayette's foe today at 4 o'clock will be Marian Prichard, who advanced yesterday by defeating Eleanor Fishburne, 6—3, 6—1, while Miss Decker will battle at 4:30 with Cynthia Olmstead, unseeded but dangerous Annapolis entry, who reached the quarter-finals Monday with a victory over Mrs. Graham. Little is known of Miss Olmstead's ability other than she was impressive in conquering Mrs. Graham, 3—6, 6—3, 7—5.

Doubles will start today with a strong field of eleven teams contending. Top-seeded are City of Washington champions Mrs. Herbert and Miss Lee, with local public parks titleholders Miss Decker and Marian Cunningham ranked second.

RESULTS

Quarter-final Round—Anne Harrison defeated Willie O'Steen Herbert, 6—3, 6—1.

Second Round—Elizabeth Sowers defeated Joan Bransford, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3; Anne Dayette defeated Frances Carter, 6—3, 6—3; Marian Prichard defeated Elinor Fishburne, 6—3, 6—1; Charlotte Decker defeated Eleanor Voith, 6—4, 6—2; Margo Lee defeated Frances Rowan, 6—0, 6—4.

Second Round—Mrs. James Karrick defeated Hazel Bishopp, 7—5, 6—4; Mrs. Dorette Miller defeated Lisa Bloede, 6—2, 7—5; Elinor Pinckel defeated Barbara Conard, 6—1, 6—2.

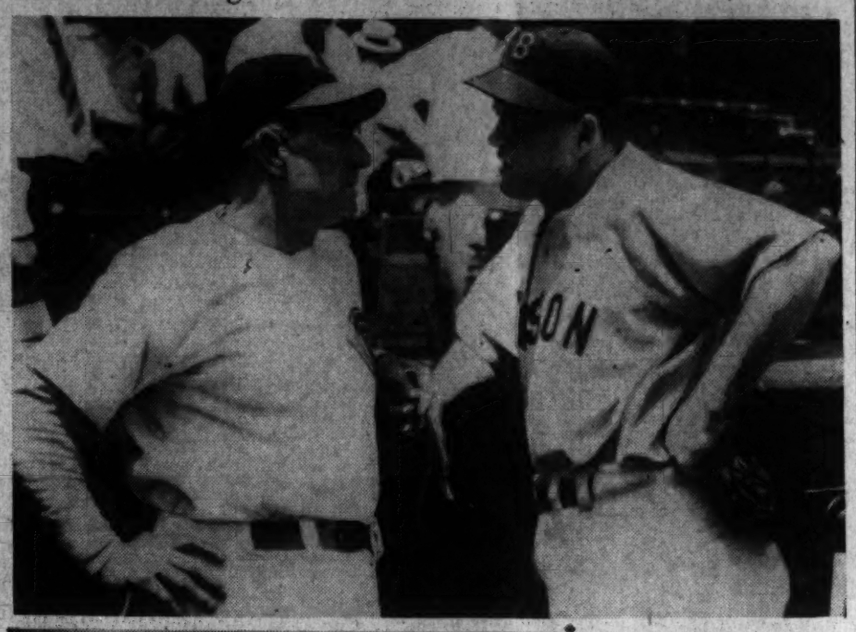
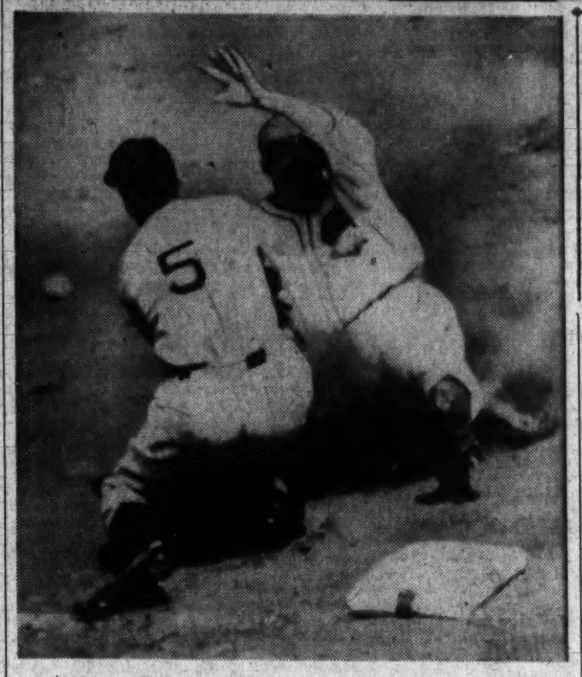
Rival Managers Glare . . . Travis Gets Ball Too Late





Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

Phillies, and Manager-Shortstop Leo Durocher, of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Centerfielder Terry Moore, of the hometown Cardinals, was the only National Leaguer to play the entire game, while Joe DiMaggio, of the Yankees, and Jimmie Foxx, of the Boston Red Sox, went the route for the American League.

So perfect was the National League pitching that only five balls, besides the three allowed, went out of the infield. No more than one American Leaguer was ever on base in an inning and a fast double play wiped out Newsom when he led off with a single in the sixth.

Cronin used only three pitchers and his choice of Ruffing, with a record of seven and six this season, as his starting hurler, proved fully as bad strategy as fans had predicted.

The Yankee veteran was cuffed for five hits in the three innings he worked. Newsom gave up one during his tour of duty and Feller, hero of the American League triumph last year, the other.

Among the hurlers overlooked were Lefty Al Milnar, of the Indians, who hadn't worked since July 4 and had won 11 games against 3 losses.

threw him out. Gordon struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING

AMERICAN—McKenzie sent in six new players—McCormick at first, Coscarart at second, Miller at short, May at third, Joe Moore in leftfield and Ott in rightfield. Newsom singled into right field, the second American League hit. Travis grounded into a fast double play, Coscarart to Miller to McCormick. Williams rapped a grounder to Coscarart and was thrown out. No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

NATIONAL—Cronin inserted three new players—Keltner going to third base, Greenberg to left field and Finney to right. McCormick fouled to Keltner. Phelps waited out a base on balls. Joe Moore also fouled to Keltner. May worked the count to three and two and then flied to DiMaggio. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

SEVENTH INNING

AMERICAN—Lefty Larry French and Harry Danning took over the National League battery duties. Danning camped under Greenberg's high foul. DiMaggio popped to Miller. Foxx drove Terry Moore far back in center for a fly. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

NATIONAL—Feller, hero of the American League All-Star victory last year, went to the mound and Hemsley donned the catcher's mask. Terry Moore walked. French sacrificed, Foxx to Gordon, who covered first. Miller struck out. Coscarart took a third strike. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

EIGHTH INNING

AMERICAN—Appling singled to right. Hemsley fouled to Danning. Mack batted for Gordon and fanned. So did Feller. No runs, one hit, one left.

NATIONAL — Boudreau now playing short and Mack second for the Americans. Ott walked. McCormick sacrificed, Keltner to Foxx. Danning singled to right, scoring Ott, and when Finney threw to the plate Hemsley let the ball go through him for an error, Danning took second. Joe Moore went out, Foxx to Feller, who covered first, as Danning made third. May was hit by pitched ball. T. Moore fanned. One run.

NINTH INNING

AMERICAN—Hubbell now pitching for National League. Keltner fanned. Finney walked. Greenberg fouled to Danning. Di Maggio flied to J. Moore. No runs.

followed by William Harridge, president of the American League, who warmly congratulated the deacon.

No National League player was happier than Paul Derringer, who pitched the first two innings, striking out three and allowing only one hit, Luke Appling's double, which banged into the rightfield wall in the second inning.

Looked Silly to Paul

"Those guys were supposed to have a lot of power," Derringer said, "but they looked powerless today, in fact, if you're asking me, they looked kind of silly at bat. They only got three hits in the whole game."

"You tell 'em, Paul," screamed Herman.

West, whose 360-foot home run in the rightfield pavilion scored the first three runs, didn't know what kind of a pitch he had hit.

"I just shut my eyes and swung," he said.

West bruised his left hip, crashing into the wall after Appling's two-bagger, and was removed from the game, Billy Nicholson, of the Chicago Cubs, replacing him. The injury, while painful, will not keep him out of the Boston Bees line-up when play is resumed in the National League Thursday.

Losers' Quarters Quiet

Carl Hubbell, the New York Giants' veteran left-hander and the only player in today's contest who participated in the first all-star game in Chicago in 1933, was joyous over the victory. He pitched to four men in the ninth inning, the only inning he worked. He walked one batter, Lou Finney, of the Boston Red Sox, and forced Di Maggio to fly out to end the game.

In contrast with the enthusiasm in the National League dressing room, the American League's quarters were quiet and business-like.

Red Ruffing, the New York Yankees' big right-hander who started and was found for three runs in the first inning before he settled down, was squatted on the trainer's table, waiting for a rub-down.

"They just hit 'em safe," the pitcher said with philosophic calm, "some days they hit the same balls on the ground or pop 'em up."

Two Words Tell Tale

Joe Cronin, manager of the defeated Americans, said two words told the whole story: "No hits."

"They pitched well, those fellows," he went on. "They looked very good. You must know they were good, if we couldn't hit them."

The only happy man in the American League's dressing room was Louis Norman (Buck or Bobo) Newsom, the Detroit pitched who had threatened to stay away from the game unless he was named as the starting pitcher. He wasn't, but he showed up anyway, and did the best job of the American League hurlers, shutting out the opposition with one hit for three innings, and, on top of that Newsom banked out a single, one of the A. L.'s three hits.

Feller, who burned the ball across the last three innings and yielded the National League's last run, complained that he was "wilder than a man in a jungle."

"I had a lot of stuff but I had trouble putting it over."

Bill Ackerman

On Fishing

After the lull in the striper fishing off Tall Timbers for ten days, we believe it is possible to report it on the upgrade again, for U. E. Blair averaged 20 during three days, running from 3 to 8 pounds. Other boats from Piney Point to River Springs are reporting like catches.

ACKERMAN

Furthermore, there is every indication the time for floatlining with soft crabs is ripe again, and even as you read this, it is probable there will be later reports from Capt. Bill Goldsborough telling us of real tackle-busters being boated.

Bill is to be reached only through Charles Bailey's Store, Great Mills 29 F 3 and, at the same time you make your reservation it is very advisable to contract for your soft crabs. Down there, when obtainable, the price is still from 75 cents to $1 a dozen. Locally, they are scarce at $2 and better. Eight to 12 dozen are normally required for the average party for fishing a tide. At that difference it is well worth getting them there.

At Solomons Island the boats are having more than ordinarily good going trolling in the school, that since 1935, have been foraging the waters off Cedar Point Light. They're growing up, too, for in 1938 the average size was less than 5 pounds for the largest of the school. Now it is somewhere around 7.

Capt. Rhodie Langley has had in a single catch as many as 41, weighing from 2 to 7 pounds, and in addition has been making nice catches floatlining off Point Patience. Soft crabs in this area are not so hard to get and run from $1 to $1.50 a dozen.

The angling feats of the Farringtons are always worth noting, for wherever they fish, something is bound to happen. That was particularly so during the past two weeks, for while most charter boats are ironing their broadbill swordfish in this unprecedented run, they plug along in friendly competition with each other, and catch their fish with rod and reel. Just what all the others would be doing if they were real anglers and sportsmen.

There is real glory in taking these great fish in such a manner, while harpooning them is just selling your heritage—so much more meat, and money for the captain.

Kip caught his first broadbill of the season, weighing 196 pounds, two weeks back, while Mrs. Farrington was flyfishing in Nova Scotia. His catch was more incentive than she needed to follow him to Montauk, where, on her first day out, she was successful in presenting her squid bait to a 298-pounder. In boating this fish she gained the honor of being the second woman to take a broadbill swordfish in both Atlantic and Pacific waters.

Helen Lerner, with the American Museum Expedition in Chile, was the first, and she accomplished the feat just a few weeks ago. Her first fish was caught in the Atlantic, while Mrs. Farrington's was just the reverse.

As if to prove the fact that the sports angler has as much chance to bring in a broadbill on rod and reel, just compare the percentage of the Farrington's catch with those of the sportsmen (?) who have been using the iron. Out of four strikes, they have landed three, making their standing .750.

Pee Wees Break Even

The Bowie Pee Wees split a doubleheader with Glen Dale winning the opening game, 12-to-8, and dropping the nightcap, 10-to-7. Charley Reed was the winning pitcher for the home team, and Bowie's winner was Vernon Mullikin.

Helen Harrison Leads In D. C. Girls' Tennis

Baltimore Player Leads Four Others Into Quarterfinals; Shirley Coombs, La Jeanne Echols Bow in 2d Round of Tournament

Just as Baltimore's Anne Harrison has developed into a distinct outsider threat to capture the D. C. Women's Open tennis title, another Monumental City player of the same last name but of no relation, looms as the one to beat for the D. C. Girls' Open Championship at Columbia.

Miss Harrison, a finalist to Isabel Harvey in the City of Baltimore Girls' Championships, which ended Monday, led four other players, one seeded, into the quarter-final round by scoring an impressive double victory. Top seeded Miss Harvey, incidentally, gained the second round by defeating Adele Pough, 6—0, 6—2.

Jane Gott Loses

Miss Harrison, No. 1 ranking girl player of the Middle Atlantic section last year, defeated Mary Jane Gott, 6—3, 6—0, in the first round, and then polished off Ruth Johnson, strong Edgemoor Club representative, 6—1, 6—3.

Two other Baltimore entries, third-seeded Betty Simpson and unranked Janice Goldberg, as well as Lusica Shamon, of the District, gained the round of eight as a pair of formidable District contenders were eliminated in the second round.

Shirley Coombs Bows

Shirley Coombs, finalist to Betty Jacob in last year's District girls' tournament which was closed, succumbed to Miss Shamon, 6—0, 6—1, while La Jeanne Echols, Baltimore City's Girls' Open titleholder from Silver Spring, fell victim of Miss Goldberg, 6—3, 6—3.

Betty Jacob, winner of the 1939 tournament but unranked because of her mediocre showing to date this season, rolled along the comeback trail and gained the second round by beating Jean Chatterling, 6—0, 6—1.

The quarter-final single bracket will be filled today as doubles competition begins with the large number of 15 teams entered.

Don McNeill Paces Advance In Net Meet

Top-Seeded Player Defeats Miamian; Guernsey Is Victor

By the Associated Press

New York, July 9.—Don McNeill, seeded first in the New York State clay court tennis championships, and Vincent Paul, who has been wrecking the lower part, advanced to the quarter-final round today. McNeill, the national clay court titlist, defeated George Pero, of Miami, 7—5, 6—4, while Paul ousted George Lyttleton Rogers, of Dublin, 3—6, 8—6, 6—1.

Defending Champion Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., rated third in the draw, went into the fourth round by downing Gus Ganzenmuller, of New York, 6—0, 6—2. He was joined by Bobby Harman, of Oakland, Calif., seeded fourth, who ousted Nat Goldstein, of Brooklyn, 6—4, 6—3.

Joe Fishbach, of New York; Billie Umstaedter, of Milburn, N. J., and Bill Canning, Berkeley, Calif., also reached the fourth round. Fishbach defeated Louis Brownstein, of San Diego, Calif., 6—3, 7—5; Canning turned back Don Hawley, of Orange, N. J., 6—0, 6—1.

Furr Cheered By Reports On Cocoa Kid

The showing Cocoa Kid made in defeating Jimmy Leto Monday in Baltimore yesterday enheartened Phil Furr, training at Mme. Beys' camp in Summit, N. J., for his 10-round battle with the Puerto Rican Monday night at Griffith Stadium.

The Kid looked none too impressive and was a sucker for a right-hand punch and body blows, Frankie Doyle, a scout from Summit, is said to have reported to Fearless Phil at Mme. Beys.

At that, Furr does shape up as a better bet against Cocoa than did Wild Bill McDowell, who loafed for nine rounds and then almost knocked out the Puerto Rican in the tenth with a savage overhand right attack to the head and body that had Cocoa reeling and in serious trouble.

Phil, in losing to McDowell, did floor the Texan and looked more impressive in defeat than did Cocoa in beating Wild Bill. Result of reports from Baltimore yesterday led Furr into increased wor with his right-hand head and body weapon.

Mindful of Cocoa Kid's 17 straight victories this year, local "prognosticators" are predicting odds of from 9-5 to 6-5 on Cocoa, but Furr is not to be tossed off lightly—that is, by anyone but the Cocoa Kid.

Turner Toys With Dempsey Fight Idea

Promoter Joe Turner yesterday began toying with the idea of trying to persuade Jack Dempsey to come to Washington to box one of the local performing groan artists this summer—namely, the Golden Terror, who appears on tomorrow night's card at Griffith Stadium.

The Terror, or Bob Weatherly, meets Joe Dusek, baby member of the "riot squad" clan, in one of four "headliners" for the benefit of the children's toy fund and yesterday "demanded" a match with Dempsey.

As the story goes, The Terror dashed into Joe's office puffing noisily and shouted, "I want Dempsey"—just like that. With a visible start—visibility 15 feet—Turner arose to his feet and spoke in a fatherly tone to The Terror.

Weatherly, however, insisted he has a grudge against Dempsey which he had just thought of and wanted it settled, preferably before a house of $5 a head. The idea listened well, so Joe's now thinking of dickering with Dempsey over the details.

Joe says he'll cull the line-up of tomorrow's business for a possible opponent for the Manassa Mauler—a line-up which will see Rudy the serious Dusek, meet Reb Russell; Ernie, the fun loving Dusek, take on Lou Plummer, and Emil, the left-over Dusek, swap snarls with Paul Jones. An added detraction pits Thor Johanson against Ed Newman.

$225,000,000 In Gold Arrives Over Week-end

Two British Ships Carry $124,200,000; Rest from Canada

By the Associated Press

New York, July 9.—Gold valued at nearly a quarter of a billion dollars was received here over the week-end, it became known today.

The British steamship Samaria arrived from Liverpool with 1,200 boxes of gold valued at about $67,000,000, the Scythia brought 1,000 boxes worth approximately $57,000,000, and an estimated $100,000,000 worth, partly from Canada, came to the Federal Reserve Bank.

Some $53,000,000 in gold bars and $1,250,000 in gold coin was consigned to the Federal Reserve Bank and the remainder to various commercial banks.

The shipments were the largest concentration of gold imports since approimately $300,000,000 came in from Canada several weeks ago.

Week's Imports Lower

At Washington, meanwhile, it was reported that gold imports slumped to $86,56,98 in the week ended July 3.

The Commerce Department, making this report today, said the figure fell far below the $18,236,631 mark of the preceding week because of the absence of shipments such as the $241,000,000 of gold brought from France by the United States cruiser Vincennes the week before.

Last week, gold from France amounted only to $27,303.

Major shipments of the week were $44,045,079 from the United Kingdom, $30,161,040 from Canada, $2,363,900 from Sweden, $3,165,264 from Yugoslavia, $3,527,727 from South Africa and $1,154,860 from Hongkong.

Silver Imports Jump

Silver imports nearly doubled during the week, to $2,412,549, primarily because of a $1,98,775 shipment labeled from Burma. This shipment was assumed to be Chinese, because Burma is the principal connection between the besieged Chinese government in interior China and the outside world. If so, it was the first large silver shipment from China in many months.

Most of the incoming gold apparently was deposited in the earmarked accounts in the Federal Reserve System of foreign governments and central banks. The total of earmarked gold increased $71,197,590 to a total of $1,654,120,958.

Many Pittsburgh Firms Bar Visitors As Precaution

Pittsburgh, July 9 (AP).—Pittsburgh's strategic industrial plants, a major force in the Nation's race to rearm, are being gradually closed to visitors as a defense precaution, it was learned today.

Most major steel companies have barred visitors altogether, both as a protection against possible sabotage and to eliminate all possible distractions at a time when production is mounting week by week and an influx of defense orders is anticipated.

"This has been a progressive development of the last month. I think you'll find it is general, in our industry at least, said a spokesman for the steel industry.

He added that while there was now no "actual fear" of sabotage, "we can't afford to take chances."

Orders booked for air conditioning systems and accessory equipment during the first five months of this year were valued at $9,319,216, compared with $9,010,541 during the comparable months of 1939, the Department of Commerce reported.

Value of orders booked during May was $2,675,286 against $2,425,139 in April and $2,733,106 in May last year.

D. C. Bank Loans in Year Reported at $176,825,303

Eighty-one per cent of the commercial banks in the District of Columbia made more than 163,000 loans totaling more than $176,000,000 to business firms and individuals during 1939, according to the second semi-annual survey of bank lending activity of the American Bankers Association.

(A Washington Post survey, published Sunday, showed that 17 commercial banks in the District had loans totaling $95,127,174 as of June 29. This was $3,617,589 more than the total as of March 26.)

The A. B. A. survey, which was participated in by 18 of the 22 commercial banks here showed a definite expansion of bank credit in the field of new loans. The number of new loans made between July 31 and December 31 was 1,665 greater or 5 per cent greater, and the dollar volume of new loans made during this period was $9,391,372 or 25 per cent greater than reported by an equivalent number of banks for the previous six months.

Reports Are Detailed

73,929	new loans totaling	$84,724,880
87,412	renewals of loans totaling	81,395,267
1,722	mortgage loans totaling	10,705,156
163,063		$176,825,303

The survey reveals that District business firms are using less than half of the "open lines of credit" maintained for their use on the books of the banks. Ten banks in the District reported that they carried on their books during the second half of the year $19,544,500 in "open lines of credit" consisting of specific amounts of credit offered to and kept available for established borrowers for use as needed by them. Of this amount $8,071,436 or 41.3 per cent was actually used.

The average number of new loans made per bank was 4,107 and the average new loans was $1,146.

The average number of renewals per bank was 4,856 and the average renewal was $931.

The average number of mortgage loans per bank was 96 and the average mortgage was for $6,217.

The District of Columbia survey was part of a national bank lending activity survey made by the American Bankers Association.

For the country as a whole 6,333 or 44 per cent of the commercial banks reported that they made 24,998,000 credit extensions totaling $39,810,810,000 during the year. These consisted of the following:

12,680,000	new loans totaling	$23,120,000,000
12,033,000	renewals of loans totaling	15,791,000,000
275,000	new mortgage loans totaling	899,810,000
24,998,000		$39,810,810,000

The number of new loans increased 10 per cent and the dollar volume increased 20 per cent.

Quotas Removed, Capacity Output Of Tin Forecast

London, July 9 (AP).—Tin producers will work "to the utmost limit of their capacity" as a result of the larger shipments permitted to tin mining companies, but "there is no possibility of a surplus being produced," the Tin Producers Association said today.

The International Tin Committee yesterday raised export quotas to 130 per cent of an arbitrarily fixed norm for the next year, largely in order to satisfy United States plans for building reserve stocks of strategic war materials, including 75,000 tons of tin.

Maximum world output, the association estimated, will be 235,000 tons and total world demand around 245,000 tons in the next 12 months.

The United States Government will take 75,000 tons in this period in addition to "normal consumptive requirements," which will probably total 85,000 tons yearly because of steadily increaisng industrial demnad. With the rest of the world consuming a similar amount, world consumption in the next year should be around 170,000 tons.

"There is barely enough tin to supply all the world's requirements and there is thus a virtual certainty that 'free' stocks—stocks other than those held or to be acquired as emergency reserves by the United States and other governments—will decline," the Tin Association said.

United Corp. Earns $2,588,951 in Period

June Exports Of Slab Zinc Are Reduced

Down to 2,342 Tons After Reaching 3,908 In Previous Month

New York, July 9 (AP).—June export shipments of all grades of slab zinc declined to 2,342 tons after reaching 3,908 tons, highest since 1928, in May, the American Zinc Institute said today.

From 1935 to March this year only 79 tons were shipped.

Total foreign and domestic shipments in June decreased to 53,518 tons from 59,177 in May. This compared with 37,284 tons in June last year.

Production slackened to 49,155 tons from 52,979 in May, but was far ahead of 39,450 produced a year ago.

Stocks on hand at the end of June stood at 70,673 tons, against 75,036 a month earlier and 135,241 at the end of June, 1939, which were the largest supplies held at any time from 1930 to the present.

Motion Picture Trade Tightens Financial Belt

Audience Gain Sought To Counteract Foreign Loss, Says Official

By the Associated Press

New York, July 9.—A 10 to 15 per cent increase in American motion picture audiences will overcome war-lost foreign outlets, Barney Balaban, president of Paramount Pictures, Inc., said today.

To achieve this, said Balaban, the industry has been forced to undergo a general tightening of its financial belt and to concentrate on a campaign to stimulate increased domestic box office appeal.

Possibility of an enlarged South American market holds little if any financial promise, Balaban added.

Elimination of the "class B" or cheaply produced picture by Paramount in its new schedule, he forecast, will mean loss of employment, with studio stock companies due to be cut in half. It also means, he said, that promising players continued in stock will be assured greater opportunities.

Retail Advertising Shows Slight Gain

Retail advertising in newspapers in 80 major cities for the week ended June 29 totaled 17,467,853 lines compared with 17,367,887 lines in the same week last year. For the first half year the same newspapers carried 494,639,470 lines of retail advertising compared with 487,070,282 lines a year ago, an increase of 1.6 per cent, according to Advertising Age.

Stock Traders Go Through the Motions But Prices Show Little Change; Loft Active

New York, July 9.—The stock market again went through trading motions today but board room crowds were far more interested in the all-star baseball game, the war news and political maneuvers in domestic quarters than in such slight shifts as occurred in quotations.

The dullness in equities was not extended to commodity sections, however, wheat and cotton slumping rather sharply.

Slightly better prices in high priced manufacturing shares, in rail equipment, food and copper sections, were about offset by fractional declines in stores, steels, oil and utilities. The composite for the 100 shares was up 0.02 point. Turnover on the big board totaled 303,530 shares.

Loft was the most active stock of the day, although transactions in the issue failed to reach 10,000 shares. Electric Power and Light $7 preferred was busily traded at an advance of 21½. Consolidated Edison and Commonwealth Edison were active at slightly lower prices, while American Power & Light gained a fraction. In the Steels, United States and Republic were off ⅛ each. Packard, which has been in the limelight for some days because of the company's reported readiness to manufacture large numbers of airplane motors for the United States and British governments, dropped ⅜ and closed at 3½. International Nickel of Canada was among metal stocks to improve.

Jones Laughlin preferred at 71 was up 3½ and Brooklyn Manhattan Transit preferred sold at 10½, a new high. Its low of the year was 49. Postal Telegraph preferred, recently listed, made a new low at 7, off ⅜, and then snapped back for a fractional rise. Mead Corporation B preferred with warrants shot up 7 points on small sales. International Business Machines rose 5 and other wide gainers were Northern Central Railway, Tide Water Associated Oil preferred, Louisville & Nashville and A. M. Byers.

Price movements in United States Treasury issues today fell under the influence of the expected announcement of new Government financing with the market attempting to gauge the effects of such an offering.

Foreign bonds attracted a little more attention than on Monday with several groups showing decided strength. Among the best were Canadian rail issues, in which the best gains exceed 4 points. Italian bonds also displayed gains ranging to apoint or more.

The average of industrials was down 0.02 point.

U. S. to Borrow 650 Million at 2¼% Interest

$600,000,000 Worth To Go to Public, Says Morgenthau

Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday the Treasury would borrow $650,000,000 Thursday through the sale of 2¼ per cent bonds.

Maturity dates and other details will be disclosed Thursday.

The Secretary said $600,000,000 of the new bonds would be sold to the public and $50,000,000 worth to Government investment accounts.

The borrowing will be the first by the Treasury to raise cash—other than refunding operations—since December 8, when $571,000,000 was borrowed by the sale of 2 per cent 9 to 11 year bonds.

The new borrowing will boost the Federal debt to a new high of approximately $43,700,000,000, or within $1,300,000,000 of the borrowing power available for nonmilitary expenses, Congress, however, recently voted authority to borrow $4,000,000,000 on special obligations to finance national defense.

Commodities Slant Lower, Cotton in Van

Wheat Drops 5/8 to 1; Cotton Off 35 Cents To $1.50 a Bale

By the Associated Press

Wheat and cotton slanted downward but other staples in major futures markets muddled along indecisively.

A early decline in cotton at New York gained momentum near the finish and the final range was off 35 cents to $1.50 a bale. Selling centered in July.

Chicago wheat moved over a 1½-cent range but finished at the day's low, or down ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel. Hedging pressure nipped sporadic rallying attempts. Corn was ⅛ off to ⅜ up.

Straits tin lost as much as ⅝ of a cent a pound despite an authoritative forecast demand would outstrip supplies over the next year.

Other staples marked down at New York included silk, domestic sugar, cottonseed oil and Santos coffee. Copper, world sugar and wool tops improved. Irregular were hides, rubber, and cocoa.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, declined to 71.63 from 71.87 Monday.

Wheat Closes Lower

Chicago, July 9 (AP).—Wheat prices started out bravely enough and extended gains to about a cent today before hedging pressure and speculative selling routed the upturn and final quotations were as much as a cent lower than Monday's final figures.

Reports of serious lack of moisture in the domestic northwest and smut and black stem rust in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio imparted an early upward trend to the market. Traders also looked forward with considerable interest to the Government's crop report on spring wheat due tomorrow.

Wheat prices were erratic, fluctuating over a range of 1½ cents for the session and closing ⅝-1 cent lower than yesterday's final quotations, July, 74⅞; September, 75⅜-¼. The September delivery dropped from 77 to 75¼, the lowest in a week. Final quotations were virtually at the lowest for the sesssion.

Corn ended the day unchanged to ⅛ cent lower on the July delivery to ¼-⅜ higher on the later contracts, after yielding fractions early in the session. Oats and rye fluctuated within a narrow range, closing ⅛-¼ cent lower in light trade. Cash interests were moderate buyers but both grains reflected the action of wheat and the market was small. Soybeans also lost minor fractions.

July Cotton Leads Drop

New York, July 9 (AP).—New liquidation hit the already battered July cotton delivery a stiff blow today and weakness spread to the balance of the list. Final prices were down 7 to 3 points with the spot month showing the outside loss.

Old July took the severest drubbing after issuance of 10 transferrable notices and an increase of more than 1,500 bales in stocks certificated for delivery against futures contracts.

Later deliveries held relatively steady until near the close when spot house and speculative selling laid open small demand.

SEC Cuts 'Red Tape' In Utility Hearings

Approves Shortening of 20-Day Waiting Period for Registrations by Established Firms; 70% of Legal Difficulties to Be Eliminated

Two concessions which business has sought for a long time were granted yesterday by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The commission approved a rule to eliminate what its announcement termed "red tape" in the utility holding company rules, and at the same time approved in principle an amendment to the Securities Act which would change the 20-day waiting period for regulated securities.

With only Commissioner Robert E. Healy dissenting—and his dissent confined to a part of the decision—the SEC approved new rules expected to eliminate about 70 per cent of hearings formerly required under the Utility Holding Company Act.

Result of Conference

Product of a conference, held June 27, with industry representatives, the new rules were expected to be greeted enthusiastically by the utilities whose representatives, including Wendell L. Willkie, have often complained of excessive Government formalities.

The new utilities rules cutting down hearings apply to virtually all applications and declarations involving financial transactions subject to the Commission's jurisdiction, with the exception of proceedings on exemptions, integrations and reorganizations and service companies.

Under the new dispensation these declarations or applications would become effective or be granted 30 days after filing, and even earlier if the SEC so rules. Amendments would become effective in fifteen days, or earlier by SEC permission.

A conference yesterday between the SEC and representatives of the National Association of Securities Dealers and the Investment Bankers Association resulted in agreement in principle on an amendment to the Securities Act of 1933.

Promising that the amendment would be offered to Congress as soon as possible, the SEC agreed that the 20-day wait now required between filing of a registration statement and permission to sell a security should be changed in the favor of established firms.

Creates Market Problem

Well-known companies, whose financial condition is familiar to the SEC, have complained that the 20-day waiting period makes it difficult for them to sell new securities issues at the most desirable time in relation to market conditions.

In these times, the argument of the issuers runs, 20 days is a long time, during which market conditions can be radically changed by events here and abroad.

Those who attended yesterday's conference were:

Francis A. Bonner, chairman, and Wallace H. Fulton, executive director of the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc.; Emmett F. Connely, president, and John K. Starkweather, chairman of the Federal Legislation Committee; Arthur H. Dean, counsel, and R. McLean Stewart, of the Investment Bankers Association of America.

Also, Chairman Jerome N. Frank and Commissioners Healy, Edward C. Eicher and Sumner T. Pike; Chester T. Lane, general counsel; Baldwin B. Bane, director of the registration division; Ganson Purcell, director of the trading and exchange division, and Edwin A. Sheridan, executive assistant to the chairman.

Babson Declared in Error On 'Gadgets or Guns' Plea

By Merrlye Stanley Rukeyser,
Economic Commentator.

NEW DEAL SPENDERS charged that Roger W. Babson, business forecaster and writer for The Washington Post, was confused in arguing that Americans must choose between "gadgets or guns."

By gadgets, or super-luxuries, Mr. Babson explained that he meant "hour and wage benefits, old-age pensions, farm bounties, indiscriminate relief and other saps and paps."

A high placed Administration official here, in analyzing the Babson plea, said to me: "Babson makes the error of the British and French, and thinks in terms of a finance economy, instead of in modern terms of an engineering economy, such as Germany has developed.

"I agree that armament should come first, and that anything that interferes with defense must give way. This, however, has no bearing on scrapping old-age benefits, farm parity payments, etc., but relates to priorities in the use of men and materials.

"We can build the needed armament with idle manpower and idle machinery. If we superimpose armament buying in the present program, we shall feel its full effect in stimulating business and employment in a year. However, if we follow the Babson formula and substitute defense expenditures for relief and social outlays, then one will merely offset the other, and there will be no net gain in our economy.

"In order to keep up morale, we should abstain from lengthening hours and reducing premiums, such as time and a half for overtime, unless we simultaneously restrict business profits on war orders.

"Our studies indicate that fears of bottle necks are exaggerated. It is our belief that with proper economic balance, we have the national capacity to step up the national income to $105,000,000,000 in terms of goods and services at the prevailing price level."

THIS CLEAVAGE of views is here set forth because it is likely to be increasingly debated in the coming months.

It is my own opinion that unless there is a rise in individual productivity and total national output of goods and services a big armament program is certain to reduce popular living standards.

Accordingly, it is desirable to leave no stone unturned which will help to improve industrial efficiency.

Sabotage, unthinking arbitrary labor rules, class warfare and business baiting all run counter to the growing need for heightened productivity in the United States.

If intergroup harmony is achieved, then the economy will be able to support social insurance.

In order to make the economy function healthily, it is of supreme importance to keep agriculture in balanced income relationship with industry, and to relieve industry of the pressure of incessant political experimentation.

APROPOS of third term prospects, an important official in Mr. Roosevelt's official family said that at present the President is the choice of a majority of voters. However, he added, Mr. Roosevelt would be considered unavailable by the voters if before November the war should abruptly end with a totalitarian victory.

Dr. Hollander Is Dead at 69 In Baltimore

Hopkins Economist Famed for Studies in Federal Finance

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, July 9.—Dr. Jacob H. Hollander, 69, Johns Hopkins University political economist, widely known for his studies of Government finance and tax matters, died today at his home after an illness of four months.

The Johns Hopkins professor, a native of Baltimore, fulfilled special missions under Presidents McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt, in addition to serving on many State commissions and training men who entered the faculties of other colleges.

Under President McKinley he was treasurer of Puerto Rico and revised the tax laws there, organized the treasury department and introduced the island's present revenue system.

He was named special commissioner by President Theodore Roosevelt to investigate the public debt of Santo Domingo and was largely instrumental in readjusting its debt.

Dr. Hollander is survived by a son, Dr. David Hutzler Hollander, and two daughters, Mrs. Siegfried Weisberger and Miss Bertha Hutzler Hollander.

Redeemable at the option of The Corporation, as a whole, or in part by lot, at any time, upon at least thirty days' published notice, at the following redemption prices: to and including May 15, 1944 at 106%; thereafter to and including May 15, 1948 at 105%; thereafter to and including May 15, 1952 at 104%; thereafter to and including May 15, 1956 at 103%; thereafter to and including May 15, 1960 at 102%; thereafter to and including May 15, 1963 at 101%; thereafter to and including May 15, 1964 at 100½%; thereafter and before maturity at 100%; in each case with interest accrued to the date of redemption.

The following is a brief outline of certain information contained in the offering prospectus and is subject to the more detailed statements in such prospectus and in the registration statement, which also include important information not outlined or indicated herein and which are hereby incorporated by reference. The offering prospectus, which must be furnished to each purchaser, should be read prior to any purchase of these Debentures.

THE CORPORATION: The Texas Corporation was organized on August 26, 1926, under the laws of Delaware and acquired by exchange of shares substantially all of the outstanding stock of The Texas Company, organized in 1902. The Corporation is engaged, and intends to continue to be engaged, in holding securities of subsidiary and other companies engaged for the most part in one or more phases of the petroleum industry, or in businesses related thereto.

The business of The Corporation's subsidiaries consists primarily of the production, purchase, transportation, refining and marketing of crude oil and products thereof. Substantially all of the producing, refining, and pipe line operations of The Corporation's subsidiaries are carried on within the United States. Gasoline and other refined petroleum products manufactured by subsidiaries are sold in every state of the United States and in a number of foreign countries. Properties of subsidiaries include productive and undeveloped oil and gas acreage, crude oil pipe lines, refineries, ships, terminals, and certain marketing facilities.

As carried in the consolidated balance sheet of The Corporation and its subsidiaries at December 31, 1939: approximately 85% of the consolidated net current assets were in the United States, approximately 8% in European countries, and approximately 7% in other foreign countries; approximately 91% of property, plant and equipment (less reserves), were in the United States, approximately 5% in European countries, and approximately 4% in other foreign countries.

The Corporation's interests in non-subsidiary companies include substantial investments in companies which are exploring for, or producing, transporting, refining, or selling, crude oil, or marketing refined products. Of the net amount of investments in and amounts owing from such companies, as carried in the above mentioned consolidated balance sheet, approximately 29% represented investments in and amounts owing from companies operating in the United States, approximately 24% in and from companies operating principally in South American countries and Canada, and approximately 47% in and from companies operating in Far Eastern and other non-European countries.

Recent war developments have caused a stoppage of shipments by domestic subsidiaries to most European countries. Incomplete reports so far received indicate that European subsidiaries are continuing their sales of stocks on hand and that in the aggregate their property losses have not been material. The transfer of funds from European countries has become more difficult. The Corporation makes no prediction as to the ultimate effect of war developments on the ownership or operation of the properties of its subsidiaries in European countries, or upon the business or earnings of its subsidiaries, domestic or foreign, or of non-subsidiary companies in which it has investments.

CAPITALIZATION: Funded debt and capital stock of The Corporation outstanding as at December 31, 1939, and to be outstanding upon the issuance of the Debentures offered by the offering prospectus and the redemption of the 3½% Debentures mentioned below, are as follows:

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The net proceeds to be received by The Corporation from the sale of the Debentures due 1965 will amount to approximately $60,369,280, exclusive of accrued interest and after deducting $230,720 as the estimated amount of expenses payable by The Corporation in connection with this issue. Such net proceeds are to be used, together with treasury funds of The Corporation, to redeem on or about the 30th day after the issue of the Debentures due 1965, at 103% and accrued interest, the $60,000,000 of 3½% Debentures now outstanding.

9 Oklahoma Congressmen Well in Lead

Rogers Far Ahead Of 'Alfalfa Bill' In Primary Race

Oklahoma City, July 9 (AP).—Oklahoma's nine Representatives—who campaigned from Washington because of the press of a national defense program—swept in a solid bloc into comfortable leads in unofficial returns from today's Democratic primary.

Representative Will Rogers, seeking a fifth term as Representative-at-large, galloped far out in front of former Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray and 15 other opponents.

With 1,251 of 3,613 precincts reported, he had 48,997 to Murray's 35,569.

Representative Phil Ferguson was ahead in 86 of the 494 precincts in the Eighth District, with his predecessor, former Gov. E. W. Marland, a poor third.

Ferguson had 3,023 to 2,508 for Orville M. Savage, Perry. Marland, who made no active campaign, had 546.

Representative Jed Johnson nearly doubled the vote of his opponent, Toby Morris, Lawton, in the Sixth District. Returns from 148 of 388 precincts gave Johnson 13,039, Morris 7,106.

In other district Democratic races, Representative Wesley Disney, of the First, had 5,381 to 1,625 for Homer Flint Kellers in 96 out of 560 precincts; Representative Jack Nichols, Second, led 8,068 to 3,435 for Earl Boyd Pierce; Representative Cartwright appeared to be beating State Senator James Babb, of Poteau, in the Third, getting 3,270 votes to 1,434 in 45 of 502 precincts; Representative Boren was ahead in the Fourth and Representative Mike Monroney in the Fifth.

Representative Sam Massingale pulled into a fair lead in the Seventh District over Dr. M. Shadid, Elk City's champion of cooperative hospitals, his leading opponent. Massingale had 4,554 to Dr. Shadid's 2,241.

Ross Rizley, Republican candidate for governor in 1938, was out in front of Charles E. Knox, the Enid campaigner who nearly unseated Ferguson two years ago in the Eighth District. Ninety-nine precincts gave Rizley 2,276 and Knox 1,388.

[Numerous members of Congress, prevented from going home to campaign for reelection as the international emergency prolongs the session, were watching the Oklahoma results for possible indication of how their own campaigns may fare in their absence. Whether their remaining on duty here would balance the loss of personal contact with the voters was a big question with many.—Editor's note.]

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborne.

Greater precision and cooperation in bidding might have saved Mrs. R. E. and her partner from reaching the hopeless six no-trump contract on today's hand. They were luckily saved from a horrible set by the unimaginative defense of their adversaries.

Mrs. R. E., who asks for criticism of the bidding, says of the unhappy event:

"The cards held by the North-South pair would seem to trap them into bidding an unmakable slam. At least, that is what happened to my partner and me.

"South felt justified in attempting to reach some sort of a fit in either spades or hearts in spite of the obvious misfit, and by so doing forced the bidding beyond the only makable contract of five clubs.

"We were fortunate to emerge relatively unscathed from the six notrump bid when East shifted to a spade after taking the two top hearts."

The bidding of both North and South on this hand leaves much to be desired. South was wrong in forcing the contract to a slam and particularly shortsighted in persisting with hearts over North's frantic sign off of six clubs.

It is not likely North holds two aces; it is far less likely that North holds any important length in spades or hearts; it is not even certain that there is not a loser in clubs, especially when South is void of the suit.

We have no objection to South's feeling out the spade situation, although we are opposed to showing the hearts, but South definitely should be content to play the hand at five clubs and no higher.

There was no need for North to jump to five clubs over three hearts, and it was exceedingly foolish to rush from six spades to six notrump, but North can be forgiven for collapsing at this point.

If North should pass the hand instead of preempting there might be more chance to keep South away from a slam, although there is no good reason why South's cards should look so much better opposite an opening sacrifice call.

Turks Given RedUltimatum, Athens Hears

Istanbul Reports Demand for Control Of Dardanelles

Athens (Wednesday), July 10 (U.P.).—Russia was reported without confirmation early today to have served an ultimatum on Turkey demanding control of the Dardanelles. The report of the ultimatum, anticipated for two or three days, came from Istanbul.

[No word direct from Istanbul, or from Turkey's capital, Ankara, had been received up to an early hour today. However, it was recalled that that the Russian Ambassador to Ankara left Istanbul yesterday for Soviet Russia after a long conference with Franz von Papen, German Ambassador.

[Ever since Russia demanded—and got—Rumania's provinces of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, there have been reports that she planned to continue extension of her influence to the Mediterranean by making some sort of demands on Turkey regarding the Dardanelles.

[Most neutral sources in Istanbul Monday associated the conference of the Communist and Nazi ambassadors as indicative of German agreement to Russia's age-old aspirations for an outlet from the Black Sea.]

Plan for Free Syria Gains In Levant

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, July 9.—There is a growing movement in Egypt, Palestine, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and Syria to have Syria declared independent. The movement has been gaining momentum since the capitulation of France.

The idea of an independent United States of Arabia, which began at the end of the World War, has been gathering many sympathizers throughout Arab countries in the Middle East. Sponsors of the pan-Arabic movement want a union of Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Trans-Jordan and Palestine, and eventually Egypt.

Each state in the federation would be self-governing but trade barriers would be abolished. In reality it would be a federation of loosely joined independent states without a central government.

During the 20 years France has held the League of Nations mandate for Syria the Syrians have been clamoring for independence.

Although Gen. Eugene Mittelhauser, who succeeded Gen. Weygand, announced the French flag would fly over Syria and France would continue her mission there, Syrian nationalists are concentrating all efforts with the support of Arab leaders in other countries to win Syrian independence.

French Enter Palestine

Ankara, July 9 (AP).—Persons returning from Syria reported today 6,000 French officers, including the staff of Gen. Eugene Mittelhauser, had crossed the border into Palestine and joined British military forces there.

Tension was reported growing in Syria as the result of Arab disorders, a division of sentiment among French troops and expectation British forces might move in from Palestine.

The British, who have warned they would not countenance any German or Italian effort to use Syria as a base of operations, were reported massing troops along the frontier, leading to the belief action of some sort might be imminent.

Mexican Labor Is Reported in Passive Revolt

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Mexico City, July 9.—A "passive revolt" against six years of "radical domination" was reported in progress tonight in Mexican labor ranks as an aftermath of Sunday's presidential election in which the conservative candidate, Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, surprised the nation with his show of strength.

The movement was designed, its leaders said, to oppose any attempt by Almazan's government-sponsored opponent, Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, to impose himself" as the next President of Mexico. These leaders pointed out that the control of most of the election machinery was in the hands of the administration.

Labor Ranks Broken

Tens of thousands of workers were said to have broken from the ranks of the Mexican Confederation of Labor to show their disregard for its radical dictator, Vicente Lombardo Toledano, by casting their votes for the opposition standard bearer. Reports from all parts of Mexico not only tended to substantiate this but also brought word that an entirely new alignment of labor might soon be consummated.

With the entrance of labor into the explosive situation, tension mounted in the Federal District. Both candidates remained adamant in their claim of victory and there were increasing possibilities of open warfare. The army and police, seemingly neutral, were poised for emergency use.

The Columbia Recording Corporation sends us word (a lot of them, in fact) that, effective July 15, it brings back what was formerly one of the most popular names in the record industry—Okeh records. They're to replace Vocalions, the idea being that Okeh is a peppier title. Okeh was one of the best known record names during the jazz era (remember jazz?) In 1921, more than 3,000,000 copies of its "Laughing Record" were sold. Bix Beiderbecke, whom you of the flaming youth era will recall pretty easily, was an Okeh star. The Okeh records take over all the big Vocalion names and adds some. On the first of the new batch you'll see such popular cognomens as Gene Krupa, Count Basie, Dick Jurgens, John Kirby, Frankie Masters, Al Donahue, Tommy Tucker, Horace Henderson and Jack Leonard, the vocalist.

Your correspondent isn't much interested himself, not going in much for either jewelry or perfume, but it seems something is being done for those who are. Science marches on and the sponsors of "Pretty Kitty Kelly," which you hear over WJSV at 10 o'clock every morning, are offering listeners a floral pin, all complete with a perfume container.

Upwards of 100 microphones are being placed in strategic spots to bring C. B. S. listeners complete broadcast coverage of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, opening July 15.

U. S. Must Put Defense First, Woodring Says

Assails Intervention Forces in Answer To Kansas Welcome

By the Associated Press

Topeka, Kans., July 9.—Harry H. Woodring, who resigned as Secretary of War June 20 to make way for Henry L. Stimson, said tonight, "I have always been, I am now, and expect to remain a noninterventionist."

"If the reaction from my leaving the War Department as a known noninterventionist has caused modification of some policies and sobered some of those provocative and meddling advisers of the Administration who would strip our own defenses, then I regret that I had only one set of guts to sacrifice on the altar of public service," he added in a prepared address.

Woodring spoke at a Chamber of Commerce dinner welcoming him and his family back to Kansas after seven and one-half years in Washington. His talk was broadcast over a national (N. B. C. blue) network.

Silent on Resignation

The former secretary made no mention of his letter of resignation to President Roosevelt, a communication the White House said was "too personal" to release. But Woodring made plain that his views on America's war position differed radically from those of some Administration members.

"I am a strong advocate of keeping this country out of recurring European wars," he said. "I hold it is not necessary for America to provoke antagonisms with any peoples because their nation chooses one form of government over another.

"We naturally believe in and are sympathetic to the democracies of the world. But as they wage war, our aid should not be determined upon the issue of whether it be a defensive war to maintain their war-won empires; or an offensive one to maintain a European balance of power; or even if moral or social problems of European peoples be involved; our aid should be generous and upon a strict basis of cash and carry—wheat, pork, arms and airplanes alike—but aid only to the point that the sale does not jeopardize the defenses of our own country.

"There need be no first line of defense beyond our own possessions if we refrain from provoking belligerency with any of the warring nations of this world.

"What Is Our Quarrel?"

"What is our quarrel with any power in the Orient, the Far or Near East, Europe or Asia? We have all we can do to mind our own business, and prepare like hell to insulate this hemisphere from war.

"A neutral America, with a friendly attitude to all nations, backed up by a powerfully prepared Army and Navy, is an America that has anticipated the path of wisdom and the path of peace."

Woodring voiced his approval of Mr. Roosevelt's moves to accelerate national defense preparations, citing the program as a "proof that our democracy works."

"In the hour of great need for accomplishment," he said, "the wisdom of President Roosevelt in calling to Washington the Knudsens, Stettinius, and other successful men of industry will be proven."

Conflict Now Costs $30,000,000 Daily, Commons Informed

London, July 9.—Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, today asked Commons for another £1,000,000,000 ($4,000,000,000) to pay the rising cost of the war and he got it without a dissenting vote. The chancellor, who said Britain's war services were now costing £7,500,000 a day, ($30,000,000), immediately announced that this tremendous figure would have to be met by the people who would, he warned, soon be taxed to capacity.

Never before in the history of the British Parliament has an official of the government walked into the House of Commons and asked for so much money in a lump sum, but the cherubic little chancellor supported his case with a set of staggering figures on the cost of the war.

Last March, he said, the House voted £700,000,000 ($2,800,000,000) to supplement the £500,000,000 ($2,000,000,000) voted to pay the bills of the army, navy, air force and home defense at the start of the war last September. This money, however, he added, was running out. Up to last Saturday £575,000,000 ($2,300,000,000) of the last £700,000,000 ($2,800,000,000) had been spent and the rest, he estimated, would last only two or three weeks.

The cost of running the fighting service had increased £2,000,000 ($8,000,000) a day since last March, he said, and this alone had been sufficient to upset the budget, which was originally calculated on the theory that this would be a long war.

At the start of the blitzkrieg, said the chancellor, Britain's expenses were already running to about £50,000,000 ($200,000,000) a week. In the next four weeks, however, it had jumped up to the rate of £54,000,000 ($216,000,000) per week, and if, he added, other state expenditures, such as debt services, were included, the nation's budget would now run about £9,500,000,000 ($38,000,000) per day.

"These striking figures," said the chancellor, "certainly prove, in real tangible evidence, the great and rapid increase that is being made in our main war effort, and are still further proof of our fixed determination to spare no money or effort until victory is achieved."

He said this £1,000,000,000 was only for the fighting services, and he made it clear that he might be along any day asking for more for other purposes.

The emblem, inscribed on tanks, scout cars and trucks and worn on the soldiers' shoulder, shows a gun superimposed on tractor treads, indicating the fire power and tanks of the corps. Over them is a lightning bolt in red, emblematic of the blitzkrieg speed with which the outfit strikes. Headquarters of the new corps is at Fort Knox, Ky.

Funeral Tomorrow For Mrs. West, District Native

Services for Mrs. Nina Knox West, 49, wife of Vernon E. West, principal assistant corporation counsel, will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. in All Saints Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

No-Flying Ban On President May Be Lifted

Secret Service Refused To Let Harding Fly, But That Was in '20's

No President of the United States has ever flown in an airplane, but that statement may not stand for much longer.

Suppose that Franklin D. Roosevelt is nominated for a third term, and suppose that he chooses to fly to Chicago to accept the nomination as he did in 1932. Would the Secret Service object?

Secret Service men did object when President Warren G. Harding expressed a desire to go aloft in the early '20s. The Secret Service men had their way. Harding stayed on the ground.

No Problem in '20s

Presidents Coolidge and Hoover never wanted to travel any way but on a train, automobile or ship, and so the Secret Service guardians had no problem where they were concerned.

The same could be said about President Roosevelt—up to now, at least.

But suppose President Roosevelt, as has been suggested, should express a desire to travel by air to Chicago. What then?

Secret Service men never talk for publication, but it is clear from their off-the-record remarks that they would not now make any objections to a President traveling by air.

Willkie Air Traveler

Col. Ed Starling, chief of the White House detail of the Secret Service, does a great deal of his traveling by air. Mrs. Roosevelt is one of the country's foremost air travelers. Wendell Willkie, the Republican nominee for President, travels by air.

The record of safety in sky travel has come a long way since Secret Service men put their foot down on a flight by President Harding.

Children and Bank Boost $340.198 Red Cross Total

A $1,500 check from a bank and $6.50 from a children's neighborhood circus yesterday symbolized the wide range of response to the District Red Cross war relief fund campaign.

Just after the total was announced at $340,198.12 yesterday, the $1,500 from Riggs National Bank came in. Bruce Baird, chairman of the campaign, said he expected to make a final report at the close of the week.

Two groups of children yesterday brought contributions to the District chapter. Elizabeth Latimer, 3135 Worthington street northwest, daughter of J. A. Latimer, executive assistant to the Postmaster General, headed the committee which staged the circus. She was assisted by Sandra Weart, Leila Luening, Richard Brown, Laura Jean Brown, Laura Lo Weese and Eddie Rose.
